

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

DISTANCES. Since the consolidation of the Kingdom of Italy the French metre system has been in use throughout the country, but the old Italian miglio (pl. to miglio) is still sometimes preferred to the new kilometre. One kilometre is equal to 0.62138, or nearly 5 s this, of an English mile. The Tuscan miglio is equal to 1.65 kilometre or 1 M, 44 yds.; the Roman miglio is equal to 1.49 kilometre or 1630 yds.

PREFACE.

The objects of the Haudbook for Italy, which consists of three volumes, each complete in itself, are to supply the traveller with some information regarding the culture and art of the people he is about to visit, as well as regarding the natural features of the country, to render him as independent as possible of the services of guides and valets-de-place, to protect him against extortion, and in every way to aid him in deriving enjoyment and instruction from his tour in one of the most fascinating countries in the world. The Handbook will also, it is hoped, be the means of saving the traveller many a trial of temper, for there is probably no country in Europe where the patience is more severely taxed than in some parts of Italy

The Handbook is founded on the Editor's personal acquaintance with the places described, most of which he has repeatedly and carefully explored. As, however, changes are constantly taking place, he will highly appreciate any communications with which travellers may kindly favour him, if the result of their own observation. The information already received from numerous correspondents, which he gratefully acknowledges, has in many cases proved most serviceable

The present volume, corresponding to the ninth German edition, has, like its predecessor, been thoroughly revised and considerably augmented. Its contents have been divided into groups of routes arranged historically and geographically Predmont, Liquria, Lombardy, Venetia, The Emilia, and Tuscany, each section being provided with a prefatory outlies of the history of the district. To Professor A. Springer Editor is indebted for the introductory springer has special reference to Northern Italy and Florence.

The MAPS and PLANS, upon which special care has be bestowed, will abundantly suffice for the use of the ordinatraveller.

HEIGHTS are given in English feet (1 Engl. ft. == 0,86) metre, and DISTANCES in English miles comp. p ii. To Populations are given from the most recent official source and in some cases may appear over-rated, from the faction the returns applying to the political districts.

Hotels comp p xviii . Besides the modern palatisl expensive establishments, the Handbook also contains a # lection of modest old-fashioned inns, which not unfrequent afford good accommodation at moderate charges. The asterial indicate those hotels which the Editor has reason to belief from his own experience, as well as from information supplie by numerous travellers, to be respectable, clean and reason able. The value of these asterisks, it need hardly be observe varies according to circumstances, those prefixed to tou hotels and village inns signifying respectively that establishments are good of their kind. At the same time $ Editor does not doubt that comfortable quarters may occasion ally be obtained at mns which he has not recommended: even mentioned The average charges are stated in acco dance with the Editor's own experience, or from the bi furnished to him by travellers Although changes frequet take place, and prices generally have an upward tenden the approximate statement of these items which is the supplied will at least enable the traveller to form an estimate of his probable expenditure.

To hotel proprietors, tradesmen, and others the E begs to intimate that a character for fair dealing and contowards travellers forms the sole passport to his compation, and that advertisements of every kind are strict cluded.

'Thou art the garden of the world, the home Of al Art yields, and Nature can decree, E'en in thy lenert, what is take to the? Thy very weeds are beneatiful, thy waste More rich than other a amos fertility. Thy wrock a givry, and thy ruin graced With an immaculate charm which cannot be deficed Biron.

i. Travelling Expenses. Money.

Expenses. The cost of a tour in Italy depends of course on the traveller's resources and habits, but, as a rule, it need not exceed that incurred in other much frequented parts of the continent. The average expenditure of a single traveller, when in Italy, may be estimated at 20-30 francs per day, or at 12-15 francs when a prolonged stay is made at one place; but persons acquainted with the language and habits of the country may easily restrict their expenses to still narrower limits. Those who travel as members of a party effect a considerable saving by sharing the expense of guides, carriages and other items. When ladies are of the party, the expenses are go really greater.

Money. The French monetary system is now in use throughout the whole of Italy. The france littra or france teentains 100 centermi; 1 fr 25c = 1s. = 1 German mark = 50 Austrian kreazers. The precious metals are rarely seen in Italy. In copper fbronzo or rame, there are coins of 1, 2, 5 and 10 centesimi. A pie e of 5c is called a soldo, or seu, and as the lower classes often keep their accounts in soldi the traveller will find it restul to accustom himself to this mode of reckoning. See also the Money Table opposite the title page.

BANKNOTES. Since the introduction of a paper currency during the war of 1866, at a compulsory rate of exchange, gold and other bave entirely disappeared from ordinary circulation, and outer to dles of small notes have taken their place. For these the puraes used in most other countries are quite unsuitable, but one adapted for the purpose may be bought in Italy for 11 4-2 fr ; in addition to which a streng purch for copper will be found useful. The endless variety of banknotes with which the country was formerly undated has been replaced by the Brylietti Conscioud: (12, 1, 2, 10, and 20 tire), issued in common by six banks (the Banes Na-From the Banca Vazional, Tescana the Banca Toscana Industriale e Commerciale, the Banca Romana, the Banca di Napoli, and the Ranca of Sicilia) to which the right of issuing paper the sey has been restrict d. The traveller should be on his guard against the forged imitations of these notes which are o casionally in t with.

EXCHANGE Figlish circular notes, as well as gold and silver, are worth considerably more than Italian banknotes of nominally the same value. Of late years the gain on the exchange has averaged about 10 per cent (a napoleon) for example, realising about $22\,{ m fr}$, and a sovereign 274 g fr). If the traveller makes a payment in gold be is cutified to decline receiving banknotes in exchange, unless the difference in value be taken juto account but the full rate of exchange is rarely given except by respectable money-changers 'camburr duta') As a rule, those money-changers are the most satisfactory who publy ly exhibit a list of the current rates of exchange. The traveller should always be provided with an abundant supply of small notes (1, 2, and 5 fr), as it is often difficult to change these of large amount. When a railway fare has to be paid it is a wise precaution to be provided with the exact sum beforehard in order that mistakes or imposition may be prevented. Besides the small not s, 1 11, fr in supper should also be carried in a separate pocket or ponch.

BEST MONEY FOR THE TOTAL Circular Actes, obtainable at the principal English banks, form the proper medium for the transport of large sams and realise the most favourable exchange. English and German banknotes also realise more than their nominal value. A moderate supply of French Gold will also be found desirable. Sovereigns are received at the full value (about 26-28 fr., by the principal hotel-keepers, but not in out-of-the-way places.

Money Orders payable in Italy, for sums not exceeding 10t, are now granted by the English Post Office at the following rates: up to 2t, 9d; 5t, 4s, 6d; 7t, 2s, 3d; 10t, 3s. These are paid in gold. The identity of the receiver must sometim is be guaranteed by two well-known residents, but an exhibition of the passport often suffices. The charge for money orders granted in Italy and payable in England is 40c. per 14. sterling.

Il Period and Plan of Tour.

Season. As a general rule the spring and autumn months are the best sesson for a tour in N. Italy, especially May and Septotaber, before or after the heat of stammer has attained its comman Winter in Lombardy and Pr dmont is generally a much colder season than it is in England, but Nice and the whole of the Riviera, Pisa, and Venice afford pleasant and sheltered quarters. The height of summer can hardly be recommended for travelling, The scenery, indeed, is then in perfection, and the long days are hailed with satisfaction by the enterprising traveller, but the derce rays of an Italian ann seldom fail to impair the physical and mental energies. This result is not occasioned so much by the intensity as by the protracted duration of the heat, the sky being frequently cloudless and not a drop of rain falling for many weeks in succession. The heat generally moderates about the eng of August, when the first showers of autumu begin to refresh the parched atmosphere.

Plan. The traveller's movements must of course be regulated in accordance with the objects he has in view, and with the time and money at his command. The chief centres of attraction in N Its.y are Milan. Venice, Genoa and Florence. The following short itinerary, beginning at Turin and ending at Nice, though very far from exhaustive of the beauties of N. Italy, includes most of the places usually visited, with the time required for a glimpse at each intends to return through either of these countries, will have difficulty in framing his itinerary with the aid of the map. Simpler, the St. Gotthard, the Bernardino, the Sphiger.

Brenner are all interesting routes, of which the Simplen and the Spingen are generally considered the finest in point of scenery, while the brenner, being traversed by a railway, is the most convenient.

The luxurous character of the Italian climate, vogetation, and scenery, the soft richness of the language, and the courther manners of the upper class s will strike the travelter most forcibly if he approaches Italy for the first time from treman Switzerland or the Tyrol the characteristics of which are of a barsher and rougher type. In this case he is recommended to quit the country via Accell day), tennes(1,2day), Marseittes(1 day), Artes(1,2day), Aimes (1 day), Artema (1 day), augment (1 day) and Lyent (R 1), all of which are worthy of a visit, even after Italy.

III Language.

The time and labour which the traveller has bestowed on the study of Italian at home will be simply repaid as he proceeds on his journey. Is is carte possible for persons entirely ignorant of Italian and French to travel through Italy with tolerable comfort, but such travellers cannot envenintly deviate from the ordinary track, and are moreover invariably made to pay 'all' ingless by hotel-keepers and others, i.e. considerably more than the ordinary charges. French is very useful, as the Italians are very partial to that language, and it may suffice for Rome and some of the main routes, but for those who desire the utmost possible freedom, and who districe being imposed upon a slight acquaintance with the language of the country is indispensable.

IV. Passports. Custom-House. Luggage.

Passports, though not required in Italy, are occasionally useful, it gister to teters, for example, will not be delivered to strangers, a use they exhibit a passport to prove their identity. In the remote acignhoushoods, too, where the public safety demands a more agorous supervision, the traveller is sometimes asked for his credentials, but this remark is a arely necessary in regard to the districts embraced in this volume of the Handbook. The Italian police authorities are generally civil and obliging

Custom-House. The examination of luggage at the Italian custom-houses is generally lenient. Tobacco and cigars are the articles chiefly sought for At the gates of most of the Italian towns a tax (date consume) is levied on comestibles, but travellers luggage is passed at the barriers limite datario, on a simple declaration that it contains no such articles

Luggage. It possible, luggage should never be sent to Italy by goods-train, as it is table to damage, pilferage, and midne custom-house detention. If the traveller is obliged to forward it in this way he should employ a trustworthy agent at the frontier and send him the keys. As a rule it is advisable, and often in the end less expensive, never to part from one's luggage, and to super intend the custom-house examination in person.

V Beggars.

Bagging, which was countenanced and encouraged under the old system of Italian politics, still continues to be one of those national or isances to which the traveller must habituate himself. The prescut government has adopted energetic measures for its suppression, but hitherto with only partial success. The average Italian beggar is a mere speculator, and not a deserving object of charity. The traveller should the refere decline to give anything, with the words, however mente, or a gesture of refusal. If a donation be bestowed at should consist of the smallest possible copper coin. A beggar who on one measion was presented with 2c and thanked the donor with the usual be redictions, was on another presented with 30 c, but this act of liberality, instead of being gratefully accepted, only called forth the remark in a half-offended tone. Ma. Signore, è molto poco!

VI. Prices and Gratuities.

Italian sellers are very apt to demand a much higher price than they will ultimately a rept, but a knowledge of the custom which is based upon the presumed ignorance of one of the contracting parties, practically neutralises its ffect. Where tariffs and fixed charges exist, they should be carefully consulted; and when a certain average price is established by custom, the traveller should make a precise bargain with respect to the article to be bought or the service to be rendered, and never rely on the equity of the other parties to be rendered, and never rely on the equity of the other parties with the language should be careful not to engage in a max of more in which he is necessarily at a great disadvantage.

Want spoks now bioless to price great bires, par each fur cases it is usual to offer two-thirds or three-quarter. price demanded. The same rule applies to artizans, others. 'Non votele' (then you will not') is a remark ally has the effect of bringing the matter to a spendy be Purchases should never be made by the traveller when a by a votet-de-pt ice. These individuals, by tacit agreement from the setter at least 10 per cent of the purchase-momentum of course comes out of the pocket of the purchase

The travelier should always be abundantly supplied per roin to a country where trifling directions are demand. Drivers, guides and other persons of the same variably expect, and often demand as their right, a grain mano, manera, da bere, bottigha, caff? fumatar in additive agreed on, varying a cording to circumstances fro to a franc or more. The traveller need have no accuple his donations to the smallest possible sums, as liberality becomes a source of aunoyance and embarrassment. The francis bestowed where two sons would have suffice specify becomes anown, and the dimor is sure to be numerous other applicants whose demands it is impossible.

In Northern Its.y the traveller will now find companauses for complaint, as the system of fixed charges ? being introduced at the hotels and the shops—the will find the people with whom he comes in contact civil as and if he has some acquaintance with the language he meet with attempts at extertion.

VII, Railways.

Northern Italy is now overspread with so complete a railways that the traveller will seldom use any other concept on the Alpine routes and on the lakes. The railing is very moderate, and the trains are often behind that class carriages are tolerably comfortable, the second to those of the G. rman railways, and resemble the E French, while the third class is chiefly frequented by orders. Among the expressions with which the railwaill scon become familiar are — 'pronti' (ready), (departure), 'si cambia convoylio' (change carriages), (egress).

When about to start from a crowded station, the fit full it convenient to have as nearly as possible the exact before taking tickets. In addition to the fare, a tax of 5c on each ticket, and the express fares are 20 per of that the ordinary it is also very important to be at early, as, in accordance with the regulations, the tickets win, and the luggage-office 14 hr. before the dep train. At the end of the journey tickets are given up at the useilu, except in the case of the very large stations, where they are collected before the passengers alight

The traviller should, if possible, a low the weight of his luggage approximately, in order to guard against imposition. I kilogramme = about 2½ lbs. No luggage is allowed free, except small articles (which must not exceed 20 × 10 × 12 inch.s) taken by the passenger into his carriage. Porters who convey luggage to an i from the carriages are sufficiently paid with a few sous, where there is no fixed tariff. Those who intend to make only a short stay at a place, especially when the town or village lies at a considerable distance from the railway, had better leave their heavier luggage at the station till their return (dare in deposito, or depositive, 10 c. per day for each article)

The bet collection of time-tables is the 'Indicatere I fficiale delte Strade Ferrate', etc. (published monthly by the Fratelia Pozzo at Turin; price I fr.), with which every traveller should be provided. A smaller edition, confined to the radways of N. Italy a Ferrage ravie dell' Atta Italia, is also issued.

Through Tickers to various parts of Italy are issued in London (at the principal railway stations, by Messrs Cock & Son Fleet Street; etc.), in Paris, and at many of the principal towns in Germany and Switzerland. They are generally available for 30 days, and each passenger is allowed 56 Engl. Ibs of suggage free. Tockets from Italy to Switzerland, Germany, etc. must be partly paid for in gold, even banknotes with the exchange added being refused. Luggage may be registered either to the trave lers final destination or to any one of the stations for which there are separate compons in his ticket-book. Travellers about to cross the frontier in either direction are strongly recommended to superintend the custom house examination of luggage in person.

CIRCULAR TICKETS (vinggi circolari) to the principal towns in Italy, the Italian lakes, etc., available sometimes for 50 days, may be purchased in I on ion in France, and in Germany, as well as in Italy, at a reduction of 45 per cent (but without a free allowance of luggage). For Northern Italy there are upwards of twelve different circular tours, for which 10-30 days are allowed, and which are described in detail in Pozzo's 'Indicatore Ufficiale'. These tickets require to be stamped at the office at each fresh starting-point if the traveller quits the prescribed route, intending to rejoin it at a point farther on, he should give notice of his intention to the capostasione of the place where he leaves the railway.

RETURN TICKETS may often be advantageously used for short excursions, but they are generally available for one day only. It should also be observed that if the traveller alights at a station should also be observed that if the traveller alights at a station should also be observed that if the traveller alights at a station should also be observed that if the traveller alights at a station of his destination he forfeits the rest of his ticket for the interest is not an advantage of his destination. VIII. Hotels.

First Class Hotels, comfortably fitted up, are to be all the principal resorts of traveliers in Northern Italy, most having fixed charges room 2' q-5 fr, boughe 75 c to 1 fr., dame (exclusive of the 'facchino and porter) 1 fr. table d 4 fir. It has of late become customary to add 25 c to the olfer table d'hote for the ice supplied to co t the beverages! prolonged stay an agreement may generally be made with the lord for pension at a more moderate rate. Visitors are explicted for pension at a more moderate rate. Visitors are explicted dine at the table d'hôte; otherwise the charge for moms is to be raised. The enisine is a mixture of French and Italian charge for the use of the hotel omnibus from the station to hotel is so high (1 1 q fr.), that it is often cheaper to take a call Payment of the bill in gold is not obligatory.

The SECOND CLASS HOTELS are thoroughly Italian in their and rangements, and are rarely very clean or comfortable. The charge are little more than one-half of the above. They have no table d'hôte, but there is generally a tratteria connected with the house where refreshments à la carte, or a dinner a preszo fisso, may 📓 procured at any hour. These inps will often be found convenient and e onomical by the voyageur en garçon, and the better houses of this class may even be visited by ladies. As a rule, at is advisable to make enquiries as to charges beforehand. A dumer, for example at 2.3 fr may be stipulated for, and in arranging as to the charge for a room the services e condels should not be forgotten. Exorbitant demands may generally be reduced without difthulty to reasonable limits, and even when no previous agreem of has been made an extortionate bill may sometimes be successfully disputed, though not without lively discussion. At the smaller inns a fee of 1 fr. per day is usually divided between the waiter and the facchino, or less for a prolonged stay. Copper coins are never despised by such recipients.

HOTELS GARNIS and PRIVATE APARTMENTS are recommended for a prolonged stay. A distinct agreement as to rent should be made beforehand. When a whole suite of apartments is hired, a written contract on stamped paper should be drawn up with the and of some one acquainted with the language and customs of the place (e.g. a banker), in order that 'misunderstandings' may be prevented. For single travellers a verbal agreement with regard to attendance, linen, stoves and carpets in winter, a receptacle for coal, and other details will generally suffice.

The popular idea of cleanliness in Italy is behind the age, dirt being perhaps neutralised in the opinion of the natives by the brilliancy of their climate. The traveller will tately suffer from this shortcoming in hotels and lodgings of the best class; but those who quit the beaten track must be prepared for privations. Iron bedsteads should if possible be selected, as they are less likely to harbour the enemies of repose. Insect-powder (politere di Persia, or Keatings) or camphor somewhat repels their advances. The sunsure, or guats, are a source of great annoyance, and often of suffering, during the autumn months. Windows should always be carefully closed before a light is introduced into the room. Light muslin curtains (sanzarieri) round the beds, masks for the face, and gloves are employed to ward off the attacks of these pertinations introders. The burning of insect powder over a spirit lamp is also recommended, and pastilles may be purchased at the principal chemists' for the same purpose (see p. 213). A weak dilution of carbolic acid in water is efficacious in allaying the discomforts occasioned by the bites.

IX. Restaurants, Cafés, Osterie.

Restaurants (trattorie) are chiefly frequented by Italians and gentlemen travelling alone, but those of the better class may be visited by ladies also. Dinner may be obtained à ta carte, and sometimes a pretto fisso, at any hour between 12 and 7 or 8 p.m., for 2.5 fr.; the watters expect a grainity of 2-5 soldi. The diner who wishes to contine his expenses within reasonable limits should refrain from ordering dishes not mentioned in the bill of fare. Besides the old-fashioned trattoric a number of 'restaurants' of a better class have recently been opened in some of the larger towns. The cookery is generally French, and the charges and arrangements are similar to those in other European cities. The waiter is called comerière, but the approved way of attracting his attention is by knocking on the table.

A late hour for the chief repast of the day should be chosen in winter, in order that the daylight may be profitably employed, but an early dinner is preferable in summer when the midday heat precludes exertion.

Wine (nero or rosso, red, bianco, white, dolce eweet, asciolto, dry; del paece, wine of the country) is usually placed in the table in large bottles at the Tuscan restaurants and charged for according to the quantity drunk. In the larger towns the visitor is asked if he wish a sign mezzo litro or un quento (sta litre, also called bicchiere)

Cafes are frequented for breakfast and lunch, and in the evening by numerous consumers of ices.

Caffe nero, or coffee without milk is usually drunk (1945 c. per cup) Cuffe latte is coffee mixed with milk before served (2030 c), or cuffe e latte, i e with the wilk served separately, may be proferred (86-Wic . X. Sights, Theatres, etc.

Churches are open in the morning till 12 or 12, 30, and general again from 4 to 7 p. m. Visitors may inspect the works of even during divine service, provided they move about noiseless and keep aloof from the altar where the clergy are officiating. the occasion of festivals the works of art are often entirely connect by the temporary decorations. The verger (sagrestano or none revertes a fee of $30\,e^{-s/2}$ fr. from a single traveller, more party, if his services are required.

Museums, picture-galleries, and other collections are usually open from 10 to 3 o'clock—By a law passed in 1875 all the collections which belong to government are open on week-lays at a charge of 1 fr., and on Sundays (and sometimes on Thursdays also) gratis. They are closed on the following public holidays. New Years Day, Epiphany (6th Jan.), the Monday and Thesday during the Carnival, Palm Sunday, Easter Sunday, Ascension Day, Whitsunday, Fête de Dieu (Corpus Christi), the Festa dello Statute (first Sunday in June), Assumption of the Virgin (15th Aug.) and on Christmas Day. A good many other days are also sometimes observed as holidays—such as the Thursday before the Carnival and the day sacred to the local patron saint.

Valeta de Place escrutore de puezza e may be hired at 5-6 fr per day. They are generally respectable and trustworthy, but as they are seldom good judges of what is really worth seeing, the traveller should specify to them the places be desires to visit. Their services may generally well be dispensed with by those who are not pressed for time. Purchases should never be made, nor contracts with vetturent or other persons drawn up, in presence or with the aid of a commission anality, as any such intervention tends considerably to increase the prices.

Theatres Performances in the large theatres begin at 8-8-80, or 9 and terminate at millinght or later, operas and ballets being exclusively performed. The first act of an opera is usually succeeded by a ballet of three acts or more. Verdi is the most popular composer. The pit optatear, to which the 'highatto d'ingress' gives access, is the usual resort of the men, while the boxes and sometimes the stalls (scanne chuisi, sedie chuise, politione, or pesticulations) are frequented by ladies. A tex optice) must always be secured in advance. A visit to some of the smaller theatres, where dramas and coincides are acted, is recommended for the sake of habituating the ear to the language. Performances in summer take place in the open air, in which case smoking is allowed. — The theatre is the usual evening resort of the Italians, who never observe strict silence during the performance of the orchestra. The instrumental music is rarely good.

XI Post Office, Telegraph.

Letters (whether 'poste restante' Italian 'ferma in posta', or to the traveller's hotel) should be addressed very distinctly, and the name of the place should be in Italian. When asking for letters the traveller should present his visiting card instead of giving his name orally. Postage-stamps (francohotti) are sold at the post-offices and at many of the tobacco-shops.— Letters of 15 grammes is about the weight of three sous) to any of the states included in shout the weight of three sous) to any of the states included.

XII. Climate. Health.

Climate. Most travellers must in some tegree after their mode of living whilst in Italy, without however implicitly adopting the Italian style. Inhibitints of more northern countries generally become unusually susceptible to cold in Italy, and therefore should not omit to be well supplied with warm clothing for the winter. Carpets and stoves, to the com orts of which the Italians generally appear indifferent are indispensable in winter. A southern aspect in winter is an absolute essential for delicate persons, and highly desirable for the robust. Colds are most easily caught after sunset, and in ramy weather. Even in summer it is a wise precaution not to wear too light of thing.

Exposure to the summer-sun should be avoided as much as possible. According to a Roman proverb, dogs and foreigners (luglest) alone waik in the sun. Christians in the shade. Umbrellas, or specticles of coloured glass (grey, concave glasses to protect the whole eye are best), may be used with advantage when a walk in the sun humavoidable. Blue vells are recommended to ladies. Repose during the bottest hours is advisable, and a moderate siesta is often refreshing. Windows should be closed at night.

ing. Windows should be closed at night.

Health. English and German medical men are to be met with in the larger cities. The Italian therapentic art does not enjoy a very high reputation in the rest of Europe. English and German chemists, where available, are recommended in preference to the later. It may, however, be wise, in the case of maladies axist from local causes, to employ native skill. Foreigners frequently with from diarrhea in Italy, which is generally occasioned by the unwonted heat. The homeopathic functure of camphor may be mentioned as a remedy, but regulated dust and thorough repose are the chief desidorata.

Italian Art.

An Historical Sketch by Professor A Springer

One of the primary objects of the enlightened traveller in Italy is usually to form some a quaintance with its treasures of art Even those whose usual avocations are of the most prosaic DESCRIPTION. nature uncons lously become admirers of poetry and art in Italy The trave ler here fluids them so interwoven with scenes of everyday life, that he encounters their impress at every step, and involuntarily becomes succeptible to their influence. A single veit can bardly suffice to enable any one justly to appreciate the numerous works of att he meets with in the course of his tour nor can a guide-book teach hit to fathom the mysterious depths of Italian creative genus, the past history of which is particularly attractive; but the perusal of a few remarks on this subject will be found materially to enhance the pleasure and facilitate the researches of even the most unpretending lover of art. Works of the highest class, the most perfect creations of genius, lose nothing of their charm by being pointed out as spectmens of the best period of art, while those of inferior merit are invested with far higher interest when they are shown to be necessary links in the chain of development, and when, on comparison with earlier or later works, their relative defects or superiority are recognised. The following observations, therefore, will hardly be deemed out of place in a work designed to and the traveller in deriving the greatest possible amount of emplyment and instruction from his sejourn in Italy.

The two great epochs in the history of art which principally arrest the attention are those of Classic Antiquity, and of the Lassic are 16th contury, the culminating period of the so-called Renois-Reads sizes. The intervening space of more than a thousand years is usually, with much unfairness, almost entirely ignored; for this interval not only continues to exhibit vestiges of the first epoch, but gradually paves the way for the second. It is a common error to suppose that in Italy alone the character of ancient art can be thoroughly appreciated. This idea dates from the period when no precise distinction was made between Greek and Roma, art, when the connection of the former with a particular land and matter, and the tendency of the latter to pursue an independent course were alike overlooked. Now, however, that we are acquired with more numerous Greek originals, and have acquired deeper meight into the development of Hellenic act, an indiscriminate confusion of Greek and Roman styles is no longer to be GREEK AND apprehended. We are now well aware that the highest perfection of aucient architecture is realised in the HRLLEWIG Bryles ats temple alone. The Dorie order, in which majestic gravity is Telections of pressed by massive prepartions and symmetrical decoration, and the lonic structure, with its lighter and more graceful tharacter, exhibit a creative spirit entirely different from that manifested in the semptious Reman ediffices. Again, the most valuable collection of uncreat sculptures in Italy is incapable of affording so adm rattle as insight into the divelopment of tireck art as the sculptures of the Partheom and other fragments of Greek temple architecture preserved in the British Muse in But, while instruction is affor led more abundantly by other than Italian sources, ancient art is perhaps theroughly admired in Italy alone, where works of art ence uniter the eye with more appropriate adjoin is, and where climate, seem, ry, and people materially contribute to intensify their impresseveness. As long as a visit to Green and Asia Minor is within the reach of comparatively few travellers, a segonra in Italy may be recommended as best calculated to afford matruction with respect to the growth of ancient art. An additional facility, moreover, is afforded by the corrumstance, that in accordance with an admirable custom of classic at tiquity the once perfected type of a plastic figure was not again arbitrarily abandoned, but rigidly adhered to, and continually reproduced. Thus in numerous cases, where the more ancient Greek original had been lost, it was preserved in subsequent copies; and ever in the works of the Roman imperial age Hellente-creative talent is still reflected.

This suprema y of tireck intellect in Italy was established in a Gapett twofold manner. In the first place Greek colonists introscensus as dured their ancient native style into their new hours. This is proved by the exist nee of several Direc temples in Sicity, such as those of Schmunto (but not all duting from the same period), and the rufued temples at Syrucuse, furgenti, and Segesta On the maintain the so-called Temple of Neptune at Pastum, as well as the rains at Met pontum, are striking examples of the fully levelope I elegance and grandeur of the Duric order. But, in the second place the art of the Greeks did not attain its universal supremary in Italy till a later period, when Hellas, nationally ruined, had learned to obey the dictates of her mighty conqueror, and the Remans had begun to combine with their political superiority the refluements of more alvanced culture. The ancient scenes of artistic activity in Greece (Athens for example) became re-peopled at the cost of Rome: Greek works of art and Greek artists were intraduced into Italy - and ostentations pride in the magnificence of bondy arguired by victory led by an easy transition to a taste for such objects. To surround themselves with artistic descration thus gradually became the universal custom of the Romans, and the foundation of public monuments came to be regarded as an indispensable duty of government.

A though the Roman works of art of the imperial epoch are deficient in originality con pared with the Greek, yet their authors never degenerate into mere copyrsts, or entirely re-ARCHITEC sounce independent effort. This remark applies especially to their ARCHITECTURE Independently of the Greeks, the an ientitalian nations, and with them the Romans, had acquired a knowledge of stone cutting, and discovered the method of constructing arches and vaplying. With this technically and scientifically in portant art they sinted at combining Greek forms, the column supporting the entablature. The sphere of ar h te tere was then gradually extended. One of the chief requirements was now to construct ediffices with spa ions interiors, and several stories in height. No precise model was afford d by treek architecture, and yet the current Greek forms appeared too beautiful to be lightly disregarded. The Romans ther fore preferred to combine their with the arch principle, and apply this combination to their new architectural disigns. The individuality of the Greek orders, and their originally ana)terable coherence were thereby sacrificed, and divested of much of their in portance that which once possessed a definite organic significance frequently assumed a superficial and decorative character but the aggregate effect is always imposing, the skill in alonding contrasts, and the directing taste admirable. The graceful Corinthian capital, consisting of slightly drooping acanthus leaves, was at length regarded as tusufficiently curished, and was superseded by the so called Roman capital (first used to the arch of lifes), a given of the Corrathian and longe. cany stand, on the other hand, in the very forefront of the artistic life of the middle ages and early Renaissance, and Venice may proudly boast of having brilliantly unfolded the glor es of Ital an painting at a time when that art had sunk at Rome to the lowest depths In order, however, to put the reader into a proper point of view for appreciating the levelopment of art in N Italy, it is necessary to give a short spetch of the progress of Italian art in general from the early part of the middle ages onwards

In the 4th century the heathen world, which had long been in a tottering condition at length became Christianised, and a new period of art began. This is sometimes erroneously regarded as the result of a forcille rapture from ancient Roman art, and a sudden and spontaneous invention of a new style. But the eye and the hand adhere to custom more tensciously than the mind. While new ideas, and altered views of the character of the Deity and the destination of man were entertained, the wonted forms were still necessarily employed in the expression of these thoughts. Mereover the beathen sovereigns had by no means been unremittingly hostile to Christianity, the most bitter personations did not take place till the 3rd century), and the new doctrines were permitted to expand, take deeper root, and organise themselves in the midst of beathen society. The poosequence was trut the transition from heathen to Christian ideas of art was a grainal one, and that in point of form early Christian art continued to follow up the tasks of the ancient. The best proof of this is afforded by the paintings of the Roman Catacomes. These were by no means originally the accret, anxiously concealed places of refoge of the primitive Christians, but constituted their legally recognised publicly accessible burial-places. Reared in the midst of the customs of heathen Rome, the Christian community per enved no necessity to deviate from the artistic principles of antiquity. In the embellishment of the catacombs they adhered to the decorative forms handed down by their ancestors; and in design, choice of colour, grouping of figures, and treatment of subject, they were entirely guided by the customary rules. Even the sarcophagus sculptures of the 4th and 5th centuries differ in purport only, and not in technical treatment, from the type exhibited in the tomb-reliefs of heathen Rome. Five centuries elapsed before a new artistic style sprang up in the pictorial, and the greatly neglected plastic arts. Meanwhile architecture had developed itself commensurately with the requirements of Christian worship, and, in connection with the new modes of building painting acquired a different character.

The term Hastlica Style is often employed to designate early Christian architecture down to the 10th century. The name is of great autiquity, but it is a mistake to suppose that the early Christian basilicas possessed anything beyond the more uses in common with those of the Roman fors. The latte tures, which are proved to have existed in most of the towns of the Roman umpire, and served as courts of judicature and public assembly-halls, differ essentially in their origin and form from the charches of the thristians. The forensic hasillous were writher fitted up for the purposes of Christian worship, nor did they or the heath, a temples, serve as a wiels for the construction of Christian churcles. The latter are rather to be regarded as extensions of the private dwelling-houses of the Romans, where the first assemblies of the community were held, and the component parts of which were reproduced in ecclesiastical edifices. The church, however, was by no means a service imitation of the house, but a free development from it of which the following became the established type. A small portice berne by columns leads to the automor court (atrium), surrounded by colonnades and provided with a fountain (cantharus) in the centre, the eastern colonnade is the approach to the interior of the church which usually consisted of a nave and two aisles, the latter lower than the former, and separated from it by two rows of columns the whole terminating in a semicircle, apsis). In front of the apse there was sometimes a transverse space (transept), the altar surmounted by a columnar structure occupied a detailed position in the apset the space in front of it, bounded by can elli or railings was destined for the choir of officiating priests, and contained the two pulpits (ambones) where the gospel and epistles were read. Unlike the ancient temples, the early Christian basilicas exhibit a neglect of external architecture, the chief importance being attacked to the interior, the de orations of which however, especially in early mediazval times, were often procured by plundering the ancient Roman edifices, and transferring them to the churches with little regard to harmony of style and n aterial. The most appropriate ornaments of the churches were the metallic chierts, such as crosses and lustres, and the tapestry bestowed on them by papal plety; while the chief decoration of the walls consisted of mosaics especially those covering the background of the apse and the 'trrumphal arch which separates the apse from the nave. The mosaics, as far at least as the naterial was concerned, were of a sterling monumental character, and contributed to give rise to a new style of pictorial art; in them ancient tradition was for the first time aban loned, and the harsh and austere style erroneously termed Byzantine gradually introduced.

Christian art originated at Rome, but its development was actively promoted in other Italian districts, especially at RAVENNA, where during the Ostrogothi suprime v (493-552), as well byzantine as under the succeeding Byzantine empire, architecture was zealously cultivated. The basisies-type was there more highly mature 1 the external architecture cultivated by low arches and projecting buttresses, and the capitals of the columns in the interior appropriately moulded with reference to the superfucture.

bent arches. There, too, the art of mosaic painting was sedulously cultivated, exhibiting in its earlier specimens (in S. Giovanni in Fonic and S. Auzurio c (ets.) greater technical excellence and better drawing than the contemporaneous Roman works. At Ravenna the Western style also appears in combination with the Esstern, and the church of S. Fitale, dating from 547) may be regarded as a fine example of a Byzantine structure

The torm 'Byzanting is often misapplied. Every work of the so-called dark centuries of the middle ages, everything in architecture that intervenes between the ancient and the Gothic everything in painting which repels by its uncouth, ill-proportioned forms, is apt to be termed Byzantine, and it is commonly supposed that the practice of art in Italy was entrusted exclusively to By zantine hands from the fall of the Western Empire to an advanced period of the 13th century. This belief in the universal and unqualified prevalence of the Byzantine style, as well as the idea that it is invariably of a clumsy and lifeless character, is entirely unfounded. The forms of Byzantine architecture are at least strongly and clearly defined. While the basilica is a long-extended hall, over which the eye is compelled to range until it finds a natural resting-place in the recess of the apse, every Byzantine structure may be circumscribed with a enried line The sisles, which in the basilica run parallel with the pave, degenerate in the Byzantine style to narrow and insignificant passages; the apse loses its intimate connection with the nave, being separated from it; the most conspicuous feature in the building consists of the central square space, bounded by four massive pillars which support the dome. These are the essential characteristics of the Byzantine style, which culminates in the magnificent church of S. Sophia, and prevails throughout Oriental Christendom, but in the West, including Italy, only occurs sporadically. With the exception of the churches of S. Vitale at Ravenna, and St. Mark at Venice, the edifices of Lower Italy alone show a frequent application of this style.

The Byzantine imagination does not appear to have exercised a greater influence on the growth of other branches of Italian. Growth art than on architecture. A brisk traffic in works of art or Art is was carried on by Vehice, Amaill, and other Italian towns, Italian, with the Levant; the position of Constantinople resembled that of the modern Lyons; silk wares, tapestry, and jewellery were most highly valued when imported from the Eastern metropolis. Byzantine artists were always welcome visitors to Italy, Italian connoisseurs ordered works to be executed at Constantinople, chiefly those in metal, and the superiority of Byrantine workmanished was universally acknowledged. All this, however, does not justify the inference that Italian art was quite subordinate to Byrantine on the contrary, notwithstanding various external influences.

underwent an independent and unbiassed development and entirely abundaned its ancient principles. A considerable inindeed clapsed before the fusion of the original unhabitants the early are ileval imm grants was complete before the agent of different tribes, languages, customs, and ideas became ble into a single nationality, and before the people attained suffer concentration and independence of spirit to devote themail successfully to the cultivation of art. Unproductive in the vince of art as this early period is, yet an entire departure native tradition, or a serious conflict of the latter with extrane innovation never took place. It may be admitted, that in massive columns and comprous capitals of the churches of Up-Italy and in the art of vaulting which was developed here at early period symptoms of the Germanic character of the inha tants are manifested and that in the Lower Italian and espe laffy Sicilian structures, traces of Arabian and Norman influence are immistakable in the essentials, however, the foreigners conting to be the recipients; the might of sucient tradition, and the national idea of form could not be repressed or superseded.

About the middle of the 11th century a zealous and promise Roman ing artistic movement took place in Italy and the seeds Esqua were sown which three or four centuries later yielded so Street luxuriant a growth. As yet nothing was matured, nothing completed the aim was obscure, the resources insufficient, meanwhile architecture alone satisfied artistic requirements, the attempts at painting and sculpture being barbarous in the extreme, these, however, were the germs of the subsequent develcoment of art observable as early as the 11th and 12th centuries. This has been aptly designated the Romanesque period (11th-13th cent.), and the then prevalent forms of art the Romanesque Style. As the Romance languages, notwithstanding alterations, additions, and corruptions, maintain their relation of daughtership to the language of the Romans, so Romanesque art. in spite of its rude and barbarous aspect, reveals its immediate descent from the art of that people. The Tuscan towns were the principal scene of the prosecution of medieval art. There an industrial population gradually arose, treasures of commerce were collected, independent views of life were acquired in active partyconflicts, loftier common interests became interwoven with those of private life, and education entered a broader and more enlightened track; and thus a taste for art also was awakened and mathetic perception developed itself. When Italian architecture of the Romanesque period is examined, the difference between its character and that of contemporaneous northern works is at once apparent. In the latter the principal aim is perfection in the construction of vaniting. French, English, and German churches re unquestionably the more organically conversed, the individual parts are more inacparable and more appropriately arranged. But the subordination of all other aims to that of the secure and accurate formation of the vaulting does not admit of an unrestrained manifestation of the sense of form. The columns are apt to be heavy, symmetry and harmony in the constituent members to be disregarded. On Italian soil new architectural ideas are rarely found constructive boldness not being here the chief object; on the other hand, the decorative arrangements are richer and more grateful the sense of rhythm and symmetry more pronounced. The cathedral of Pisa, founded as early as the 11th century, or the church of S. Miniato near Florence, dating from the 12th, may be taken as an example of this. The interior with its rows of columns, the mouldings throughout, and the flat ceiling recall the basilica-type; while the exterior, especially the façade destitute of tower, with the small arcades one above the other, and the variegated colours of the courses of stone, presents a fine decorative effect. At the same time the construction and decoration of the walls already evince a taste for the elegant proportions which we admire in later Italian structures; the formation of the capitals, and the design of the o, thincs prove that the precepts of antiquity were not entirely forgotten. In the Baptistery of Florence (S. Giovanni) a definite Roman structure (the Pantheon) has even been imitated. A peculiar conservative spirit pervades the mediaval architecture of Italy, artists do not aim at an unknown and remote object; the ideal which they have in view, although perhaps instinctively only, lies in the past; to conjure up this, and bring about a Renaissance of the antique, appears to be the goal of their aspirations. They apply themselves to their task with calmitess. and concentration, they indulge in no bold or novel schemes, but are content to display their love of form in the execution of details, What architecture as a whole loses in historical attraction is compensated for by the beauty of the individual edifices. While the North possesses structures of greater importance in the history of the development of art, Italy beasts of a far greater number of pleasing works.

There is hardly a district in Italy which does not boast of interesting examples of Romanesque architecture. At Verona we may mention the famous church of St. Zeno with its sculp- Romantured portals. In the same style are the cathedrals of Fare assess rara Modena, Parma, and Piacensa, the church of S. Am- Chusches brogio at Milan, with its characteristic fore-court and façade, and that of S. Michele at Parma, erroncously attributed to the Lombardi. Tuscany abounds with Romanesque edifices. Among these the palm is due to the cathedral of Pisa, a church of spanious dimensions in the interior, apportly embellished with its marble of two colours and the rows of columns on its façade. To the same period also belong the neighbouring Leaning Tower and the Baptister;-

churches of Lucca are copies of those at Pisa. Those of Florence, however, such as the octagonal, dome-covered baptistery and the church of S. Ministo al Monte, exhibit an independent style.

The position occupied by Italy with regard to Gothic architecture is thus rendered obvious. She could not entirely ignore its influence, although lucapable of according an un-Strie conditional reception to this, the highest development of vault-architecture Gothic was introduced into Italy in a mature and perfected condition. It did not of necessity as in France, develop itself from the earlier (Romanesque) style, its progress cannot be traced step by step; it was imported by foreign architects (practised at Assisi by the German master Jacob) and adopted as being in consonance with the tendency of the age; it found numerous admirers among the mendicant orders of monks and the humbler classes of entizens, but could never quite disengage itself from Italianising influences. It was so far transformed that the constructive constituents of Gothic are degraded to a decorative office, and the national taste thus became recognised to it. The cathedral of Milan cannot be regarded as a fair specimen of Italian Gothic, but the style must rather be sought for in the mediaval cathedrals of Florence, Siena, Ornieto, in the church of S Petronio at Bologna, and in numerous secular edifices, such as the Loggis dei Lanzi at Florence, the communal palaces of medizval Italian towns and the palaces of Venice. An acquaintance with true Gothic construction, so contracted notwithstanding all its apparent richness, so exclusively adapted to practical requirements. can certainly not be acquired from these cathedrals. The spaceous interior inviting as it were, to calm enjoyment, while the cathedrals of the north seem to produce a sense of oppression, the predominance of horizontal lines, the playful application of pointed arches and gables, of finials and canopies prove that an organic coherence of the different architectural distinguishing members was here but little considered. The characteristics of flothic arch tecture. the towers immediately connected with the facade, and the prominent flying buttresses are frequently wanting in Italian Gothic edidoes, - whether to their disadvantage, it may be doubted It is not so much the sumptuousness of the materials which disposes the spectator to pronounce a lement judgment, as a feeling that Italian architects pursued the only course by which the Gothic style could be reconciled with the atmosphere and light the climate and natural features of Italy. Gothic lost much of its peculiar character in Italy, but by these deviations from the customary type it there became capable of being nationalised, especially as at the same period the other branches of art also aimed at a greater degree of nationality, and entered into a new combination with the fundamental trait of the Italian character, that of retrospective adherence to the antique.

The apparently sudden and unprepared-for revival of ancient ideals in the 13th century is one of the most interesting phenomena. in the history of art. The Italians themselves could only REVIVAL account for this by attributing it to chance. The popular or Avenuer story was that the sculptor Niccold Pisano was induced by ART IDEALS. an inspection of ancient sarcophage to exchange the prevailing style for the ancient, and indeed in one case we can trace back a work of his to its antique prototype. We refer to a relief on the pulpit in the Baptistery at Pisa, several figures in which are borrowed from a Bacchus vase still preserved in the Campo Santo of that city (pp 323, 326). Whether Niccolò Pisano was a member of a local school or was trained under foreign influences we are as yet unable to determine His sculptures on the pulpits in the Baptistery of Pisa and the Cathedral of Siena introduce us at once into a new world It is not merely their obvious resemblance to the works of sutiquity that acrosts the eye; a still higher interest is awakened by their peruliarly fresh and lifelike tone, indicating the enthusiastic concentration with which the master devoted himself to his task. During the succeeding period (Pisan School) ancient characteristics were placed in the background, and importance was attached solely to life and expression (e.g. reliefs on the façade of the Cathedral at Orvieto). Artists now began to impart to their compositions the impress of their own peculiar views, and the public taste for poetry, which had already strongly manifested itself, was now succeeded by a love of art also.

From this period (14th century) therefore the Italians date the origin of their modern art. Contemporaneous writers who observed the change of views, the revolution in sense of form. Modean and the superiority of the more recent works in life and expression, warmly extolled their authors, and zealously proclaimed how greatly they surpassed their annestors. But succeeding generations began to lose sight of this connection between ancient and modern art. A mere anecdote was deemed sufficient to connect Giotto di Bondone (1276-1336), the father of modern Italian art. with thovanni Cimabir 4d. after 1302), the most celebrated representative of the earlier style. (Cimabije is said to have watched Giotto, when, as a shepherd-boy, relieving the monotony of his office by tracing the outlines of his sheep in the sand, and to have received him as a pupil in consequence). But it was forgotten that a revolution in artistic ideas and forms had taken place at Rome and Siena still earlier than at Florence, that both Cimabus and his pupil Giotto had numerous professional brethren, and that the composition of mosaics, as well as mural and panelpainting, was still successfully practised. Subsequent investigation has rectified these errors, pointed out the Roman and Thacan mosaics as works of the transition-period, and restored the Menor master Duccio, who was remarkable for his sense of the best ful and the expressiveness of his figures, to his mented rank, Giotto, however, is fully entitled to rank in the highest class. The amateur, who before entering Italy has become acquainted with Giotto from insignificant easel - pictures only often arbitrarily attributed to this master, and even in Italy itself encounters little else than obliquely drawn eyes, clumsy features, and cumbrous masses of drapery as characteristics of his style, will regard Giotto a reputation as ill-founded. He will be at a loss to comprehend why Giotto is regarded as the inaugurator of a new era of art, and why the name of the old Florentine master is only second in popularity to that of Raphael. The fact is that Giorro's Giotto's celebrity is not due to any single perfect work of INFLUENCE art llis indefatigable energy in different spheres of art the enthusiasm which he kindled in every direction, and the development for which he paved the way, must be taken into consideration, in order that his place in history may be understood. Even when, in consonance with the postical sentiments of his age, he embodies allegorical conceptions, as poverty, chastity, obedience, or displays to us a ship as an emblem of the Church of Christ, he shows a masterly acquaintance with the art of converting what is perhaps in itself an ungrateful idea into a speaking, life-like scene. Giotto is an adept in narration, in unparting a fathful reality to his compositions. The individual figures in his pictures may fail to satisfy the expectations, and even earlier masters, such as Duccio, may have surpassed him in execution, but intelligibility of movement and dramatic effect were first naturalised in art by Giotto. This is partly attributable to the luminous colouring employed by him instead of the dark and heavy tones of his predecessors, enabling him to impart the proper expression to his artistic and novel conceptions. On these grounds therefore Giotto, so versatile and so active in the most extended apheres, was accounted the purest type of his century, and aucceeding generations founded a regular school of art in his name in the case of all the earlier Italian painters, so in that of Giotto and his successors, an opinion of their true merits can be formed from their mural paintings alone. The intimate connection of the picture with the architecture, of which it constituted the living ornament, compelled artists to study the rules of symmetry and harmonious composition, developed their sense of style, and, as extensive spaces were placed at their disposal, admitted of broad and unshackled delineation. Almost every church in Florence boasted of specimens of art in the style of Glotto, and almost every town in Central Italy in the 14th century practised some branch of art akin to Giotto's. The most valuable works of this style are preserved in the churches of S. Croce (especially the choirchapels) and S. Muria Novella at Florence. Beyond the preclucts of the Tuscau capital the finest works of Glotto are to be found at Assist and in the Madonna dell' Arena at Padua, where in 1306 he executed a representation of scenes from the lives of the Virgin and the Saviour. The Campo Santo of Pisa affords specimens of the handiwork of his pupils and contemporaries. In the works on the walls of this unique national museum the spectator cannot fail to be struck by their finely-conceived, poetical character (e.g. the Triumph of Death), their sublimity (Last Judgment, Trials of Job), or their richness in dramatic effect; History of St. Rainerus, and of the Martyrs Ephesus and Potitus).

In the 15th century, as well as in the 14th, Florence continued to take the lead amongst the capitals of Italy in matters of art. Vasari attributes this ment to its pure and decicious atmo- FLORENOS. sphere, which he regards as highly conductive to intelligence A Chaple and refinement. The fact, however, is, that Florence did OF ART. not itself produce a greater number of eminent artists than other places. During a long period Siena successfully vied with her in artistic ferti ity, and Upper Italy in the 14th century gave birth to the two painters o'Avanzo and Altichirm; paintings in the Chapel of S. Giergio in Padua), who far surpass Gietto's ordinary style. On the other hand, no italian city afforded in its political institutions and public life so many favourable stimulants to artistic imagination, or promoted intellectual activity in so marked a degree, or combined case and dignity so harmoniously as Florence. What therefore was but obscurely experienced in the rest of Italy, and manifested at irregular intervals only, was generally first realised here with tangible distinctness. Florence became the birthplace of the revolution in art effected by Giotto, and Florence was the home of the art of the Renaissance, which began to prevail soon after the beginning of the 15th century and superseded the style of Glotto.

The word Benaissance is commonly understood to designate a revival of the antique, but while ancient art now began to RENAME. influence artistic taste more powerfully, and its study to be more zealously prosecuted, the essential character of the Culture. Renaissance consists by no means exclusively, or even principally, in the imitation of the autique; nor must the term be confined merely to art, as it truly embraces the whole progress of civilisation in Italy during the 15th and 16th centuries. How the Renaissance manifested itself in political life, and the different phases it assumes in the scientific and the social world, cannot here be discussed. It may, however, be observed that the Renaissance in social life was chiefly promoted by the 'humanists', who preferred general culture to great professional attainments. who enthusiastically regarded classical antiquity as the golden age of great men, and who exercised the most extensive in Suence on the bias of artistic views. In the period of the naissance the position of the artist with regard to his work.

the nature and aspect of the latter are changed. The education and taste of the individual leave a more marked impress on the work of the author than was ever before the case; his creations are pre-eminently the reflection of his intellect; his alone is the responsibility, his the reward of success or the mortification of failure now seek to attain celebrity, they desire their works to be examined and judged as testimonials of their personal endowments Mere technical skill by no means satisfies them, although they are far from despising the drudgery of a handicraft (many of the most eminent quattrocentists having received the rudiments of their education in the workshop of a goldsmith), the exclusive pursuit of a single sphere of art is regarded by them as an indication of intellectual poverty, and they aim at mastering the principles of each different branch. They work simultaneously as painters and sculptors, and when they devote themselves to architecture, it is deemed nothing unwonted or anomalous. A comprehensive and versatile education, united with refined personal sentiments, forms their loftiest alm, This they attain in but few Instances, but that they eagerly aspired to it is proved by the biography of the illustrious LEON BATTISTA ALBERTI, who is entitled to the same rank in the 15th century, as Leonardo da Vinci in the 10th. Rationally educated, physically and morally healthy, keeply alive to the calm enjoyments of life and possessing clearly defined ideas and decided tastes, the Renaissaure artists necessarily regarded nature and her artistic embodiment with different views from their predecessors. A fresh and joyous love of nature seems to pervade the whole of this period. She not only afforded an unbounded field to the scientific, but artists also strove to approach her at first by a careful study of her various phenomena Anatomy, geometry, perspective, and the study of drapery and colour are zealously pursued and practically NAISSANCE applied External truth, fidelity to nature, and a correct ABTIETS To rendering of real life in its minutest details are among the necessary qualities in a perfect work. The realism of the representation is, however, only the basis for the expression of lifelike character and present enjoyment. The earlier artists of the Renaissance rarely exhibit partiality for pathetic scenes, or events which awaken painful emotions and turbulent passions, and when such incidents are represented, they are apt to be somewhat exaggerated. The preference of these masters obviously inclines to cheerful and joyous subjects. In the works of the 15th century strict faithfulness, in an objective sense, must not be looked for. Whether the topic be derived from the Old or the New Testament, from history or fable, it is a ways transplanted to the immediate present, and adorned with the colours of actual life Thus Florentines of the genuine national type are represented as surrounding the patriarchs, visiting Elizabeth after the birth of her son, or witnessing the miracles of Christ. This transference of remote events to the present bears striking resemblance to the naïve and not unpleasing tone of the chronicler. The development of Italian art, however, by no means terminates with mere fidelity to nature, a quality likewise displayed by the contemporaneous art of the North A superficial glance at the works of the Ita ian Renaissance enables one to recognise the higher goal of imagination The carefully selected groups of dignified men, beautiful women, and pleasing children, occasionally without internal necessity placed in the foreground, prove that attractiveness was pre-eminently aimed at. This is also evidenced by the early awakened enthusiasm for the nude, by the skill in disposition of drapery, and the care devoted to boldness of outline and accuracy of form. This aim is still more obvious from the keen sense of symmetry observable in all the better artists. The individual figures are not coldly and accurately drawn in conformity with systematic rules. They are executed with refined taste and feeting harshness of expression and unpleasing characterist as are sedutously avoided, while in the art of the North physiognomic fidelity is usually accompanied by extreme rigidity. A taste for symmetry does not prevai, in the formation of the individua, figure only; obedience to rhythmical precepts is perceptible in the disposition of the groups also, and in the composition of the entire work. The intimate connection between Italian painting (fresco) and architecture naturally leads to the transference of architectural rules to the province of pictorial act, whereby not only the invasion of a mere luxuriant naturalism was obviated, but the fullest scope was afforded to the artist for the execution of his task. For, to discover the most effective proportions, to inspire life into a scene by the very rhythm of the lineaments, are not accomplishments to be acquired by extraneous aid; precise measurement and calculation are here of no avail; a discriminating eye, refined taste, and a creative imagination, which instinctively divines the appropriate forms for its design, can alone excel in this sphere of art. This enthusiasm for external beauty and just and harmonious proportions is the essential characteristic of the art of the Renaissance Its veneration for the antique is thus also accounted for. At first an ambitious thirst for fame caused the Italians of the 15th and 16th centuries to look back to classical antiquity as the era of illustrious men, and ardently to desire its return. Subsequently, however, they regarded it simply as an excellent and appropriate resource, when the study of actual life did not suffice, and an admirable assistance in perfecting their sense of form and symmetry. They by no means viewed the art of the ancients as a perfect whole, or as the product of a definite historical epoch, which developed itself under peculiar conditions, but their attention was arrested by the individual works of antiquity and their special beauties. Those ancient ideas were re-admitted into the sphere of Benarasure at A return to the religious spirit of the Romans and Greeks is not

course to be inferred from the veneration for the ancient gold shown during the humanistic period, belief in the Olympian gods was extinct, but just because no devotional feeling was intermingled, because the forms could only receive life from creative imagination, did they exercise so powerful an influence on the Italian masters. The importance of mythological characters being wholly due to the perfect beauty of their forms, they could not fail on this account pre-eminently to recommend themselves to Kenaissance artists.

These remarks will, it is hoped, convey to the reader a general CHARAUTER idea of the character of the Renaissance. Those who existics of amine the architectural works of the 15th or 16th century Ranais should refrain from marring their enjoyment by the not alactic together justifiable reflection, that in the Renaissance style tecture no new system was invented, as the architects merely employed the ancient elements, and adhered principally to tradition in their constructive principles and selection of component parts. Notwithstanding the apparent want of organisation, however, great beauty of form, the outcome of the most exuberant imagination, will be observed in all these structures.

Throughout the diversified stages of development of the succonding styles of Remaissance ar bitecture, felicity of proportion is invariably the aim of ail the great masters. To appreciate their success in this aim should also be regarded as the principal task of the spectator, who with this object in view will do well to compare a Gothic with a Renaissance structure. This comparison will prove to him that harmony of proportion is not the only effective element in architecture, for, especially in the cathedrals of Germany, the exclusively vertical tendency, the attention to form without regard to measure, the violation of precepts of rhythm, and a disregard of proportion and the proper ratio of the open to the closed cannot fail to strike the eye. Even the unskilled amateur will thus be convinced of the abrupt contrast between the medieval and the Renaissance styles. Thus prepared, he may, for example, proceed to inspect the Pitti Palace at Florence, which, undecorated and unorganised as it is, would scarcely be distinguishable from a rude ptie of stones, if a judgment were formed from the more description. The artistic charm consists in the simplicity of the mass, the justness of proportion in the elevation of the stories, and the tasteful adjustment of the windows in the vast surface of the fa-That the architects thoroughly understood the asthetical effect of symmetrical proportions is proved by the mode of construction adopted in the somewhat more recent Florentine palaces, in which the roughly hewn blocks (rustica) in the successive stories recede in gradations, and by their careful experiments as to whether the comice surmounting the structure should bear reference to the highest story, or to the entire façade. The same hize manifesta, itself in Bramante's imagination. The Concellerio is just considered a beautifully organised structure; and when, after the example of Palladio in church-façades, a single series of columns was substitute i for those resting above one another, symmetry of

proportion was also the object in view

From the works of Brunelleschi (p. xhi), the greatest master of the Early Renaissance, down to those of Andrea Palladio of Viconza(p xliii) the last great architect of the Renaissance, the works of al. the architects of that period will be found to possess many features in common. The style of the 15th century may, however, easily be distinguished from that of the 16th The Figr- Easts Reentine Pitti, Riccardi, and Streszi palaces are still based on Matsaanen. the type of the mediava, castle, but other outemporary creations show a closer affinity to the forms and articulation of antique art A taste for beauty of detail, coeva, with the realistic tendenry of painting, produces in the architecture of the 15th century an extensive a plication of graceful and attractive greaments, which entirely cover the surfaces, and throw the real organisation of the edifice into the background. For a time the true aim of Renaissance art appears to have been departed from , auxious care is devoted to jetail instead of to general affect. the re-appli ation of columns did not at lirst admit of spacious structures, the dome rose but timidly above the level of the roof. But this attention to minutia, this disregard of effect on the part of these architects, was only, as it were, a restraining of their power, in order the more completely to master, the more grandly to develop the art.

There is no doubt that the Repaissance palaces (among which that of Urbino, mentioned in vol. ii. of this Handbook, has always been regarded as pre-eminently typical) are more attractive than the churches. These last, however, though destitute of the venerable associations connected with the mediaval cathedrals, bear ample testimony to the ability of their builders. The churches of Northern Italy in particular are worthy of examination. The first early Renaissance work constructed in this part of the country was the facade of the Certona of Pavia, a superb example of decorative architecture Besides the marble edifices of this period we also observe structures in brick, in which the vaulting and pillars form prominent features. The favourite form was either circular or that of the Greek cross (with equal arms), the edifice being usually crowned with a dome. and displaying in its interior an exuberant taste for lavish enrichment. Of this type are the church of the Madonna della Croce near Crema and several others at Pencenza and Prema (Madonna della Sterrata). It was in this region that BRAMANTE prosecuted the studies of which Rome afterwards reaped the benefit. Among the see when buildings of A Italy we may mention the Ospedale Maggiore Milan which shows the transition from Gothic to Renaiseance hest survey of the palatial editives built of brick will be obtain by walking through the streets of Bologram (p. '256)

The visitor to Venice will have an opportunity of tracing within a very limited space the progress of Renaissance architecture. The church of S. Zaccarai is an example of early Renaissance still in conflict with Gothic, while the richly coloured church of S. Mario dei Miracoli and the Scuoli di S. Mirco exhibit the style in its perfection. Foremost among the architects of Venice must be mentioned the Lombardi, to whom most of the Venetian buildings of the 15th cent. are attributed, but we shall afterwards advert to the farther progress of Venetian architecture (p. xliii). One of the most famous architects of N. Italy was Fra Grocomi of Verona, a monk, philologist (the liscoverer of the letters of the younger Pliny), a botanist, an engineer, and a theroughly well trained architect, who at a very advanced age, after the death of Bratoante, was summoned to Rome to superiotend the building of St. Peter's

Examples of early Renaissance architecture abound in the towns of Tuscany. At Florence, the scene of Fittero Britishert's labours (1379-1446) the attention is chiefly arrested by the church of S. Lerenzo (1425), with its two sucristics (the earlier by Britisheschi, the later by Michael Angelo, which it is interesting to compare), while the small tappetta dei Pazzi near S. Croce is also noticeable. The Palazzo Rucellai is also important as showing the combination of pilasters with 'rustica' the great st advance achieved by the early Renaissance. Siena, with its numerous palaces, Pienza, the model of a Renaissance town, and I rhino also afford ex ellent examples of the art of the Quattrocentists, but are beyond the limits of the present volume. While all these different edifices possess many features in common, they may be classed in a number of groups, differing in material and various other characteristics, and entirely relieving them from any represent of monotony.

The carry Reliassance is succeeded by Bramante's epoch (1444-1514), with which began the golden age of symmetrical construc-ZESTER tion. With a wise economy the mere deporative portions or tax Br were circumscribed, while greater significance and more marked express on were imparted to the true constituents of the structure, the real exponents of the architectural design. The works of the bran antine era are less graceful and attractive than these of their predecessors, but superior in their well defined, lofty simplicity and finished character Had the Church of St Peter been completed in the form originally designed by Bramante, we could have pronounced a more decided opinion as to the ideal of the church-ar hite ture of the Renaissance. The circumstance that the grandest work of this style has been subjected to the most varied alterations (and vastness of dimensions was the principal aim of the ar hiteets (teaches us to refrain from the indiscriminate blame which so extremonly falls to the lot of Renaussance churches least be admitted that the favourite form of a Greek cross with nunded extremities, crowned by a dome, possesses concentrated

unity, and that the pillar-construction relieved by siches presents a most majestic appearance, nor can it be disputed that in the churches of the Renaissance the same artistic principles are applied as in the universally admired palaces and securar edifices. If the former therefore excite less interest, this is not due to the inferiority of the architects, but to causes beyond their centrol. The great masters of this cuminating period of the Renaissance were RAPHAEL, BALDASSABE PERUZZI, the younger Antonio DA SANGALLO of Rome, Michele Sammicheli of Verons (p. 187), Jacopo Sanso-VINO of Venice, and lastly MICHARL ANGBLO. The succeeding generation of the 16th century did not adhere to the style introduced by Bramaute, though not reduced by him to a maished system. They aim more sedulensly at general effect, so that harmony among the individual alembers begins to be neglected: they endeavour to arrest the eye by boldness of construction and striking contrasts; or they borrow new modes of expression from antiquity, the precepts of which had hitherto been applied in an unsystematic manner only,

The traveller will become acquainted with the works of Bramante and his conten poraries at Reme (see vol. ii of this Hand- Fanous Rebook), but there are other places also which possess imperiant wassasen examples of the 'High Renaissance' style At Florence, for Billiongs. example, are the Palazzo Pandotfini and the Palazzo I guessiani, both of which are said to have been designed by RAPHARL, the Court of the Pitti Palace by BART AMMANATI; the Polatzo Serristori and the Polarso Bartelini by Baccio D'Aonolo. We must also mention Mantua as the scene of the arch t ctural labours of GIVLIO ROMANO (p. 195), Jerony with its numerous buildings by Sam-MICHBLI (e g the Palazzo Bevilacqua), and Padua, where Gio-VANNI MARIA FALCONETTO (1458-1534) and Andrea Riccio, or properly Barosco (S. Giustina) flourished. At benne the Renaissance culminated in the first half of the 16th cent in the works of the Florentine Jacopo Sansovino (properly Tatti, 1477-1570), and at Genon in those of Galbazzo Albest (1500-72) of Perugia (e.g. S. Maria in Carignano).

In the middle and latter half of the 16th cent, lence, Genoa, and Vicenza were realous patrons of art. To this period Anthibelongs Anders Palladio of Vicenza (1518-80): p. 200), the tene at the last of the great Renaissance architects, whose Venetian lands. churches (S. Giorgio Maggiore and Redentere, and Vicentine palaces are equally celebrated. The fundamental type of domestic architecture at Venice recurs with little variation. The nature of the ground afforded little as po for the caprice of the architect, while the conservative spirit of the inhabitants inclined them to adhere to the style established by custom. Nice distinctions it wakes are therefore the more observable, and that which emanated from a pure sense of form the more appreciable. Those who have convenced by careful comparison of the great superiority of

Riblioteca (in the Piazzetta) of Sansovino over the new Procurszie of Scamozzi, although the two edifices exactly correspond in many respects, have made great progress towards an accurate insight into the architecure of the Renaissance

Much, however, would be lost by the traveller who deveted his attention exclusively to the master-works which have been Works or exterled from time momemorial, or solely to the great monumental structures. As even the insignideant vases (mojolicus, manufactured at Pesaro, Urbino, Cubbio, and Castel-Durante) testify to the taste of the Italians, their partiality for classical models, and their outhosissm for purity of form, so also in inferior works, some of which fall within the province of a mere handicraft, the peculiar beauties of the Renaissance style are often detected, and charming specimens of architecture are sometimes discovered in remote corners of Italian towns Nor must the vast domain of decorative sculpture be disregarded, as such works, whether in metal, stone, or stucco, inlaid or carved wood (mtursur). often verge on the sphere of architecture in their designs, drawing, and style of enrichment.

On the whole it may be asserted that the architecture of the Renaissance, which in obedience to the requirements of modern life Securities manifests its greatest excellence in sect lar structures, cannot OF THE RE fail to gratify the taste of the most superficial observer. BAISSANCE. With the sculpture of the same period, however the case is different. The Italian architecture of the 15th and 16th centuries still possesses a practical value and is frequently imitated at the present day, and painting undoubtedly attained its highest consummation at the same period; but the sculpture of the Renaissance does not appear to us worthy of revival, and indeed cannot compete with that of antiquity. Yet the plastic art, far from enjoying a lower degree of favour, was rather viewed by the artists of that age as the proper centre of their aphere of activity. Sculpture was the first art in Italy which was launched into the stream of the Renaissance, in its development it was ever a step in advance of the other arts, and in the popular opinion possessed the advantage of most clearly embodying the current ideas of the age, and of affor ang the most brilliant evidence of the re-awakened love of art. Owing probably to the closeness of the connection between the plastic art of the Renaissance and the peculiar national culture, the former lost much of its value after the decline of the latter, and was less appreciated than pictorial and architectural works, in which adventitions historical origin is obviously less important than general effect. In tracing the progress of the sculpture of the Renaissance, the enquirer at once encounters serious deviations from strict precepts and numerous infringements of asthetical rules. The execution of reliefs constitutes by far the widest sphere of action of the Italian sculptors of the 15th century. These, however, contrary to immemorial usage, are executed in a pictorial style. Lorrazo Ghibbri (1378-1455) for example, in his celebrated (eastern) door of the Baptistery of Flotence, is not satisfied with grouping the figures as in a painting, and placing them in a rich landscape copied from nature. He treats the background in accordance with the rules of perspective; the figures at a distance are smaller and loss raised than those in the foreground. He oversteps the limits of the plastic art, and above all violates the laws of the relief-style, according to which the figures are always represented in an imaginary space, and the usual system of a mere design to profile seldom departed from. In like manner the painted reliefs in terracotta by Luca DELLA ROBBIA (1400-82) are somewhat inconsistent with pur ty of plastic form. But if it be borne in mind that the sculptors of the Renaissance did not derive their ideas from a previously defined system. or adhere to abstract rules, the fresh and life-like vigour of their works (especially those of the 15th century) will not be disputed, and prejudice will be dispelled by the great attractions of the reliefs themselves. The sculpture of the Renaissance adheres as strictly as the other arts to the fundamental princip o of representation; scrupulous care is bestowed on the faithful and attractive rendering of the individual objects; the taste is gratified by expressive heads, graceful female figures, and joyons children; the sculptors have a keen appreciation of the beauty of the nude, and the importance of a calm and dignified flow of drapery. In their anxiety for fidelity of representation, however, they do not shrink from harshness of expression or rigidity of form. Their predilection for bronze- asting, an art which was less in vegne in the 16th cent., accords with their love of individualising their characters. In this material, decision and pregnancy of form are expressed without restraint, and almost, as it were, spontaneously. Works in marble also occur, but these generally trench on the province of decoration, and seldom display the bold and unfettered aspirations which are apparent in the works in bronze

The churches have always afforded the most important field for the labours of the Italian sculptors, some of them, such as S. Crocs at Florence Fram and S. Grovanni e Paolo at Venice, and the Santo at Padua, forming very museums of Renaissance sculpture. At the same time many of the wealthier families (the Medici and others) embellished their mansions with statuary, and the art of the sculptor was frequently invoked with a view to erect a fitting tribute to the memory of some public benefactor (such as the equestrian statues at Venice and Padua).

At Florence, the cradle of Renaissance wellplute, we become acquainted with Chiberti and Della Robbia, who have been accused already mentioned, and with the famous Donarrato (pro-ov the perly Donaro Di Niccolò di Berri Bardi, 1386-1466), who same introduced a naturalistic style, which, though often harsh, is full of life and character. The Judith Group in the Loggia de' Lauzi is an exaggerated and unpleasing example of this style, the master having aimed at the utmost possible expressiveness, while the lines and contours are entirely destitute of ease. Among Denatelio's most successful works on the other hand are his statue of St. George (in Or S. Michele, which also contains his Peter and Mark, p. 369) and his lictorium Darid in bronze in the Museo Nazionale (p. 377), a collection invaluable to the student of the early Renaissance. The reliefs on the two pulpits in S. Lorenzo and the sculptures in the sacristy of that church (p. 394) should also be inspected. Donatello's finest works out of Florence are his numerous sculptures in S. Antonio at Pudua,

The next sculptor of note was ANDRHA VERROCCHIO (1435-88). Most of the other masters of this period (ANTONIO ROSSELLING, MINO DA FIRSOLE. DESIDRATO DA SETTIONANO) Were chiefly occupied in the execution of tombstones, and do not occupy a position of much importance, but the life and sense of beauty which characterise the early Renaissance are admirably exemplified in the works of the comparatively unknown MATTRO CIVITALI of Luces. (1435 1501; Altar of St. Regulus in the Cathedral, p. 313). Important Florentine masters of the first half of the 16th cent, were GIOV FRANC. RUSTICI (1474-1550?), who was perhaps inspired by Leonardo, and particularly Andrea Sansovino (1460-1529). the author of the exquisite group of Christ and the Baptist in the Baptistery at Florence, of superb monuments at Rome (in the choir of S Maria del Popolo), and of part of the sculptures which adorn the Santa Casa at Loreto. Northern Italy also contributed largely to the development of the plastic art. The Certosa at Paver, for example, afforded occupation during several decades to numerous artists, among whom the most connect were Giovanni Antonio AMADEO (sculptor of the huge menuments in the Cappella Collegni at Bergamo), and, at a later period, Chistoforo Solari surnamed In Gouno; Venuce gave birth to the famous sculpter Albenandao LEOPARDI (d. 1521), Riccio or Briosco wrought at Pulua, Agos-TING BUSTI, IL BAMHAJA (p. 126) and the above-mentioned Cristo-FORO SOLARI, were actively engaged at Milita, and Modera afforded employment to Mazzoni and Beganell: (p. 276), artists in terracotta, the latter of whom is sometimes compared with Correggio.

Of the various works executed by these masters. Monumental Tombs largely predominate. While these monuments are often of a somewhat bombastic character, they afford an excellent illustration of the high value attached to individuality and personal culture luring the Renaissance period. We may perhaps also frequently take exception to the monotony of their style, which remained almost unaltered for a whole century, but we cannot is:

to derive genuine pleasure from the inexhaustible freshness of imagination displayed within so narrow limits

As museums cannot convey an adequate idea of the sculpture of the 15th century, so the picture galleries will not afford an accurate insight atto the painting of that period ! Sculp- Painting tures are frequently removed from their original position, if the (inmany of those belonging to the Florentine churches, for Queensto, example, having been of late transferred to museums; but unital paintings are of course generally inseparable from the walls which they adorn. Of the frescoes of the 15th century of which a record has been preserved, perhaps one-half have been destroyed or obliterated, but those still extant are the most instructive and attractive examples of the art of this period. The mural paintings in the church del Cirmine (Cappella Brancacci) at Florence are usually spoken of as the earliest specimens of the painting of the Renaissance. This is a chronology al mistake, as some of these frescoes were not ompleted before the se and half of the 15th century, but on material grounds the classification is justifiable, as this cycle of pictures may be regarded as a programme of the earlier art of the Remaissance, the importance of which it served to maintain, even during the age of Raphael. Here the beauty of the nude was first revealed, and here a calm dignity was for the first time imported to the individual figures, as well as to the general arrangement, and the transformation of a group of indifferent spectators in the composition into a sympathising choir, forming as it were a frame to the principal actors in the scene, was first successfully effected. It is, therefore, natural that these frescoes should still be regarded as models for imitation, and that, when the attention of connoisseurs was again directed during the last century to the beauties of the pre-Raphaelite period, the works of Masaccio (1401-1428) and Filippino Lippi (1457-1504) should have been eagerly rescued from oblivion

A visit to the churches of Florence is well calculated to convey an idea of the subsequent rapid development of the art of painting. The most important and extensive works are those of Domenico Ghialandaio (1449-94) and frescoes in S. Trinità Painting at those in the choir of S. Maria Novella, which in spright-liness of conception are hardly surpassed by any other work of the same period. (The traveller will find it very instructive to compare the former of these works with the mural paintings of Giotto in S. Croce, which also represent the legend of St. Francis, and to draw a parallel between Ghirlandajo's Last Supper in the morasteries of S. Marco and Ognissanti, and the work of Leonardo.) In the Dominican monastery of S. Marco reigns the plous and peaceful genius of Fra Giovanni Angelico da Fresola (1387-1455).

though inferior to his contemporaries in dramatic power, vies with the best of them in his depth of sentiment and his sense of beauty, as expressed more particularly by his heads, and who in his old age displayed his well matured art in the frescoes of the chapel of St. Nicholas in the Vat can

Although the Tuscan painters exhibit their art to its fellest extent in their micral paintings, their easel-pictures are also well worthy of most careful examination; for it was chiefly through these that they gradually attained to perfection in importing beauty and lignity to the human form. Besides the two great Florentine galleries (Uffizi and Pitti), the collection of the Academy (p. 387) is also well calculated to afford a survey of the progress of Florentine painting

Beyond the precincts of Florence. Brnozzo Gozzoli's charming scenes from the Old Testament on the northern wall of the Compo-PAINTING IN Santo of Pisa, truly forming biblical geore-pictures, and his OTHERPARTS Scenes from the life of St Augustine in S Gimignano, OFTERNAL FILIPPO LIPPI'S frescoes at Prate (p 340), PIERO DELLA Francesca's Firding of the Cross in S. Francesco at Arczeo. and lastly Luca Signoralities representation of the Last Day in the Cathedral at Ormeto afford a most atmirable review of the character and development of Renaissance painting in Central Italy, Arezzo and Orvieto should by no means be passed over, not only because the works they contain of Piero della Frances: a and Luca Signorelli show how nearly the art even of the 15th century approaches perfection, but because both of these towns afford an .mit eduate and attractive resight into the artistic taste of the mediæval towns of Italy. Those who cannot conveniently visit the provincial towns will find several of the principal masters of the 15th century united in the mural paintings of the Sistine Chapel at Rome, where SANDRO BOTTICKLII, a pupil of the elder Lippi, Cosimo Rosselli, Dom. Ghardado, Signorelli, and Perugino have executed a number of sich compositions from the life of Moses and that of Christ

But an a quaintance with the Tuscan schools alone can never suffice to enable one to form a judgment respecting the general OTHER progress of art in Italy. Chords which are here but slightly schools touched vibrate powerfully in Upper Italy. The works of Andrea Mantrena (1431-1506, at Padua and Mantua) derive much interest from having exercised a marked influence on the German masters Holbein and Dürer, and surpass ail the other works of his time in fidelity to nature and excellence of perspective (p. 195). The earlier masters of the Venetian School (Vivarini, Crivally) were to some extent adherents of the Paduan school, to which Mantegna belonged but the peculiar Venetian style, mainly to indeed on local characteristics and admirably successful in its rich partrature of noble and dignified personages, was soon afterwards absorated by Generals Bellini (1421-1507) and his brother Giovanni (1426-1516), sons of Giacomo (comp. p. 219). — The Umbrian School also, which originated at Gubbio, and is admirably represented early in the 15th century by Ottaviano Nelli, blending with the Tuscan school in Gentile da Fabriano, and culminating in its last masters Pietro Vannucci, surnamed Perligion (1446-1524) and Bernardino Pinturiccino (1454-1513), merits attention, not only because Raphael was one of its adherents during his first period, but because it supplements the broader Florentine style, and notwithstanding its peculiar and limited bias is impressive in its character of lyric sentiment and religious devotion (e. g. Madonnas).

The fact that the various points of excellence were distributed among different local schools showed the necessity of a loftier union Transcendent talent was requisite in order harmoniously to Union or combine what could hitherto be viewed separately only. DIFFERME The 15th century, notwithstanding all its attractiveness, shows that the climax of art was still unattained. The forms employed, graceful and pleasing though they be, are not yet lofty and pure enough to be regarded as embodiments of the highest and noblest conceptions. The figures still present a local colouring, having been selected by the artists as physically attractive, rather than as characteristic and expressive of their ideas. A portrait style still predominates, the actual representation does not appear always wisely balanced with the internal significance of the event, and the dramatic element is insufficiently emphasised. The most abundant scope was therefore now afforded for the labours of the great triumvirate LEONARDO DA VINOI, MICHAEL ANGELO BLONARnort, and Raphabl Santi, by whom an entirely new era was inaugurated.

Leonardo's (1452-1519) remarkable character can only be theroughly understood by means of prolonged study. His comprehensive genius was only partially devoted to art; he also directed LEGNARDS his attention to scientific and practical pursuits of an entirely na tracta different nature. Refinement and versatility may be described as the goal of his aspirations; a division of labour, a partition of individual tasks were principles unknown to him. He laid, as it were, his entire personality into the scale in all that he undertook. He regarded careful physical training as scarcely less Important than comprehensive culture of the mind; the vigour of his imagination served also to stimulate the exercise of his intellect; and his minute observation of nature developed his artistic taste and organ of form One is frequently tempted to regard Leonardo's works as mere studies, in which he tested his powers, and which occupied his attention so far only as they gratified his love of investigation and experiment. At all events his personal investigation tance has exercised a greater influence than his production an artist, especially as his prejudiced age stremously sour obliterate all trace of the latter. Few of Leonardo's works have been preserved in Italy, and these sadly marred by neglect. A reminiscence of his earlier period, when he wrought under ANDREA VERROCCHIO at Florence, and was a fellow-pup t of Lo-RENZO MI CREDI, is the free to (Madenna and donor) in S. Onofrio at Rome. Several oil paintings, portraits, Madonnas, and composed works are attributed to his Milan period, although careful research inclines us to attribute them to his pupils. The following are the most famous of his pictures in the Italian galleries in the Ambrosiana of Milan the Pertruit of Isabethi of Arrayon, wife of Gir v Galeazzo Sforza, in the Palazzo Pitti the Gol length and the Monaca (both of doubtfu) authenticity), in the Litzi the Portrut of himself (certainly spurious) and the Adoration of the Maye, which last, though little more than a sketch, bears full testimony to the fertility of the artist's imagination; and lastly, in the Vatican Gallery, the St. Jerome (in shades of brown). The traveller will also find Leonardo's crawings in the Ambrosiana exceedingly interesting. The best insight into Leonar los style, and his reforms in the art of colouring, is obtained by an attentive examination of the works of the Milan a hool (Luini, Salaino; p. 119), as these are far better preserved than the original works of the master, of which this battle-cartoon having been unfortunately lost with the exception of a single equestrian group) the Last Supper in S. Maria delle (crazie at Milan is now the only worthy representative. Although now a total wreck, it is still well calculated to convey an idea of the new epoch of Leonardo. The spectator should first examine the delicate equilibrium of the composition, and observe how the individual groups are complete in themselves, and yet simultaneously point to a common centre and impart a monumental character to the work; then the remarkable physiognomical fidelity which pervades every detail, the psychological distinctness of character, and the dramatic life, together with the calmness of the entire bearing of the picture. He will then comprehend that with Leonardo a new era in Italian painting was inaugurated, that the development of art had attained its perfection.

The accuracy of this assertion will perhaps be doubted by the amateur when he turns from Leonardo to Michael Angelo (1474-MICHARL 1563). On the one hand he hears Michael Angelo extolled Angelo as the most celebrated artist of the Renaissance, while on the other it is said that he exercised a prejudicial influence on Italian art, and was the procursor of the decline of sculpture and painting. Nor is an inspection of this illustrious master's works calculated to dispel the doubt. Unnatural and arbitrary features often appear in juxtaposition with what is perfect, profoundly significative, and faithfully conceived. As in the case of Leonardo, we shall find that it is only by studying the master's biography that we can obtain an explanation of these anomalies, and

reacl, a true appreciation of Michael Angelo's artistic greatness Educated as a scolptor he exhibits partiality to the under and treats the drapery in many respects differently from his professional brethren. But, like them, his aim is to inspire his figures with life, and he seeks to attain it by imparting to them an imposing and impressive character. At the same time he occupies an isolated position. at variance with many of the tendencies of his age. Naturally prodisposed to mela scholy, concealing a gentle and almost effeminate temperament beneath a mask of austerity. M'chael Angelo was confirmed in his peculiarities by the political and ecclesiastical circumstances of his time, and wrapped himself up within the depths of his own absorbing thoughts. His aculpture most clearly manifests that profound sentiment to which bowever he often sacrificed symmetry of form. His figures are therefore anomalous, exhibiting a grand conception, but no distinct or tangible thoughts, and least of all the traditional ideas. It is difficult now to fathom the hidden sentiments which the master intended to embody in his statues and pictures, his no tators seem to have seen in them nothing but massive and clumsy forms, and soon degenerated into meaningless mannerism. The descrive effect produced by Michael Angelo's style is best exemplified by some of his later works. His Moses in S. Pietro in Vincoli. is of impossible proportions; such a man can never have existed; the small head, the huge arms, and the gigantic torso are utterly disproportionate; the robe which falls over the celebrated knee could not be folded as it is represented. Nevertheless the work is grandly impressive; and so also are the Monuments of the Medici in S. Lorenze at Florence, in spite of the forced attitude and arbitrary moulding of some of the figures. Michael Angelo only sacrifices accuracy of detail in order to enhance the aggregate effect. Had so great and talented a master not presided over the whole, the danger of an inflated style would have been incurred, the forms selected would have been exaggerated, and a professional mannersm would have been the result. Michael Angelo's numerous pupils in their anxiety to follow the example of his Last Judgment in the Sistime succeeded only in representing complicated groups of unnaturally foreshortened unde figures, while Baccio Band nelli, thinking even to surpass Michael Angelo, produced in his group of Hercules and Cacus (in the Piazza della Signoria at Florence) a mere caricature of his model

Michael Angelo lived and worked at Florence and Rome alternately. We find him already in Rome at the age of 21 years (1496), as Florence, after the banishment of the Medici, offered no favourable field for the practice of art. Here he chiselled the Path and the Bacchus. In the beginning of the 16th cent, he returned to his home, when he produced his David and worked on the Battle food (Florentines surprised while bathing by the Pisans he which have disappeared. In 1505 the Pope recalled him to Rome, the work entrusted to him there, the Tomb of Julius II was at this time little more than began. The Ceiling Printings in the Sisting Chapet absorbed his whole attention from 1508 to 1512. After the death of Julius his mont ment was resumed on a more extensive scale. The commands of the new pope, however, who wished to employ the artist for the glorification of his own family, soon brought the ambitiously designed memorial once mere to a standstill From 1516 onwards Michael Angelo dwelt at Carrara and Florence, occupied at first with the construction and embeliahment of the Façade of S Lorenzo, which was never completed, and then with the Tumbs of the Medici. This work also advanced very slowly towards maturity, and at last the artist, disgusted with the tyranny of the Medici set up in their places those of the statues which were finished, and migrated to Rome (1589). His first work here was the Last Judgment in the Sistine Chapel, his next the erection of the scanty fragments of the tomb of Pope Julius. His last years were mainly devoted to architecture (St. Peter's)

Amatours will best be enabled to render justice to Michael Angelo by first devoting their attention to his earlier works, among which in the province of sculpture the group of the Pleta in St. Peter's o empies the highest rank. The statues of Barchus and David (at Florence) likewise do not transgress the enstemary precepts of the art of the Renaissance. Paintings of Michael Augelo's earlier period are rare; the finest, whether conceived in the midst of his youthful studies, or in his maturer years, is nnquestionably the ceiling-painting in the Sistine. The architectural arrangement of the ceiling, and the composition of the several pictures are equally masterly; the taste and discrimination of the painter and sculptor are admirably combined. In God the Father. Michael Angelo produced a perfect type of its kind; he understood how to inspire with dramatic life the abstract idea of the act of creation, which he conceived as motion in the prophets and sibyls. Notwithstanding the apparent monotony of the fundamental intention (foreshadowing of the Redemption), a great variety of psychological incidents are displayed and embodied in distinct characters Lastly, in the so-called Ancestors of Christ, the forms represented are the genuine emanations of Michael Angelo's genius, pervaded by his profound and sombre sentiments, and yet by no means destitute of gracefulness and beauty. The decorative figures also which he designed to give life to his architectural framework are wonderfully beautiful and spirited. The Last Judgment, which was executed nearly thirty years later (in 1541 according to Vasari), is not nearly so striking as the celling-paintings, owing in a great measure to its damaged condi-Among Michael Angelo's pupils were Shuastian DRL Prouno (the Venetian), MARCELLO VENUSTI, and DANIBLE DA VOLTERRA.

Whether the palm bedue to Muhael Angelo or to Raphael (1483-1520) among the artists of Italy is a question which formerly gave rise to v. hement lis used in a noing artists and amateurs RAPHARL. The admirer of Michael Angel (need, however, by no means he precluded from enjoying the works of Raphael. We now know that it is far more advantagious to form an acquaintance with each master in his peculiar previous, than auxiously to weigh their respective merits, and the more inimitely we examine their works, the more firmly we are persoaded that neither in any way obstructed the progress of the other, a d that a so salled higher combination of the two styles was impossible. Michael Angeli's unique position among his contemporaries was such, that no one, Rappael not excepted, was entirely exempt from his influence, but the result of preceding development was turned to the best a count, sot by him, but by Raphael, whose susceptible and disgram, rating character anabled him at once to combine different tendencies within himself, and to avoid the faults of his predecessors. Raphael's pictures are replete with indications of profound sentiment but his imagination was so constituted that he did tot distort the theas which he had to embody in order to accommodate them to his own views, but rather strove to identify himself with them, and to reproduce them with the utmost fidelity 1, the case of Raphael, therefore, a knowledge of his works and the enjoyment of them are almost inseparable, and it is diffi alt to point out any single sphere with which he was especially familiar. He presents to us with equal enthusiasn. pictures of the Madonna, and the myth of Cupil and Psyche; in great cycle compositions he is as brilliant as in the limited sphere of portrait painting; at one time he appears to attach paramount importance to strictness of style, architectural arrangement, symmetry of groups, etc., at other times one is tempted to believe that he regarded colour as his most effective auxiliary. His excellence consists in his rendering equal justice to the most varied subjects, and in each case as unhesitatingly pursuing the right course, both in his appreheasion of the idea and select on of form, as it he had never followed any other

Little is known of Raphael's private life, nor is it known by what master he was trained after his father's death (1494). In 1500 he entered the studio of Perugini (4 xlix) and probably soon assisted in the execution of some of the works of his prolific maste. That he rendered some assistance to Pinturicchio in the execution of the frescoes at Siena (in 1503) or perhaps as late as 1504) appears certain from their points of resemblance with some of his drawings. Of Raphael's early, or Indian in period there are examples in the Vatical Gallery (for action (follow), and the Siera at Milan (Spoodize of the Madonno, 1504). On settling at Florence (above 1504) Raphael did not at first abandon, the style he had learned

Perugia, and which he had carried to greater perfection than any of the other Umbrian masters. Many of the pictures be painted there show that he still followed the precepts of his first master but he soon yielded to the influence of his Florentine training After the storm raised by Savonarola had passed over glorious days were in store for Florence. Leonardo after his return from Milan, and Michael Angelo were engaged here on their cartoons for the deceration of the great half in the Palazzo Verchio, and it was their example, and more particularly the st mulating influence of Leonardo, that awakened the genius and called forth the highest energies of all their younger contemporaries.

The fame of the Florentine school was at this period chiefly RACHARL - maintained by FRA BARTOLOMMFO (1475-1517) and ANDREA PLORENTINE DRI. SARTO (1487-1531) The only works of Bartelonunco Correspon which we know are somewhat spiritless alter-pieces, but they KARIES exhibit in a high legree the digulty of character, the tranquality of expression, and the architectural symmetry of grouping in which he excelled. His finest pictures are the themt with the four Saints, the Descent from the Cross (cr Preth), the St. Mark in the Pitti Gallery, and the Most mn i in the cathedral at Lucca. The traveller would not do ustice to Andrea oul Sarto, a master of rich colouring were he to confine his attention to that artist's works in the two great Florentine galleries. Sarto's brese es in the Annuncenter (court and clossters) and in the Scalze (History of John the Baptist, p. 391) are among the fibest creations of the emquirente. Such, too, was the stimulus given to the artists of this period by their great contemporaries at Florence that even those of subordinate merit have occasionally produced works of the highest excellence, as for instance, the Salutation of Atherrivelli and the Zenobius pictures of Ripoleo Gerrlandalo in the Uffizi. The last masters of the local Florentine school were Pontorno and Angreo Bronzino

Raphael's style was more particularly influenced by his relations to Fra liartolomimeo and the traveller will find it most interesting to compare their works and to determine to what extent each derived suggestions from the other. The best authenticated works in Italy of Raphael's Florentine period are the Malonna del terminated (Pitti), the Madonna del terminated (I filzi), the Entombinent (Ital Borghese in Rome), the Predelle in the Vation, the portraits of ingels and Maddalena Domi (Pitti), and the Portrait of himself (Uffix.). The Portrait of a Lady in the Pitti gallery is of doubtful ong n. and the Madonna del Baldacchino in the same gallery was only begun by Raphael

When Raphael went to Rome in 1508 he found a large circle Remain of notable artists already congregated there. Some of these Roman were deprived of their employment by his arrival, including the Sienese master Giov. Annonio Bazzi, surnamed it Somonia, whose frescoes in the Farnesina (unfortunately not now ascessible) vio with Raphael's works in tenderness and grace. A stall more numerous circle of pupils however soon assembled around Raphael himself, such as Giulio Romano, Perino del Vaga, An-DREA LA SALERNO POLIDORO DA CARAVAGGIO TIMOTFO DELLA VITE GAROFALO FRAN. PRINT, and GIOVANNI DA I DINE. Attended by this distinguished retaine. Raphael enjoyed all the honours of a prince, although on the Roman art world. Reamante (p. xlit) and Michael Angels occupsed an equally high rank. The latter did not, however, trench on Raphael's province as a painter so much as was formerly supposed, and the jealousy of each other which they are said to have entertained was probably chiefly confined to their respective followers. Raphael had noubtless examined the ceiling of the Sistine with the utmost care, and was indebted to Michae. Angelofor much instruction, but it is very important to note that he no ther followed in the footsteps, nor soffered his native genes to be biassed in the slightest legree by the example of his great rival. A signal proof of this independence is afforded by the Sibyls which he painted in the church of S. Maria della Pare in 1514, and which, though conceived in a very different spirit from the imposing figures in the Sisting are not the less admirable. In order only to appreciate the works produced by Raphae, during his Roman period, the traveller should chiefly direct his attention to the master's frescies. The Stance in the Vatican, the programme for which was obviously changed repeatedly during the progress of the work, the Tapestry. the Lyggie, the fluest work of decorative art in existence, the Dome Messues in S. Maria del Popolo (Capp. Ch.gr), and the Gulutea and With of Popule in the Farnesina together constitute the treasure bequesthed to Rome by the genius of the prince of painters (Parther particulars as to these works will be found in the second vol of this Handbook).

Many, and some of the best, of Raphael's easel-pictures of his Roman period are now beyond the Alps. Italy, however, still possesses the Mademai della Sedii the most in indane, but most harming of his Mademas (Pitti), the Mademai dell' Inquinida (Pitti), the Midomai col Divino Amore (Naples) the Mademai de Foligno and the Transfiguration (in the Vatual), St. teciler Bologna) and the Young St. John (I flizi). The fluest of his portraits are those of Pope Julius II. (P. th., a replica in the Utilizi) and Lee A. with two Circlinats (Pitti), a copy by Andrea del Sarto at Naples). Desides these works we must also mention his Circlinal Bibbiera (Pitti), the Violin-player (in the Pal. Sciarra at Rome), the Fornarina, Raphael's mistress (in the Pal. Barterini at Rome), and the Portrait of a Lindy (Pitti), No. 245), which recalls the Satire Madomia.

After Raphael's death the progress of art did not merely come to a slowdstal but a period of rapid Duckler set in The conquest and plundering of Rome in 1527 entirely paralysed all artistic sites.

for a time. At first this imisfortune proved a boon to other parts of ltaly. Raphael's pupils migrated from Rome to various properties sincial towns. Cit pro Romano, for example, intered the service of the Duke of Mantua, carbenished his palace with paintings, and designed the Palazzo del To., p. 198), while Partagone Delivaria settled at Gen. a Pal. Deria). These offshoots of Raphael's school, however, soon languished, and er long coased to exist

The Northern Schools of Italy, on the other hand, retained their vitality and independence for a somewhat longer period. At Bologna the Iteal style, modified by the reflective of Rasinous of phase, was successfully practised by Bart Raminous, surmained Bagnacavallo (1484-1542). Ferrors boasted of Lodovico Mazzolino (1481-1530), a master of some importance, and Dosso Dossi, and at Verona the reputation of the school was maintained by Glangrane Caroto.

The most important works produced in Northern Italy were those of Antonio Allegai surnamed Correction (14942-1534), and of torrection the Venetian masters. Those who visit Parma oft is Reme and Florence will certainly be disappointed with the pretures of Correggio. They will discover a naturalistic tendency in his works, and they will observe, not only that his treatment of space (as in the perspective painting of dimes) is unrefined, but that his individual figures possess little attraction beyond mere natural charms, and that their want of repose is agt to displease and fatigue the eye. The fact is, that Correggic was not a painter of allembrating genus in Har-reaching culture, but morely an adept in chiaroscuro, who left all the other resources of his art undeveloped.

In examining the principal works of the Venetian School, however, the traveller will experience no such dissatisfaction. I rom the school of Giovanni Bellini p xivi i) emanated the greatest re-VENETIAN. presentatives of Venetian painting Giorgions properly SCHOOL BARBARELIA, 1477-1511), whose works have unfortunately not yet been sufficiently well identified, the elder Palma (1480-1528, and Tiziano Vecellio (1477-1575), who for nearly three quarters of a century maintained his native style at its constinating point. These masters are far from being mere colorists, nor do they owe the r peculiar attraction to local inspiration alone. The enjoyment of lif and pleasure which they so happly pontray is a theme britated by the culture of the Renaissance (a culture possessed in an ensurent degree by Intian, as indicated by his intimicy with the divine Aretino) Their screne and joyous characters often recall some of the ancient gods, showing the manner in which the artists of the Renaissance had profited by the revived study of the antique. Properly to appreciate Titian it is of importance to remember how to tch of his activity was displayed in the service of the different courts. Ris connection with the family of Este began at an early period, he carried on an active intercourse with the Contagns at Mantua, and executed numerous portures for them. Later he basked in the favour of Charles V. and Philip II of Spain. The natural result of this was that the painting of portraits and of a somewhat limited cycle of mythological subjects engressed the greater part of his time and talents. That litian's gentus, however, was by no means alien to religion and deep feeling in art, and that his imagination was as rich and powerful in this field as in pourtraying realistic and sensually attractive forms of existence, is proved by his numerous ecclesiastical paintings, of which the finest are the Martyrdom of St. Lawrence (p. 254), the Presentation in the Temple (p. 236), and the Assumption (p. 233) at Venice. The St. Peter Martyr, another masterpiece, unfortunately fell a prey to the flames

Owing to the soundness of the principles on which the Venetian school was based, there is no wide gulf between its masters of the highest and those of secondary rank, as is so often the case in the other Italian schools, and we accordingly find that works by Lobenzo Lotto, Serastian del Piomno, the Bonifacio's, Porosnone, Paris Bordone, and Tintoretto frequently vie in beauty with those of the more renowned chiefs of their school. Even Paolo Caliari, surnamed Veroness (1528-88), the last great master of his school, shows as yet no trace of the approaching period of decline, but continues to delight the beholder with his delicate silvery tints and the spirit and richness of his compositions (comp. p. 220).

Correggio, as well as subsequent Venetlan masters, were froquently taken as models by the Italian painters of the 17th century, and the influence they exercised could not fail to be detected even by the amateur, if the entire post-Raphaelite Pastop of period were not usually overlooked. Those, however, who make the great chaquecentists their principal study will doubtless be leth to examine the works of their successors. Magnificent decorative works are occasionally encountered, but the taste is offended by the undisguised love of pomp and superficial mannerism which they generally display. Artists no longer earnestly identify themselves with the ideas they embody; they mechanically reproduce the customary themes, they lose the desire, and finally the ability to compose independently. They are, moreover, deficient in taste for beauty of form, which, as is well known, is most attractive when most simple and natural Their technical skill is not the result of mature experience, slowly acquired and justly valued they came into casy possession of great resources of art, which they frivolously and unworthily squander. The quaint. the extravagant, the piquant alone stimulates their tasks : requires, not extellence of workmanship, is their sim. Abundant speciment of this mannerism, exemplified in the works of Luccaso, was exempted in the works of Luccaso, was a second TEMPESTA, and others, are encountered at Rome and Flore (cupols of the cathedral). The fact that several works of this class produce a less unfavourable impression does not alter their general position, as it is not want of talent so much as of consciontiousness which is attributed to these artists.

The condition of Italian art, that of painting at least, improved to some extent towards the close of the 16th century, when there was a kind of second efforescence known in the schools as Second RE- the 'revival of good taste', which is said to have chiefly manifested itself in two directions, the eclectic and the naturalistic. But these are terms of little or no moment in the study of art, and the amateur had better disregard them. This period of art also should be studied historically. The principal architectural monaments of the 17th century are the churches of the Jesuits, which unquestionably produce a most imposing effect; but the historical enquirer will not easily be dazzled by their meretricious magnideence. He will perceive the absence of organic forms and the impropriety of combining totally different styles, and he will steel himself against the gorgeous, but monotonous attractions of the paintings and other works of the same period. The bright Renalssance is extract, simple pleasure in the natural and human is obliterated A gradual change in the views of the Italian public and in the position of the church did not fail to influence the tendencies of art, and in the 17th century artists again devoted their energies more immediately to the service of the church. Devotional pictures now became more frequent but at the same time a sensual, naturalistic element gained ground. At one time it veils itself in beauty of form, at another it is manifested in the representation of voluptions and passionate emotions; classic dignity and noble symmetry are never attained Crist. Alliont's Judith should be compared with the beauties of Titran, and the frescoes of ANNIBALE CARRACCI in the Palazzo Farnese with Raphael's ceiling-paintings in the Farnesina, in order that the difference between the 10th and 17th centuries may be clearly understood; and the enquirer will be still farther aided by consulting the coeval Italian poetry, and observing the development of the lyric drama or opera. The poetry of the period thus formishes a key to the mythological representations of the School of the Carracci. Gems of art, however, were not unfrequently produced during the 17th century, and many of the free oes of this period are admirable such as those by trutho KKNI and DOMENICHING at Rome. Beautiful oil-paintings by various masters are also preserved in the Italian galleries. Besides the public collections of Bologna, Naples, and the Vatican and Capitol, the private galleries of Rome are of great importance. The so called gallery pie es, figures and scenes designated by imposing titles and painted in the prevailing taste of the 17th century, were readily rereired, and indeed most appropriately placed in the palaces of the Boman nobles, most of which owe their origin and devoration to that age. This retreat of art to the privacy of the apartments of the great may be regarded as a symptom of the universal withdrawal of the Italians from public life. Artists, too, henceforth occupy an isolated position, unchecked by public opinion, exposed to the caprices of amateurs, and themselves inclined to an arbitrary deportment Several qualities, however, still exist of which Italian artists are never entirely divested; they retain a certain address in the arrangement of figures, they preserve their reputation as ingenious derorators, and understand the art of occasionally imparting an ideal impress to their pictures; even down to a late period in the 18th century they excel in effects of colour, and by devoting attention to the province of genre and landscape-painting they may boast of having extended the sphere of their native art. At the same time they cannot conceal the fact that they have lost all faith in the ancient ideals, that they are incapable of new and earnest tasks. They breathe a close, academic atmosphere, they no longer labour like their predecessors in an independent and healthy sphere, and their productions are therefore devoid of absorbing and permanent interest.

This slight outline of the decline of Italian art brings us to the close of our brief and imperfect historical sketch, which, be it again observed, is designed merely to guide the eye of the enlightened traveller, and to aid the uninitiated in independent discrimination and research.

Soon after quitting Paris the train crosses the Marne, near its confluence with the Seine, and near the station of Charenton, the lunatic asylum of which is seen on an eminence to the left. To the right and left of (4½ M.) Maisons-Alfort rise the forts of Irry and Charenton, which here command the course of the Seine. 3½ M. Villeneuve St. Georges is picturesquely situated on the slope of a wooded hill.

The beautiful green dale of the Yeres is now traversed. Picturesque country houses, small parks, and thriving mills are passed in rapid succession.

11 M Montgeron. The chain of hills to the left, and the plain are studded with innumerable dwellings. Before (13 M.) Bruney is reached the train crosses the Yères, and beyond the village passes over a viaduct commanding a beautiful view

The train now enters the plain of La Bric. 161 4 M. Combes-la-Vitte, 191 4 M. Lieusumt, 24 M. Cesson. The Seine is again reached and crossed by a handsome iron bridge at -

28 M Molun (Grand Monarque, Hôtel de France), the capital of the Département de Seine et Marne, an ancient town with 11 200 inhab., the Roman Methalum, or Methalum, picturesquely situated on an eminence above the river, ¹ 2 M. from the station. The church of Notre Dame, dating from the 11th cent., the church of St. Aspais, of the 14th cent, and the modern Gothic Hôtel-de-Ville are fine edifices.

After affording several picturesque glimpses of the Seme valley, the train enters the forest of Fontainehlean. 32 M. Bois-le-Roy.

37. M Fontaineblean (Hôtels de France et d'Angleterre, de l'Europe, de la Chancellerie, de Londres, de l'Aigle Noir, du Cadran Bleu et :) is a quiet place with broad, clean streets (11,600 inhab.) The Palme, an extensive pur, containing five courts, le almost exclusively indebted for its present form to Francis I. de l'Alle and abounds in interesting historical reminiscences. The Fontaines series of handsome saloons and apartments (lee l'17).

BARDERER, Italy 1. 5th Edit.

occupies an area of 42,500 acres (50 M in circumfer, account affords many delightful walks (For farther details, see Bacacker's Paris)

40 M Thomery is celebrated for its piscions graps (Chasselas de Fontainebleau) 41' 9 M Moret picturesquely situated on the Long which here falls into the Seine, has a Cothic church of the 12th-15th cent and a ruined château once occupied by Sully. To the right runs the railway to Montargia, Nevers, Moulins, and Vichy. The line crosses the valley of the Long by a viaduct of thirty arches.

491/2 M. Montereau (Grand Monarque, Buffet, picturesquely situated at the confluence of the Seine and Fonne (Branch-line to Flambon, a station on the Paris and Troyes line)

The train ascends the broad and weil cultivated valley of the Youne, Stat Villeneuve-la-Guard, Champigny, Pent-sur-Youne.

721,2 M. Sens (Hôtels de l'hru, de Paris), the ancient capital of the Senones, who under Brenous plundered Rome in B.C. 390, is a quiet town with 12,000 inhabitants. The early Gothic *Cathedral (St. Etienna), dating chiefly from the 13th cent, is an imposing edifice, though somewhat unsymmetrical and destitute of ornament.

Next stations Villeneuve-sur-Yonne, St. Julien du Sault, Cézy. 90 M. Joigny (Due de Bourgogne), the Journacum of the Romans, is a picturesque and ancient town (6300 inhab.) on the Yonne. 96 M. Laroche lies at the confluence of the Yonne and Armançon, and on the Canal de Bourgogne Branch-line hence to Auterre

About 6 M from St. Florentin is the Cistercian Abbey of Pentigny, where Thomas à Becket passed two years of his exite. Langton. Archbishop of Canterbury, banished by King John, and other English prelates have also sought a retreat within its walls.

122 M Tonnerre (Lion d'Or, Rail Restaurant), a town with 5500 inhab, picturesquely situated on the Armançon The church of St Pierre, on an eminence above the town, built in the 12th-16th cent., commands a pleasing prospect. — Chables, 81 g M to the S.W., is noted for its white wines

127 M. Tantay boasts of a fine château in the Renaissance style, founded by the brother of Admiral Coligny. At Ancy-te-Franc there is a very handsome Château, erected in the 16th cent from designs by Primat.ceio. From stat Nuits-sous-Ravières a branch-line runs to Châtellon-sur-Seine. Monthard, birthplace of Buffon (1707-1788), the great naturalist, contains his château and a monument to his memory. 159 M. Les Laumes.

Beyond Blowy-Bas the line penetrates the watershed (1326 ft.) between the Seine and the Rhone by a tunnel, 2½ M long. Between this point and Dijon is a succession of viaducts, cuttings, and tunnels Beyond stat Malam, with its ruined chateau, the line enters the picturesque valley of the Ouche, bounded on the 18th b) the slopes of the Côte d'Or. Stations velure, Plombitues.

I Route 3

197 M. Dijon (Hôtels de la Cloche, de Bourgogne du Jura; Buffet,, with 48,000 inhab, the ancient Divio, once the capital of Burgundy, now that of the Département de la Côte d'Or, lies at the confluence of the Ouche and the Souzon. The dukes of Burgundy resided here down to the death of Charles the Bold in 1477

The Rue Guillaume leads from the station to the Hölel de Ville, once the ducal palace, but remodelled in the 17th and 18th centuries. The two towers and the Salle des Gardes are almost the only ancient parts. The Museum containing valuable collections of pictures, antiquities engravings, etc., is open to the public on Sundays, 12-4, on Thurslays, 12-2, and daily on payment of a fee

*Notre Dame, to the N. of the Hôtel de Ville, is a Gothic church of the 13th cent, of very picturesque exterior. The principal portal is a beautiful Gothic composition. The interior is also interesting. One of the chapels of the transept contains a black image of the Virgin dating from the 11th or 12th century.

St. Bénigne, the cathedral, to the S. of the Porte Guillaume, an interesting building, was erected in 1271-88. The plan resembles that of Byzantine churches. The two towers in front are covered with conical roofs, and a wooden spire, 300 ft. in height, rises over the transept.

In the vicinity are St. Philibert, of the 12th cent., now a magazine, and St. Jean, of the 15th cent, disfigured with bad paintings.

The Castle, to the N. of the Porte Guillaume, now in a half-reined condition, was erected by Louis XI. in 1478-1512, and afterwards used as a state-prison. Beyond the Porte Saint Bernard stands the modern Statue of St. Bernard (d. 1153), who was born at Fontaine, a village near Dijon

D.jon is the centre of the wine-trade of Upper Burgundy; the growths of Gevroy, including Chambertin, and of Vougeot. Nuite, and Beaune are the most esteemed.

During the Franco-German war of 1870-71 Dijon was twice

Occupied by the Germans

Dijon is the junction of the line via Dôle and Mouchard to Pontacher, where it diverges to the left (N.E.) to Neuchatel, and to the right (S.E.)

to Lausanne (Genera) and Sierre. Comp R. 3.

The line to Macon crosses the Ouche and the Canal de Bourgogne (p 2), and skirts the sunny vineyards of the Côte d'Or, which produce the choicest Burgundy wines. At Vougeot is the famous Cloa-Vougeot vineyard. Near Nuits-sous-Beaune a battle was fought between the Germans and the French in Dec. 1870.

2181 2 M Beaune Hotel de France, with 11,000 inhab, on the Bouzeuse, deals largely in Burgundy wines. Notre Dome, a church of the 12th and 15th cent, has a fine but mutilated posters.

2221/2 M. Meursault. From Chagny a branch-line diverges to Autum. Nevers, and Creuzot. The train passes through a tong under the Canal du Centre, which connects the Sains and the Latender the valley of the Thalic. Stat. Fontaines.

238 M Châlon-sur-Saône : Hôtels du Chevreuil, du Commerce), with 20,900 mhab , situated at the junction of the Canal du Centre with the Saone, contains little to interest the travener. The express trains do not touch Châlon, the branch-line to which disverges from the junction Châlon St Cosme, Branch-lines hence to Lons-le-Saulmer and to Dôte.

The line follows the right bank of the Saône, to the left in the distance rises the Jura, and in clear weather the snowy summit of Mont Blanc, upwards of 100,M distant, is visible 254 M Tournas (5500 inhab) possesses a fine abbey-church (St. Philibert)

274 M Macon, *Hotels de l'Europe, des Champs Engées de Sau-ige, Buffet the capital of the Department of the Saone and Loire, with 18,000 inhab, is another great centre of the wine-trude. The remains of the cathedral of St. Vincent are partly in the Romanesque style. Macon was the birthplace of Lamartine — The line to Culox (Geneva, Turm) diverges here to the left; see R, 2

The line continues to follow the right bank of the Saône Scenery pleasing. The stations between Macon and Lyons, thirteen in number, present little to interest the traveller.

318 M Lyons, see p 5

From Strassburg to Belfort, 10 M, express in 5th hrs., fares 14 m, 10, 10 m. 30 pf. From Belfort to Lyons 207 M in 12 hrs., fares 41 fr. 15, 3th fr. 85 cm. Strassburg tand from Rale) to Milhausen, see Buedeker's Rame. The torman front or station, 83th M. from Strassburg, is Alministered, and the Errech frontier station is (20 M) Belfort where the Paris line averges. Belfort (2000 inhab), a fortress on the Suron-reuse errected by Vandam under Louis XIV was taken by the tormans after a protracted slege in Fc. 1871. The train now traverses a picturesque, undo along district, 10 the left rise the spars of the Jura. At Hericant severa, (apagements to k place between Gen. Were it saming and the French under B urbaki in Jan 1871. Stat. Monthebard belonged to the German Empire down to 1798. Beyond stat. Venjancourt the line follows the Dombs, which it crosses several times. Beyond stat. Liste sur-te-Dombs the train passes through several tunnels. A number of comportant stations, then —

100 M Benangon ("Hôtel du Nord: Hôtel de Paris), the ancient Vescontio, capita, of the Franche Comte, with 4,,000 inhab, a strongly fortified place in attending basin on the Doubs, which flows round the lown and once rendered it an important minimary point, as described by

Casar (De Bell Gall 1, 38).

The M. Sein, established in a modern building in the Place de I Abendance, contains a Christ on the Cross by Durer and a Descent from the Cross by Bronzin. The Library, founded in 1694, contains to 000 vos and about 1800 MSS. The Pata's Granelle, a Landsome structure in the Renaissance style, was built in 1930 to. The Cathabara of St. Jan contains pointings by Schastian del Piombo and the hart time. An admirable view is obtained from the Citadel, which was constructed by Van an. The Pete Nove, a triumphal arch, and the Ports Taillee on the eiger riginally part is an a quedicit, are interesting it man remains 184 M. Monchard, junction of the lines from Dijeo and Dib., and from Pontariar (Na ichatel and Lausanne). At (215 M.) Loss to Saidness time diverges to Châlog.

Lyons, the ancient Lugudanum, which after the time of Augustus gave its name to one third part of Gaul, and the birthplace of the Roman emperors Claudius and Caligula is now the second city, and the most important manufacturing place in France, with 325 000 inhab, silk being its great staple commodity. Lyons is an archiepiscopal see. As an episcopal residence it is mentioned as early as the 2nd century

The situation of the city at the confluence of the Rhone and Soone is imposing. The Saone is crossed by ten, the Rhone by seven bridges. Lyons is one of the best built towns in France. Great alterations have taken place within the last 30 years, so that the general aspect of the city is modern. It consists of three distinct portions, the original town on the tangue of land between the Rhone and Saone, the suburbs of Les Broteaux and La Guillotière on the left bank of the Rhone, and the suburb of Vaise on the right bank of the Saone. The military defences of the city consist of a wide girdle of eighteen forts.

The beauty of the situation and the extent of the city are best appreciated when viewed from the Height of Fourvière (Pl 25, E, 4), crowned by its conspicuous church. The bill is ascended by several different paths, and also by a wire-rope railway, which starts near the Cathédrale St. Jean (Pl, 41 · F, 1). On the slope are a number of fragments of Roman masonry. With a plantage attached to them, which however are not to be implicitly accessed the church of Notre Dame de Fourvière (Pl, 2011), a constant of the church of Notre Dame de Fourvière (Pl, 2011), a constant gin (visited by upwards of Π_{12} million pilgrims annually) and numerous votive tablets. The tower commands a magnificent Visw (see 25 c., visitors may ascend to the statue); and a still finer prospect may be obtained from the neighbouring Observatory (see 50 c., restaurant). At the feet of the spectator lie the imposing city, with the two rivers and their bridges, and the well cultivated diswict in the neighbourhood, to the E in fine weather Mont Blanc, 90 M distant, is sometimes visible, farther S the Alps of Dauphine, the Mts of the Grande Chartreuse and Mont Pilat, and to the W the Mts of Auvergne

The Cathedral of St. Jean Baptiste (Pl. 41; E. 4) on the right bank of the Naone, adjoining the Palais de Justice, dates from the 12th-14th centuries. The Bourbon chapel (1st on the right), erected by Cardinal Bourbon and his brother Pierre de Bourbon, son-in-law of Louis XI, contains some fine sculptures.

On the left bank of the Saone, about 1/2 M lower down, is situated the church of the Abbey d'Amay (Pl 24, F, 4), one of the oldest in France, dating from the 10th cent., the vaulting of which is borne by four antique columns of granite

In the Place des Terremax (Pl. D. 3) in which the Hotel de Ville and the Museum are situated. Richelten caused the youthful Marquis de Cinq-Mars, who for a short period was the favourite of Louis XIII., and his partisan De Thou to be executed as traitors, 12th Sept., 1642. Numerous victims of the Revolution perished here by the guillotine in 1794, after which the more wholesale system of drowning and shooting was introduced. The Hotel de Ville (Pl. 62), a handsome edifice built by Maupin in 1647-55, has been recently restored.

The Palais des Beaux Aris, or Museum (Pl. 69, D. 3), is open to visitors from 11 to 4, on Sundays and Thursdays gratis, on other days for a gratuity (25-30 c. in each of the different sections).

Under the arcades of the spacious Court, are some remarkable Reman antiquities, a tauroholium (sacrifice of oven), alters, inscriptions, sculptures, etc.

The Picture Gallery is on the first floor Salle des Anciens Maithes in the centre four Roman mosaics, representing Orpheus, Cupid and Pan, and the games of the circus. Among the pictures may be in utilized Technology. The Message Palma Giovane, Scolleging of Christ, Picture Peruguo, Ascension, one of this master's finest works, painted in 1495 for the cathedral of Perigia, and presented to the town by Pius VII., Sebastian del Piombo, Christ reposing, Guereno Circumcistan, Peruguo, ES James and Gregory, "Old copy of Dürer's Magania and Child best wing bouquels of ross so in the Emp Maximilian and his consort, a calebrated picture containing numerous figures paonted by the master for the German merchants at Venice in 1506 (p. 247, riginal at Prague). There are also works by Rubens and Jirdeens, A del Saito, the farrace, and of his On the floor above the Galends des Petstaks Lyonals—Boungfond, Portrait of Jacquard, inventor of the improved hoom, burn at Lyons in 1752, died 1834; Paul and Hippolyte Planding, and others

The Meses Ancienococique, also on the first floor, contains the branen Tables Claudiennes, or tablets (found in 1528) with the speech delivered by the Emperor Claudius before the Senate at Rome in the year 48, in defence of the measure of bestowing citizenship on the Gauls, in the central saloon, antique and medigeval bronzes, come, trinkets, and various curiosities — There is also a Musée & Histoire Naturalle here, and a Library.

The second floor of the Palais du Commerce et de la Bourse (Pl. 68; D. 3) contains the Musée d'Art et d'Industrie, founded in 1858; the specimens in illustration of the sisk-culture are particularly instructive.

The Crew Library (Pl. 6; D. 3) possesses 180,000 vols. and 2400 MSS. In the neighbouring Place Tholoran rises the bronze Statue of Marshal Suchet, 'Due d'Albufera' (born at Lyons 1770, d. 1826), by Dumont, and the Place Sathonay (Pl. D. 4) is adorned with a fountain and a statue of Jacquard (see above), executed by Foyatier.

Two magnificent new streets, the Rue de Lyon (Pl. D. E. 3) and the Rue de l'Hôtel de Ville (Pl. D. E. 3) lead from the Hôtel de Ville to the *Place de Bellecour (formerly Louis le Grand, Pl. E. 3), one of the most spacious squares in Europe, and adorued with an Equestrian Statue of Louis XIV, by Lemot. — The Rue de Bourbon leads thence to the Place Perrache with the station of that name, abutting on the wide Cours du Midi (Pl. F. 4), which is planted with rows of trees

Beyond the station, and occupying the point of the tongue of land between the rivers, is the suburb Perrache, named after its founder (1770), and rapidly increasing in extent. (From the station to the confluence of the rapid Rhone and stuggish Saöne, 11, M.)

If time permits, the traveller should visit the *Parc de la Tête d'Or, on the left bank of the Rhone (Pl B, C, 1, 2, 1 M from the Place des Terreaux), laid out in 1857, and containing rare plants, hothouses, and pleasure-grounds in the style of the Bois de Boulogne at Paris.

The RAILWAY TO MARSEILLES (Gare de Perrache) descends the valley of the Rhone, which flows on our right.

337 M Vienne (Hôtel du Nord., Hôtel de la Poste), the Vienne Allabregum of the ancients, with 24,800 inbab., lies on the left bank of the Rhone, at the influx of the Gère. Several interesting mementoes of its former greatness are still extant. The so-called *Temple of Augustus, of the Corinthian order (58 ft. long. 49 ft. wide, 56 ft. high), with 16 columns, and hexastyle portico, is approached from the ancient forum by twolve steps, in the middle of which stands an altar. The temple was used in the middle ages as a church, but has been restored as nearly as possible to its original condition. The ancient abbey-church of *St. Pierre, of the 6th cent., altered in the 18th and now restored, contains a museum of Roman antiquities — The *Cathedral of St. Mouries (Schwerz, September of Augustus and the bridge across the Rhone) began temple of Augustus and the bridge across the Rhone (Schwerz, Species) alone of the 11th cent., but not completed till 1515, possible close of the 11th cent., but not completed till 1515, possible close of the 11th cent., but not completed till 1515.

the façade of the transition period. On the high road, '4 M S of the town, stands an archway surmainted by an obelisk called the *Plan de l'Aiguille, which once served as the meta (goal) of a circus.

A small part only of Vienne is visible from the railway, which passes under the town by a tunnel Immediately beyond the town rises the Plan de l'Aiguille, mentioned above. The banks of the Rhone rise in gentle slopes, planted with vines and fruit-trees. On the right bank, at some distance from the river, towers Mont Pilot (3750 ft.), a picturesque group of mountains, at the base of which lie the colebrated vineyards of La Côte Rôtie - 356 M. St Rambert d Alle n (branch-line to Grenoble) - 3731 M. Tain, where the vailey of the Rhone contracts, on the left rises the extensive vineyard of Ermitage, where the well known wine of that name is produced. In the distance to the left the indented spurs of the Aips are conspicuous, above which in clear weather the gigantic Mont Blane is visible Tain is connected by means of a suspension-bridge with Tournon, on the opposite bank, a small town with picturesque old castles of the Counts of Tournen and Dukes of Soubise

On our left, in the direction of the Little St Bernard, now opens the broad valley of the turbid leère, which is also traversed by a railway to Grenoble. In September, B. C. 218, Hannibal ascended this valley with his army, and crossed the Little St. Bernard into Italy.

384 M Valence, Hôtel de France), the Valentia of the anciente, once the capital of the Duchy of Valentinois, with which the infamous Casar Borgia was invested by Louis XII, is now the chief town of the Department of the Drôme, with 20,000 inhabitants — (In the right bank lies St. Peray, famous for its wine.

411 M Montétonar The ancient eastle of the once celebrated Monteil d'Adhémar family rises on an eminence from the midst of mulherry-tr es. The line here quits the Rhone; the plain on

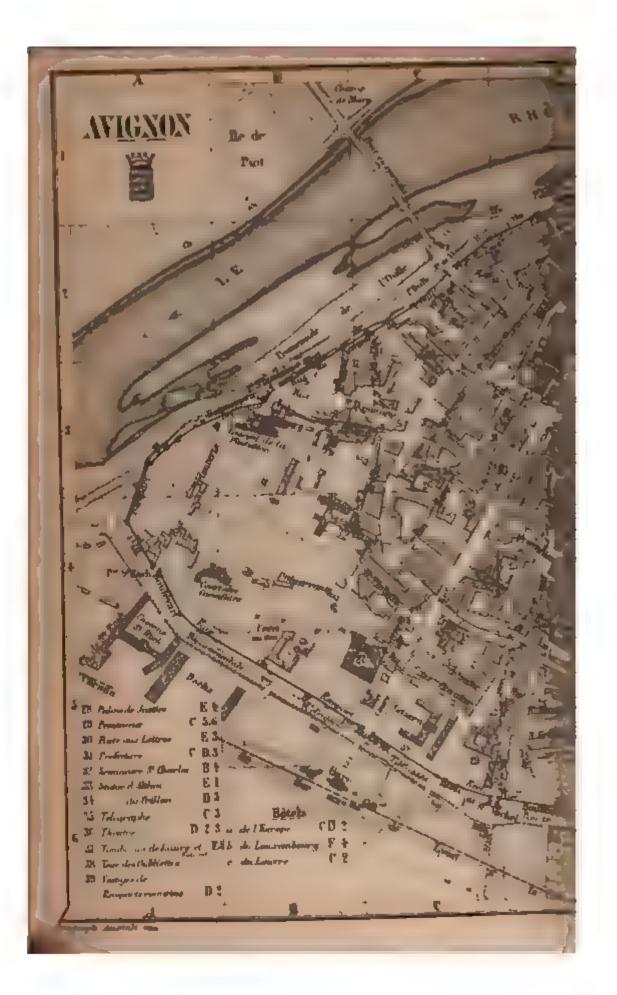

443 M Orange (*Hôtet de la Poste), 3 M from the Rhone, the Arause of the Romans and once a prosperous and important place. In the middle ages it was the capital of a small principality, which, on the death of the last reigning prince without issue in 1531, fell to his nephew the Count of Nassau, and until the death of William III. (d. 1702), King of England, continued subject to the house of Nassau-Orange. By the Peace of Utrecht, Orange was annexed to France, and the house of Nassau retained the title only of princes of Orange. The antiquarian should if possible devote a few hours to the interesting Roman remains at Orange. On the road to Lyons, ½ M. N. of the town, is a *Triumphal Arch, with three archways and twelve columns, probably dating from the close of the 2nd century. On the S. side of the town, at the foot of an eminence, lies the *Roman Theatre, 118 ft in height, 338 ft in length, with wells 13 ft. in thickness (concierge 1/2-1 ft). The admirably preserved wall of the stage still contains the three doors by which the actors entered, most of the tiers of seats for the spectators, however, have entirely disappeared. The acoustic arrangement of the structure is admirable. Scanty remnants of a Circus adjoin the theatre. The height above the theatre, once occupied by the citadel of Orange which was destroyed by Louis XIV., affords a good survey of the neighbourhood. On the promenade is a statue of the Comte de tiasparm (d. 1862).

Reyond Orange the line traverses a plain, at a considerable distance from the Rhone and the mountains, where olives begin to indicate the proximity of a warmer climate — From , 455 M) Sorgues a branch-line runs to Curpentres (10½ M , Hôt de la Poste), the Palais de Justice of which contains a Triumphal Arch

C. 48. It afterwards belonged to the Burgundians, then to the Franks, became the capital of the County of Venaisin, lost its independence to Louis VIII. in 1226, fell into the hands of Charles of Anjou in 1290, was the residence of the popes from 1309 to 1377, seven of whom from Clement V. to Gregory XI., reigned here (the latter transferred his sent to Rome in 1377), and continued subject to the pontifical sway until it was annexed to France by the Revolution in 1791. The population sunk from 70,000 to the reign of Louis XIV to 17,000 at the Revolution, but has again increased to 38,000.

The town lies on the left bank of the Rhone, a little above the influx of the Durance, and is connected with Villencure on the opposite bank by a suspension-bridge. The old city walls, constructed in 1349-68 of massive blocks of stone, with towers at intervals of 100-150 yds., are admirably preserved and testify to the former importance of the place

The town is common led by the abrupt Rocher des Doms (rup s dominorum), 300 ft. in height, which is surmounted by the Cathedral of Notre Dame (Pl 10), a structure of the 14th cent, recently restored. The portion is of considerably earlier origin. The church contains the handsome *Monument of Pope John XXII. (Euse of Cahors, d 1334), and that of Benedict XII (d 1342) in the left aisle. The square tower behind the Cathedral, called La Glacière, was formerly employed as a prison of the Inquisition, and during the Days of Terror in 1791 became the place of cution of several innocent victims of the Revolution.

In the vicinity of the cathedral rises the *Papat Palace (P) 3; E. 2), now used as a barrack, a lofty and gloomy pile, exceed

Clement V and his successors, with huge towers and walls 100 ft in height. The faded frescoes in the Chapette du St. Office were executed by Simone Memori of Siena (d. 1339). Rienzi was incarcerated here in 1351 in the Tour des Oubliettes, at the same time that Petrarch was entertained in the palare as a guest.

Pleasant grounds have been laid out on the hill near the cathedrai. The best point of view is a rocky eminence in the centre. The Prospect, one of the most beautiful in France, embraces the course of the Rhone and its banks, Villeneuve on the opposite bank, with its citadel and ancient towers, in the distance towards the N.W the Cevennes; N.E. Mont Ventoux; E. the Durance, resembling a silver thread, and beyond it the Alps, below the spectator the tortuous and antiquated streets of Avignon. On the promenades is a statue to Jean Althen, erected in 1846, out of gratitude to him for having in 1766 introduced the cultivation of madder, which now forms the staple commodity of the district (used extensively in dyeing the French red military trowsers)

At the base of the Rocher des Doms lies the Place de l'Hôtel de Ville (Pl. D., 3), with a number of handsome modern edifices. In front of the Theatre (Pl. 36) are statues of Racine and Molière; the medallions above represent John XXII. and Petrarch. The adjoining Hôtel de Ville (Pl. 24) possesses a quaint clock with figures which strike the hours. In front of it stands a Statue of Critical (Pl. 34), creeted in 1858 to this celebrated soldier (d. at Avignon in 1015), the pedestal bears his motto, 'Fats ton devour'

In the Rue Calade is the "Musée Calect (Pl 26, C, 3, open daily, custodian 1 fr.), containing a few ancient pictures, numerous works of the Vernet family, who were natives of Avignon (Joseph, the painter of sea-pieces, his son Carle, and his celebrated grand-on Horace, several small works of art, coins, etc.— The Library iontains 80,000 vols, and 2000 MSS.

In the garden at the back of the Museum a monument was erected in 1823 by Mr. Charles Kensall to the memory of Petrarch's Laura. Her tomb was formerly in the Eglise des Cordeliers, but was destroyed with the church during the Revolution.

In 1326, Francesco Percarca, then 22 years of age, visited Avignon, and beheld Laura de Noves, who was in her 18th year, at the church of the numbers of St Centre. Her beauty impressed the ardent young Italian's prifoundly, that, although he never received the sughtest token of regard from the object of his remantic attachment, either before or after her marriage with flugues de Sade, he continued throughout his whose affiliance with flugues de Sade, he continued throughout his quitted Avi, non for value use, travelled in France, Germany, and Italy, and returned to Avignon in 1342 (with his fraction that de Italy) where he found Laura the in their of a numerous family. She died in 1348, bowed down by domestic affliction. Petrarch lived till 1374, and long after Laura's death dedicated many touching lines to her members.

The long and intimate connection of Avignon with Rome, as well as its reminiscences of Petrarch, may be said to invest the town with an almost Italian character. The whole of Proceed indeed recalls the scenery of the south more than any other district in France

Avignon is a very windy place The prevailing Mestral often blows with great violence, and has given rise to the ancient saying:

Aremo ventosa, Sine vento venenosa, Cum rento fastidiosa

The Pourtains of Valchase may easily be visited in the course of an afternoon with the aid of the Avignon Cavallion branch railway. After several unimportant statems, the train reaches histensur Rorque (in 11% hr., fares 2 fr. 90, 2 fr. 20, 1 fr. 65 c.). Thence drive or wask up the valley of the Sorgue, following its sincosities towards Mont Ventoux, to the (3 M.) village of Fanciuse (Hotel de Laure). A footpath leads hence in 14 hr. into the Vanciuse ravine a rocky gorge, above which the rained castle of the Bishops of Cavallion rises on the right. At its extensity the sources of the Sisque emerge from a profound grotto, at one time in precipitate haste, at another in gentle ripples. This spot is mentimed by Petrarch in his 14th Canzone, 'Chiare, fresche e dolel acque.

Soon after quitting Avignon the train crosses the broad bed of the often impetuous and turbid Durance, the Roman Drucatia.

474 M Tarascon (Hôtel des Empereurs), with 12,100 inhab., once the seat of King Réné of Anjou, the great patron of minstrelsy, whose lofty old castle and above it the Gothic spire of the church of St. Marthe (14th cent.) arrest the traveller's attention.— On the opposite bank, and connected with Tarascon by a bridge, is situated the busy town of Beaucaire, commanded by an ancient castle of the Counts of Toulouse.

This magnificent retic belongs to the time of Casar. Adjacent to it is a half ruined Triumphul Arch, also adorned with sculptures.

Nimes, the ancient Aemousus, capital of the Gallie Arccomari, and one of the most important places in Gallia Narloneusis, is now the chief town of the Department of the Gard. The town which numbers 15,000 Protestants among its present population of 50 GMs, has several times been the scene of florce religious struggles, especially during the reign of Louis XIV.

The town is surrounded by pleasant Boulevards which termin ate in the Englande adorned with a handsome modern fountains group erepresentage the city of Nemausus, with feur river-deitios - The *Museum, in the Ruc St. Antonic contains a collection of Roman autoparties (r h in inser ptions) a library, and about 200 pictures, including several good works classly by modern French artists.

From Tarascon (p. 11) to Arless the railway skirts the left bank of the Rhone. The country, which is flat, and planted with the vine and clive, presents a marked southern character. 483 M Arles *Hôtel du Nord, Hôtel du Forum, the Arctate of Arctas of the ancients, once one of the most important towns in Gaul, is now a somewhat dull place (26,400 inhab) on the Rhone, 24 M. from its mouth—It is connected with Tranquetaille on the opposite bank by a bridge of boats.

The principal sights of Arles, for which 3-4 hrs suffice, are all within easy distance from the hotels to the E St. Trophime, the extensive Museum, and the Theatre of Augustus. N. the Amphitheatre, and S.E. the Champs-Elysées.

In the Place of the Hôtel de Ville, which was erected in 1673, rises an *Obelisk of grey granite from the mines of Estrelle near Fréjus (p. 19), an ancient monument of unknown origin found in the Rhone in 1676.

In the vicinity stands the *Cathedral of St. Trophime (Trophimus is said to have been a pupil of St. Paul), founded in the 6th or 7th cent, possessing an interesting Romanesque *Portai of the 12th or 13th cent, of semicircular form, supported by twelve columns resting on hous, between which are apostles and saints (St. Trophimus, St. Stephen, etc.) above it Christ as Judge of the world.

The Interior contains little to interest the visitor, with the exception of several succeptage and pictures — On the S side (entered from the successty) are the "Choistaks, with round and pointed arches and remarkable capitals, dating from various epichs. The N. side is in the base autoque siyes of the Carlovingian period (9th cont.), the E side dates from 1221, the W side (the most beautiful) from 1389, and the 3.

side from the 18th century

The *Museum, established in the old church of St. Anna, contains numerous antiquities found in and near Arles. The following relics deserve special mention. *Head of Diana (or Venus). Augustrs (found in 1834); recumbent Silenus with pipe, once used as a fountain-figure; and sarcophagi from the ancient burlal-ground (see below), etc.

The *Theotre (commonly called that of 'Augustus'), a most picture sque rain, is in a very dilapidated condition. The most perfect part is the stage-wall, which according to the ancient arrangement had three doors. In front of it was a colonnade, of which two columns one of African, the other of Carrara marble, are still standing. The opening for the letting down of the curtain is distinctly recognisable. The orchestra, paved with slabs of variegated marble, contained the seats of persons of rank. The lower tiers only of the seats of the ordinary spectators are preserved.

The theatre once possessed a second stry indications of which are observed when the run is viewed from the Saracens' Tower on the direction of the public prominade. The dimensions of the handing when perfect were very extensive chreadth from N. 10 S. 337; ft.), and the effect it produces is extremely striking.

The "Amphitheatre is larger than that of Nimes (p. 12), but to inferior preservation. It is about 500 yds in circumference the longer axis is 150 yds, the shorter 116 yds, long, the arena 75 yds long and 43 yds wide. It possessed two corridors and forty-three tiers of seats, holding 25,000 spectators. The two stories of 60 arches, the lower being Dorie, the upper Corinthian, present a most imposing aspect. The entrance is on the N side.

The Isterior (the conclerge lives opposite the N entrance, was for merly occupied by a number of dwellings tenanted by poor families but these have been almost entirely removed since 1840-47. After the Roman period the amphitheatre was empty ved by the toths, then by the Sara cens and again by Charles Martel (who expelled the latter to 739), as a stronghold, two of the four towers of which are still standing. A scarceso of 13 steps ascends the W tower, which commands a preasing survey of the neighbourhed. The vanils beneath the lowest her of scale served as receptacles for the wild beasts, the gladiators etc. They communicated with the arena by means of six doors. The spectators of high rank occupied the front scale and were protected from the alcacks of the wild animose by a lefty parapet. Bloodless bull fights are now occasion ally exhibited here.

In the Place du Forum, the site of the ancient market-place, two grante pillars and fragments of a Corinthian pediment are still seen (near the Hôtel du Nord).

On the S E side of the town are the Champs Elysées (Aliscamps), originally a Roman burying-ground, consecrated by St Trophimus and furnished by him with a chapel. In the middle ages this cemetery enjoyed such celebrity that bodies were conveyed hith r for separture from vast distances. It is mentioned by Dante in his Inferno (9, 112) 'Si come ad Arti, ove Rodane stagna, . fanne is expolere tutto il toco varo'. ('As at Aries where the Rhone is dammed, the graves make the whole ground uneven'.) To this day many ancient sarcophagi are still to be seen in the environs of the curious old church, although after the first Revolution great numbers were sold to relic-hunters from all parts of the world.

From Artes to Mostfettier (p. 13) a branch-line runs in 1° 2 hr.
Bel w Arles begins the flat delta of the estuary of the Rhone called the He de ta Comarque. It is protected against the incursions of the sea by dykes, and is employed party as arable and party as pasture land, which supports numerous theks and herds. A canal, constructed in 1864-71, admits vessels to the estuary of the Rhone, which had previously been inaccessible.

Between Arles and Salon the line intersects the stony plain of Crau, which the ancients mention as the scene of the contest of Hercules with the Ligures Near St. Channas the line skirts the long Etany de Berre, an extensive inland lake on the right. From (519 M.) Roynac a branch-line diverges to Air, the ancient Aquae Sextine. Beyond, 525 M.) Pas-des-Lanciers the train traverses the longest tunnel in France, nearly 3 M. in length, on emerging from which it passes some grand rocky scenery. The docks and quays (comp. plan) are very extensive. The harbour has been extended to four times its former size since 1850, notwithstanding which there is still a domand for increased accommodation. In 1863 the Pert de la Johette was added to the Ancien Port, and is now the starting-point of most of the steamboats. The Bassin du Lazaret and d Arene were added next, in 1856 the Bassin Napoléon (now National), and recently the Bassin de la Gare Maritime. Other extensions are projected.

The old harbour is long and narrow. Its entrance is defended by the forts of St. Jean and St. Acolas. — Near the former is the Consigne (Pl 6 D. 5, entrance by the gate, fee 50 c), or office of the 'Intendance Sanitaire' (quarantine authorities).

A few pares farther N. is the (athedrol (P), (, D, 5), a new edifice constructed of alternate courses of black and white stone, in a mixed Byzantine and Romanesque style. The towers are surmounted by domes, designed by Vaudoyer. The terrace commands a pleasant survey of the Bassin de la Joliette. — To the E, in front of the old harbour, is the former 'Résidence Impériale', now Château du Pharo, a hospital (Pl. E, 5). In the vicinity are the sea-baths (p. 16).

*La Cannebiere (Pl. D., 3), a broad and very handsome street, intersects the town from W. to E., from the extremity of the Ancien Port to the centre of the town where the ground rises. In this street, a few paces from the harbour, stands the Bourse, with a portice of Corinthian columns, erected 1854-60.

A short distance further the Cours (Pl. C. D. 3) is reached on the left, a shady promenade generally throughd with foot-passengers, at the S. and of which stands the statue of Bishop Belsunce, who during the appalling plague in 1720, which carried off 40,000 persons, alone maintained his post and faithfully performed the solemn duties of his calling — From this point the Rue d'Aix ascends to the Arc de Triomphe (Pl. 1; C. 3), erected in 1823, and afterwards adorned with representations of Napoleonic battles in relief by Ramey and David d'Angers

We now return to the Cannebière. Opposite the Cours opens the Cours des Fleurs, continued by the Rue de Rome and the Pus-MBNADE DE PRADO, which is $2^{1}/2$ M. in length (comp. P) F. G. H. I In the latter, at the point where it turns to the S.W., lies

The well-k pt grounds at the back of the Museum extend to the Jarden des Plantes (Zoological Garden, Pl. A.B. I., adm. 50) c. j.

The best survey of the town and environs is afforded by the church of "Notes Dame of La Garde (Pl. Connes, a small but rapidly increasing town with 12,000 inhab., picturesquely situated on the Golfe de la Napoule is indebted to its sheltered situation for its repute as a wintering-place for consumptive and delicate persons. It is protected by the Estérel Mis. (see above) from the N and N.W winds

The town consists of a main street, parallel with which, along the coast, runs the Boulevard de la Plage, terminating on the W. in the Cours, a 'place' with promenades and fountains. The most sheltered situation is the space between the N side of the town and the village of Le Cannet. The W end of the town is chiefly occupied by English families (the English Church is situated here). The best French society is also well represented

The old town lies at the foot of the Mont Chemilier, on which the parish church rises, and from which the pier closing the S W.

side of the harbour extends. Fine view from the top

Opposite the Cap de la Crossette, the promontory which separates the Golfe de la Napoule from the Golfe de Jouan, rise the Hes de Lérms. On Samte Marguerde, the largest of these, is situated Fort Monterey (poor inn), in which the man with the from mask' was kept in close confinement from 1686 to 1698 and recently well known as the prison of Marshal Bazaine (from 26th Dec. 1873 to the night of 9th Aug. 1874 when he effected his escape) The island commands a fine survey of Cannes and the coast. On the island of St. Honorat rise the ruins of a fortified monastery and church (boat there and back 10-12 fr.).

The Environs of Cannes are delightful, and studded with numerous villas. On the Fréjus road (to the W.) is the Châtent des Tours, the property of the Duc de Vallombrosa, with a beautiful Garden, to which visitors are admitted. Another walk may be made towards the E to the Cap de la Croisette, where the Jardin des Hespérides, with its fine orange plantations is situated. A somewhat more fatiguing excursion is to the Chapet of St. Antoine on the road to Vallauris, which commands an almirable view. Visits may also be paid to Mougins, the monastery of St. Cassien, and the ruin of Napoule. The active pedestrian should walk to the rocky nest of Auribeau, and thence to Mougins, on the railway from Camas.

The line traverses a picturesque district, passing the ruined castles of Bâtic and Chignin — 317 M. Les Marches is the junction for the branch-line to Grenoble, which enters the valley of the Isère (or Vattey of Grassnautan) to the right. From Grenobis to Marseilles by railway in 12 hrs.

380 M. Montmeltan The ancient castle, of which scanty fragments now alone exist, was long the bulwark of Savoy against France The train crosses the Isère — 385 M. St. Pierre d. Albigny; the town lies opposite on the right hank, commanded by the runs of the Chateau of Molons. Near (388 M.) Chamousset the line turns to the right, and traverses the valley of the Arc (Valle de Maurienne), which here joins the Isère. Beyond (5.3 M.) Aiguebelle, which is grandly situated, the Arc is crossed (in the vicinity, on the left bank, the extensive iron mines of St. George des Hurtières). Between stations Epierre and La Chambre the train passes through a tunnel

413 M St Jean de Maurienne — 421 M, St Michel (2330 ft.)
The train crosses the Arc several times. Numerous toucels (nine between St. Michel and Modane). — 427 M. La Praz (313) ft.)

431 M Modane (3468 ft., Hôtel International, Rail. Restaurant, dear, D 41 2 fc.) is the seat of the French and Italian custom-house authorities (change carriages)

The train (best view on the right) describes a wide curve round the village, and passing through two short tunnels, enters, beyond the small village of Fourneaux, the great *Mont Conis Tunnel, by which the Col de Fréjus (8338 ft.) is penetrated in a S.E. direction

The tunnel (8 M in length, N on rance 3802 ft., S en rance 4163 ft above the sea lover, height in the centre 4245 ft., depth below the surface of the mountain 4093 ft.) was begun in Jan 1861 and completed in Dec 1870, under the superintendence of the engineers S mansiller, transits, and Grationi. Its total cost was 75,000,000 fr. The ingeniers boring machines, constructed for the purpose, were worked by a copressed air From 1500 to 2000 workmen were constantly employed on each side. The tunnel is 28 ft. wish, 19 ft. high, and admost endrely and with masonry. It is lighted by anteens placed at intervals of 500 metres and the distances are given in kilometres. The carriages are lighted with gas. The air in the tunnel, although a newhat closs, is a distinguish, even when the wind we are left open. The transit occupies 30 minutes.

The now described Most Casta Road which continues to assume the valley of the Arc. was constructed by Fabbreur in 1802 5 during the reign of Naporcon I. The culminating point of the Mont Cenns (890 ft.) has 17 M to the E. of the tunnel which was therefore hardly appropriately called after the mountain. The road then descends to Susa (p. 24), about 40 M from Modane

At the S. end of the tunnel is (443 M) stat Bardoner than (4127ft.) Two tunnels Stat Bandard. Near stat Outz (3457 th.), the Roman Villa Martin, the line enters the valley of the Double Riparia. (A road to the S.W. leads hence to Casonica at the

fluence of the Dora and Ripa, and over the Mont trenders to the French fortress of Brownson on the Durance; comp p 66;

The train traverses the picturesque valicy of the Dora youd a bridge and two tunnels, we reach stat Salbertrand (3302) ft.). The river again is crossed. Before the next station; Chromonte !. nine tunt els are traversed. To the loft, between the second and third, a glimpse is obtained of the small town of Lattles with the frontier fortress of that name, farther on, a fine waterfall - 453 M. Chamonte, or Chaumont (2526 ft). Then a number of tunnels and aqueducts. The valley contracts and forms a wild garge (Le forgree, of which beautiful views are obtained, with the Mont Camis road winding up the hill on the farther side, and the Rochemelor, Ro he Michel, etc. towering above it. When the valley expands, busa with the arch of Augustus comes in sight on the left (see below). - 4561/2 M. Menna (1949 ft.), 1 M. from Suss, lies 324 ft higher than the latter. Three tunnels. The train then descends through beautiful chestnut woods, and crosses the Dora. 462 M. Bussoleno.

A short branch line runs hence to Busa (1625 ft ; 116tel de Frances Soled), a smal, and ancient fewn, the Roman Seguno, situated on the right bank of the Bors. A garden on the W side of the fown contains a Triumphal Arch. 44 ft in height, 39 ft in width, and 23 ft in depth, with projecting Cotin than columns at the corners and sacrificial scenes on the frace exected according to the inscription in AD. S. There are also a few other Roman relies. The charch of S. Gusto dates from the 11th century. On the preside lank of the D rains of the fort La Brancite, which was destroyed by the French in 1635.

Next stations Borgone (where the Dora is crossed), S. Antonino, (endove, and S. Ambrogio, high above which, on a rocky eminence to the right, rises the abbey of S. Michele della Chiusa, or La Sagra, r markable for a peculiar property of its tombs which convert dead bodies into astural mummies. At stat. Avigliana the valley expands into a broad plain. Stations Rosta, Alpignano, Collegno.

Martigny (1558 ft., *Hôtel Clerc., Hôtel de la Tour., *Grande-Maison-Poste., *Hôtel du Mont Blanc., moderate). 18 a busy little town in summer, being the starting-point of the Great St. Bernard and Chamouny routes.

The RAILWAY runs in a straight direction past the Buths of

Soxon to Riddes, where the Rhone is crossed

101/2 M Sion, Ger Sitten (1709 ft; *Poste, du Muli), with 4895 inhab, the capital of the Canton du Valais, has an important appearance in the distance with the picturesque castles of Tourbullon, Majoria, and Valeria towering above it.

251 2 M Sierre, Ger Siders (1705 ft., Hôtel Bellevue, Posts), picturesquely, situated on a hill — Beyond Sierre a tunnel is passed.

27 M Salgesch. French Salquenen. The rocks have been blasted in several places for the construction of the railway. The train passes through two short tunnels, and crosses the Rhone.

301 2 M Leuk-Susten, Fr. Loueche-Souste (2044 ft. Hotel de la Souste), station for the Baths of Leuk. The important looking old village of Leuk, with its castie and towers, lies high on the opposite slope — 331 2 M. Turtman, Fr. Tourtemagne (2080 ft.), at the month of the Turtman Valley. — 35 M. Gampet. — 381 2 M. Roron, Fr. Rarogne, at the mouth of the Bietschthal. — The line crosses the Visp. which has covered a great part of the valley with debris.

42 M. Vispach or Visp. Fr. Viège (2155 ft.; *Post. *Sonne. *Rulwing Restaurant), picturesquely situated at the entrance to the Visp Valley, at the head of which rises the snow-clad Balfrin (12,474 ft.). Beyond Vispach the line again approaches the Rhone.

48 M. Brieg, Fr. Brique (2244 ft; *Hôtel des Couronnes et Poste, R. 2¹ 2, D. 4¹ 2 fr.; *Angleterre, D 4 fr.) a well built uttle town, with a château with four towers. The railway terminates here.

The Simples Routh, properly so called, which begins here, was constructed by order of Napoleon in 1800-1806, and was the first carriage-road across the Alps from Switzerland to Italy and, after the Brenner the first great route across the Alps In construction it is less imposing than the Splügen, but its scenery is much finer. The road quits the valley of the Rhone at Brieg, and,

9 M Bérisal (5006 ft.), the Third Refuge (*Hôtel de la Poste, R. 2 ft.). Above the Fourth Refuge (5640 ft.) a retrospect is obtained in clear weather of the Bernese Alps (to the N.), from which the huge Aletsch Glacier descends. The part of the road between the Fifth Refuge (6358 ft.) and the culminating point is the most dangerous during the period of avalanches and storms. The road passes through the Kaltwasser Glacier Gallery (6460 ft.), over which the stream issuing from the glacier is precipitated into the depths below, forming a waterfall which is visible through a side opening. The road then passes through two other galleries. From the Sixth Refuge (6540 ft.) a splendid that view is enjoyed of the Bernese Aips; for below in the Rhone Valley Hea Bries.

The Simplon Pass (659) ft.) is 6 M from Bérisal About 3 M beyond the summit is the Hospice (no payment demanded for hospitality, but travellers should contribute at least as much to the pear-box as they would have paid at an hotel), a spacious building founded by Napoleon, but not completed till 1825. A broad, open valley, bounded by snow-capped heights and glaciers, forms the highest portion of the Pass. The imposing Haut Glacier is a conspicuous object on the mountains to the 3; to the E. rises the Monte Leane (11,096 ft.) The Old Hospice, a lofty square tower now to named by herdsmen, lies for below the new road.

201 M Simplon, Ger Suppeln, Itsl. Sempione (4856 ft ; *Poste, R, and A 2 fr.; *Hôtet Fletschhorn) The road now describes a long curve to the 5, which ped strains may out off by a rough path regaining the road at the Algaly faillery, where the most interesting part of the Simplen route begins It leads through the "Ravine of Gondo, one of the wildest and grandest in the Alps, becoming narrower and more profound at every step, until its smooth and precepitous walls of mica-slate completely overhang the road, I low which rushes the impetious Decem The most remarkable of the cuttings by which the roal p netrates the rocks is the Gallery of Gondo, a tunnel 245 yds. in length, constructed by Napoleon in 1805 and fortified by the Swiss in 1830. At the end of the tunnel the Fressmone (or Alpienbach) forms a fine waterfall, which is crossed by a slender bridge. On both sides the rocks tower to a dizzy height of 2000 ft. The dark entrance of the tunnel forms a striking contrast to the white foam of the falling terrept. This magnificent *Alpine Scene, especially when viewed at a distance of 40-50 pares, surpasses the Via Mala Gondo (2818 ft) is the last Swiss village; 1/4 M beyond it is the Italian boundary-column S Moreo, 1/4 M. farther, is the first Italian village.

20 M. Iselle (217) ft. Posta) is the sent of the Italian enston-house. The valley, although now less wild, continues to be extremely picturesque. It unites with the broad and fertile valley of the Tosa (or Toce) at the bridge of (vecōta, 100 ft in height, be ow which it is salied the Val d Ossola. The characteristics of the scenery are thoroughly Italian.

40 M. Domo d'Ossola (1000 ft; Grand Hôtel de la Ville et Poste, high charges; Hôtel d'Espagne, R. 3, L 3, A 3, fr. One-horse carr to Baveno 25, to Brieg 60 fr, diligence twice daily to Pailanza en Lago Maggiore, 6 fr.), a small town with 3300 inhab., beautifully situated Near (4 M.) Villa, the Antrona Valley opens on the right, then (3 M.) Pallanzeno, and (3 M.) Masone, opposite which opens the Anzasca Valley—The Tosa is crossed

48 M. Wogogna (*Corona, unpretending), a small town, at the base of precipitous rocks. The next villages are $(1^{1}/2 \text{ M})$ Premosetto, (uzzay, and $(4^{1}/2 \text{ M})$) Miglandone, where the Tosa is crossed by a five-arched stone bridge.

56 M. Ornavasso (Italia; Croce Binnes) The marble quarries in the vicinity yielded the material of which the cathedral of Milan is built. To the S a road leads through the value of the Sirona, which falls into the Tosa max Gravellona, to Orta (p. 160).

Near Fercilo, the next village, situated in a most lexuriant district, covered with olive-groves, maize-fields, v negards, chestnuts, and fig-trees, the read passes an extensive gravite quarry, where the columns of the restored Basilica S. Paolo Fueri le Mura near Rome were hewn, and soon reaches the S.W. bank of Lago Maggiore (R. 22), from which in the distance rises the Isola Madre, the most N. of the Borromean Islands

62 M. Baveno (* Bellevue, *Beau Rivage, Simpton) is a steamboat station, but not a post-station, so that a seat in the diligence is not always procurable. Travellers from the Simplen usually visit the Borromean Islands from this point (comp. p. 155). Queen Victoria resided at the Villa Clara h re from 31st March to 23rd April, 1879. The road, most of which rests on buttresses of gramte and solid masonry—skirts the lake and leads by Stress (p. 156), Belgiente, Lesa, and Meina, to Lucerne, the capital of the canton of that name, with 14,500 inhab is a trated at the effect of the Reuss from the Lake of Lucerne. The view from the Schweizerhof-Quan is strikingly beaut foil. The celebrated *Luon of Lucerne, designed by Thorvaldsen, to the N, outside the Waggis (rate and 1/4 M from the Schweizerhof, and the new Museum in the town-hall are the principal attractions in the town. Walks and excursions, see Rac-deker's Switzerland.

The *Lake of Lucerne (1433 ft), or Lake of the Four Forestcontons (viz 1 rt. Schwyz, Unterwalden, Lucerne), is unsurpassed in Switzerland, and perhaps in Europe, in the beauty and magnidicence of its scenery. It is nearly cruciform in shape; length from Lucerne to Flüelen 27 M., greatest width about 3 M.

The STEAMBOATS start from the railway station and touch at the Schweizerhof Quay, on the opposite bank, before their final departure. Strikingly picture sque retrospect of the town, as the quay is quitted. As the vessel proceeds the Rigi on the left, Pilatus on the right, and the Birgenstock and Stanser Horn epposite the traveller are the most conspicuous mountains. To the left of Pilatus, the Majestic Bernese Alps (Schreckhörner, Mönch, Eiger, Jungfrau) gradually become visible.

A view is soon obtained of the Lake of Küssnacht to the left, and of the Alphacher See to the right. The steamer soon reaches (on the left) Wäggis, in a very fertile district, at the foot of the Rigit 5906 ft.) The next village is Village, the terminus of the Rigit railway (see Baedeker's Swatzerland).

Two promont ries, aptly termed the Nasen (noses), the one a spur of the Rigi, the other of the Bürgenstock, here extend far into the lake and appear to terminate it. The bay towards the W. beyond this strait takes the name of the Lake of Buochs, from the village of Burchs on the right, above which rise the Buchser Horn (5934 ft.) and Stanzer Horn (5231 ft.).

To the right Beckenried. Then, on the opposite bank, Gersau

(*Hotel Müller)

To the E. rise the ball summits of the two Mythen (6244 ft. and 5954 ft.), at the base of which, 3 M. inland, lies the small town of Schwyz. To the right, Treib. Opposite, on the E. bank of the lake, at the mouth of the Muotta, is attended Brunnen (*Waldstatter Hof; *Adler); on the hill *Kurhaus Avenstein and Höt. Avenfels.

Near Brunnan bogins the S arm of the lake, called the Lake of Urr, the grandest part of the lake, with mountains rising almost perpendicularly on both sides. At the sharp angle which here abute on the lake, rises the Mythensiem, a pyramid of rock, to the in height, hearing an inscription in honour of Schiller. A little farther on, at the base of the Seclisberg, hes the Ruth, a meadow, memorable as the spot where, as the story goes, on the night of 7th Nov., 1307, the first Swiss league (between Uri., Schwyz, and I nterwalden) was solemnly concluded. A little beyond it, on the opposite bank, rises the Arenberg (3353 ft.), at the base of which nestles the Chapel of Tell amid rock and wood. It stands on the Tells-Platte, a ledge of rock on the margin of the lake, where Tell is said to have spring out of Gessler's boat when overtaken by a storm. Above it runs the *Arenstrasse, a highly picturesque road, leading from Brunnen to Flüelen, hewn in many places through the solid rock.

27 M (from Lucerne) Flüelen, Ital Flora (Urnerhof, D. 4 fr., Flürlerhof, Adler, *Kreuz) is beautifully situated at the S and of the Lake of Lucerne, at the mouth of the Reuss

281/2 M. Alterf (1466 ft., *Adder or Post, R. 2 fr., *Schlüssel; Löwe), the capital (2700 inhab.) of the canton of I ri, rebuilt after a destructive fire in 1799, is the place where Fell is said to have aimed his arrow at the apple on his son's head

The road crosses the impetuous Schächenbach, and at the Klus, opposite Erstfeld, approaches the Reuss. To the left rise the Kleine Windgelle or Sewelistock (9846 ft.) and the Grosse Windgelle or Kalkstock (10,463 ft.). Towards Silinen, which lies to the right of the road, a fine view of the Bristenstock (10,089 ft.) is obtained

3712 M Amsteg (1759ft; *Stern or Post, Kreuz, Hirsch) lies picturesquely at the foot of the Bristenstock and at the mouth of the Maderaner That,

The ST GOTTHARD ROUTE, properly so called, begins at the new bridge over the Reuss's little beyond Amsteg. It was constructed in 1820-32 by the cantons of Url and Treino. The scenery surpasses that of the other great Alpin's routes. The road at first gradually ascends on the left bank of the Reuss, which flows in its deep channel far below. Beyond Intschi (2168 ft.), a village 1½ M from Amsteg, a full of the Intschielphuch is passed. The road next crosses the rapid Metenbach

45 M Wasen (2779 ft., *Hôtel des Alpes, * Ochs, * Krone) is picturesquely situated on a height. To the right of the Reuss bridge is a beautiful fall of the Robrbach, near Wattingen. We now cross the fifth bridge, the 'Schönibrücke' (3212 ft.). To the W. of (21/2 M.) Geschenen (3488 ft., *Hôtel Grischenen, Rossli), 21/4 M. from Wasen, opens the valley of the Geschenen-Reuss, terminated by the grand Dammafirn.

About 1 M beyond Geschenen, below the Vordere, or Häderli Brucke, is the N entrance to the great St, tiethard Tunnel (p. 27), to which visitors are not admitted. Here begins the dark and rocky defile of the *Schöllenen. On both sides the west and almost perpendicular walls of granite, at the base of which dashes the importuous Reuss. The road winds upwards and crosses numerous bridges. Pedestrians may cut off most of the curves by the old bridge-path. This part of the road is much exposed to avalanches, and is carried past the most dangerous spot by a gallery or tunnel,

50 yds in length

The "Devil's Bridge (4593 ft.), in the midst of a scene of wild desolation, is now reached (512 M from Geschenen). The Reuss here forms a beautiful (ai), about 100 ft. in height, the spray of which bedows the bridge above. The old mose-grown bridge below is disused. In 1799 this spot was the scene of fletce struggles between the French and Austrians, and a month later between the French and Russians.

Immediately beyond the bridge the road passes through the limer lack, a tunnel 70 yds, long, cut through the solid rock in 1707, but not accessible to carriages until it was inlarged when the new road was constructed. The latter of Lisera, which the road enters beyond the tunnel, forms a striking contrast to the bleak region just traversed. This peacoful dale, watered by the Reuss, and surrounded by lofty and partially snow-clad mountains, was probably a lake before the Reuss had forced a passage through the Schölenen

521/2 M Andermatt, or Ursern, Ital Orséra (4736 ft., *Belletue, *St. 6 thard, *Drei Konige, *Oberalp, Hôtel-Pension Nager; Krone), 11/2 M from the Devil's Bridge, is the principal village in the valley. The Oberalp route to the valley of the Vorder-Rhein and Coire, diverges here to the left.

341 M Hospenthal , 4800 ft . *Meyerhof . *Löwe), derives its name from a former hospice. The Furca road to Realp and the

Rhone Glacier diverges here to the right

The 'st Gotthard road now ascends in numerous windings through a desclate valley, on the left bank of that branch of the Reuss which descends from the Lake of Lucendro (6831 ft.; not visible from the road), and crosses the river for the last time by the Restont Bridge, 1'4 M from the summit of the Pass of St. Gotthard (6936 ft.). It then leads between several small lakes and traverses a dreary valley, enclosed by the barren peaks of the St Gotthard group.

62' 2 M. Albergo det S. Gottarde (6567 ft), 1/4 M. beyond the pass, a large, gloomy Italian inn; opposite is the *Hötet du Mont Prosit (post and telegraph station), aljoining which is the Hospice for poor travellers. Pedestrians may descend to Airolo in 2 hrs.

Snow often has on the pass throughout the summer.

About 1,2 M, below the hospics the road crosses that branch of the Treme, which flows from the Lago di Sella on the E (not visible from the road). Near the 1st Refuge, Cantomera S Antonio, the road enters the Val Tremola, a dreary valley 1 2 M. long, into which avalanches are frequently precipitated in white from which the W. arm of the Tietue descends

70 M. Airolo, Ger. Ericle (3868 ft., *Posta, *Hatel Airolo), the first village where Italian is speken, in great part rebuilt after a fire in 1877. On the left opens the Val Canaria The road enters the Stretto di Statvedro, a ueffle which in 1799 was defended by 600 French against 3000 Russians, and passes by means of rook - bewn galleries through four parallel ridges which descend to the Ticino. On the right bank, 1 M below the ravine, is the beautiful waterfall of the Calcaccia

We next pass Piotta, Ambri, Fiesso, 6 M. farther, beyond the poor inn of Dazio Grande (3110 ft.), the mouth of a second *Ravine The Ticino has here forced a passage through the Monte Piottino, and precipitates itself in a succession of "Cataracts through the gloomy ravine into which the road descends close to the falls. To the right, near Faido, where the culture of the vine begins, is a beautiful fall of the Piumogna.

8t M Faido (2365 ft; *Angelo, *Prince of Wales, Hôtel Vella), a village of thoroughly Italian character, is the capital of the Leventina Beautiful scenery, with numerous campanili in the Italian style peoping most picturesquely from the surrounding heights. Cascades on both sides of the road, that of the *Cribiasea resembles a ven in form. Hugo masses of rock lie scattered about, interspersed with fine chestnut-trees. Luxuriant vines, chestnuts, walnuts, mulberries, and fig trees now remind the travel or of his proximity to 'the garden of the earth, fair Italy'. The vines extend their dense foliage over wooden trellis work supported by stone pillars, 6-10 ft. in height. Where the road descends in windings to the bottom of the valley, the Leino forms another beautiful fall, spanned by a bridge over which the road passes. Beyond Giornico (1325 ft., Cervo; Corona) is another picturesque waterfall on the right, called La Cramosina

91 M Bodio (1986 ft Posta, Aquila). Reyond P Regino (978ft.) the Vol Blegno opens to the left. The valley of the Tienno now expands and takes the name of Ri tern, or river-valley. Fre-

Within the 'Episcopal Crurt, which is surrounded by wais and rises above the town, are the Cathedral of St. Lucius, the oldest part of which is said to date from the 8th cent. (choir 1208, nave consecrated in 1282), the medicava. Episcopal Palace (a passage in the upper floor of which is decorated with a Dance of Death ascribed to Holbein 1), and a few Roman remains

The Diligence Road from Coire ascends the broad valley of the Rhine. The scenery is uninteresting as far as Reichenau. On the opposite bank of the river, at the base of the Calanda, lies the village of Felsberg, which was partly destroyed by a landslip in 1850. The road passes through the thriving village of Ems, near the rains of the old castle of Hehenems, and crosses the Rhine by a temporary bridge erected in the place of an older one burned down in 1880, before reaching

The road soon ascen is for a short distance, and passes the villages of Bonadus and Rhāzāns. The Domleschy Valley, Romanich Domgiasca, which we follow as far as Thusis, on the right (E) bank of the White W. side of which is called Hemsenberg, or Montagna), is remarkable for its fertility and its numerous castles. Some of the villages of

Between the Bridge of Rothenbrunnen and Katzis are the castles of Juvalta, Orienstein, Paspels Canova, Rietberg, and Fürstenau on the right, and that of Realta on the left bank. Towards Katzis (2185 ft.) the scenery is particularly fine. To the S. rises the snow-clad summit of the Piz Curver (9760 ft.); beyond this, to the left, lies the Schyn Pass, with the majestic Piz St. Michel (10,371 ft.) in the background, to the N. the Ringelopitz (10,659 ft.) and the Transcription (9934 ft.). Near Thusis, above the village of Musein, rises the castle of Tugstein.

*Adder or Post, *Hôtel and Pension Rhactar, lies at the confluence of the Rhine and the Natta, the turbid water of which tinges the Rhine for a considerable distance. Interesting view from the bridge over the Nolls. In the background of the valley towers the barren

Pis Beverin (9843 ft.).

Beyond Thusis the valley of the Rhine is apparently terminated by lofty mountains. The entrance of the ravine of the Rhine is guarded on the right bank by the ruined castle of Hohen-Rhutten, or Hock-Reatt. Prior to 1822 the bridle-path from Thusis ascended the valley of the Nolla on the right bank through forest, and entered the gorge below Rongellen (see below). The path through the gorge, the celebrated "Via Mala, was then only 4 ft wide, and followed the left bank. The new road was constructed in 1822. The limestone-rocks rise almost perpendicularly on both sides to a height of 1600 ft. At the Kansti, a little way from the entrance of the ravine, there is a fine retrospect. About 11/2 M. from Thusis is the Vertorne Lock, a tunnel 50 yds, long, penetrating the projecting rock Before reaching it the road passes beneath a huge overhanging cliff. At the point, beyond the tunnel, where the side-wall ceases and the wooden railings recommence, a view of the brawling torrent is obtained. The retrospective "View through the narrow and gloomy detile, of the solitary tower of Hohen-Rhætion and the sunny slopes of the Heinzenberg beyond is very striking.

Near the (3 4 M.) post-house of Rongetten the gorge expands, but soon again contracts. The road crosses the river three times at ahort intervals. The scene is most imposing in the vicinity of the *Second Bridge (2844 ft.), built in 1738, 1 M. from Rongellen The Rhine, 260 ft below the road, winds through a ravine so narrow that the precipices above almost meet. At the third bridge, built in 1834, about i M. farther, the Via Mala ends.

The road now enters the more open Valley of Schams, the green meadows and cheerful cottages of which present a pleasant contrast to the sombre defile just quitted. To the S. in the background are the peaks of the Hirli (9373 ft.). Above the old bridge the Rhine forms a small waterfall. The tirst village in the 2312 M. Andeer (3212 ft.; *Krone, or Hôtel Fravi) is the principal vallage in the valley, with 600 inhabitants. Near it stands the tower of Castellatsch. Fine view of the valley from the church, built in 1673.

The road ascends in windings, passes the ruins of the Barenbury, and enters the *Roffna Ravine, a gorge 3 M in length, in which the Rhine forms a series of waterfalls. Near the entrance the Averser Rhein descends from the Ferrera Valley and joins the Hinter-Rhein.

Towards the end of the gorge, an ancient bridge crosses the Rhine. Farther on, a rocky gateway (Sassa Plana), 16 yds. in length, is passed. The open Alpine landscape of the Rhemwaldthal (Val Rhem) is now disclosed; to the right is the vi.lage of Suvers (4673 ft.); opposite rise the Puso Uccello (8911 ft.) and the Einshorn (9650 ft.); to the left of the Splügen, near the Uccello, is the Tambohorn (10,748 ft.); to the W the Zapporthorn (9803 ft.), etc.

321/2 M. Splügen, Roman. Spluga (4757 ft., *Hôtel Bodenhaus or Post), the capital of the Rheinwaldthal, is a busy place, owing to its position at the junction of the Splügen and Bernardino routes. The latter (p. 37) here runs to the W. The Splügen route turns to the left, crosses the Rhine, and ascends in windings, passing through a tonnel 93 yds, in length. Retrospect of the barren Kalkbery rising above Splügen. The road then enters a bleak valley and ascends on the W. side by numberless zigzags, passing a solitary Refuge, to the summit of the Splugen Pass, Colmo dell' Orso; 6946 ft.), lying between the precipitous Tambohorn, or Schneehorn (10,748 ft) to the W., and the Surettahorn (9925 ft.) to the E This parrow ridge forms the boundary between Switzerland and Italy. The pass, which was known to the Romans, was traversed down to 1818 by a bridle-path only. The road was constructed by the Austrian government in 1819-21 About 3/4 Ma. beyord the pass is the Dogana (6247 ft), the Italian customhouse, at the head of a bleak valley surrounded by lofty mountains.

The road now descends by numberless sigzags along the E. slope, being protected against avalanches by three long galleries. Beyond the second gallery a beautiful view is obtained of isola and the old road, destroyed by an inundation in 1834. The new road avoids the dangerous Liro gorge between Isola and Campo Dolcino. Beyond Pianasso, near the entrance to a short gallery, the Madistry forms a magnificent waterfall, about 700 ft. In height, which best surveyed from a small platform by the road-side.

of houses. The first contains the church, surrounded by ash-trees, and the 'tampo Santo'. At the second, '12 M farther, is the frace of Oro Inn (moderate). The Liro Valley is strewn which fragments of rock, but the wildness of the scene is a strened by the luxuriant foliage of the chestinits lower down, from which rises the slender white campanite of the church of Madonna at Galleriggio. Near S. Glacomo there are whole forests of chestrats, which extend far up the steep mountain slopes. The vincyards of Chiavenna soon begin, and the rich luxuriance of Italian vegetation upfolds itself to the view.

This piece of water originally formed the N. bay of the Lake of Como, but the deposits of the Adda have in the course of ages almost entirely separated the two lakes, and they are now connected by a narrow channel only. The road skirts the E, bark of the lake, in some places supported by embankments and maso my, in others passing through galleries, and crosses the Adda. The ruins of the castle of Fuentes, erected by the Spaniards in 1603 and destroyed by the French in 1796, are now seen on the right. It was fermerly situated on an island, and considered the key of the Val Tellina. Before reaching Colico the road is joined by the Stelvio route from the left.

The BRENNER, the lowest pass over the principal chain of the A.ps., is traversed by the oldest of the Alpine routes, which was used as early as the Roman period, and rendered practicable for carriages in 1772. The railway, opened in 1867, one of the grandest montro works of the kind, affords the most direct communication between thermany and Italy. In the S. transept are several old monuments, half-faded frescoes, and on the wall the porphyry tembstone of the Venetian general Sanseverino, whom the citizens of Trent defeated and killed at Calliano (p. 44) in 1487. In the Piazza of the cathedral, which is embellished with a Fountain are the Courts of Justice, and the Torre de Piazza.

S Maria Maggiore, where the celebrated Council of Trent sat in 1545-63, contains a picture, on the N wall of the choir with portraits of the members of the council, and an excellent sagan dating from 1534. Adjoining the S side of the choir is a column deducated to the Virgin, erected in 1855 on the 300th suniversals of the meeting of the Council.

The Museum in the Municipio, Via Larga, near the cathedral, contains a collection of bronzes and other antiquities from S. Tyrol, Egyptian antiquities, majolicas. Japanese curronities, etc.

To the E of the town, and N of the large Piazza d'Armi in situated the extensive chateau of Buon Consiglio, formerly the seal of the Prince-Bisheps of Trent, and now a barrack, which contains remains of aucient trescoes. The colossal, circular Torre de Augusto is supposed to date from the time of the Romans

Among the numerous old palaces, the painted façades of which ill conceal the poverty within may be mentioned Palazze Zambelli, opposite the Hotel Europa, dating from the 16th cent (fine view from the garden), and Palazze Tabarelli, in the Contrada del Teatro, said to have been built from designs by Bramante

The rocky eminence of Verruca, or Dos Trento, on the right bank of the Adigo, was fortified in 1857, and affords a fine point of view (permission from the commandant necessary). The terrace of the Capuchin Church on the E. side of the town also commands a good view.

Trease, the Tergeste of the Romans, situated at the N.E. extremity of the Adrestic, is the capital of Illyria and the most important scaport of Austria (pop. 70,000 incl. vil ages 123,000). It was made a free harbour by Emp. Charles VI in 1719, and may be termed the Hamburg of S. Germany. Every European nation, and also the I nited States has a consultate. The population is very heterogen out, but the Italian element predominates in the city.

The Harbour is the centre of business—It is entered and quitted by 15,000 vessels annually, of an aggregate burden of one million tons—The quays have been greatly extended within the last few years to meet the increasing requirements of the shipping trade. The Lighthouse on the S.W. Molo Teresa is 106 ft. high.

The New Town, or Thereseenstadt adjoining the harbour, is laid out in broad well-paved streets with handsome houses, and is intersected by the Canal Grande (Pl. 5, D. 3, 4), which enables vessels to discharge their cargoes close to the warehouses. At the end of the Canal is the church of S. Antonio Nuovo (Pl. 7; D. 3), built in 1830 by Nobile in the Greek style.

Adjacent to the Hôtel de la Ville towards the S. is the *Greek Church (S. Niccold dei Greek, Pl. 10, E. 4, divine service 6-8-30 a.m. and 6-7 p.m.), with its two green towers, sumptiously fitted up. To the left of the Hôtel de la Ville is the Palazzo Carciotti, with a green dome, and in the vicinity, near the Ponte Rosso, a new Servian Church.

A few paces farther, in a S.E direction, is the TERORSTEO (Pl 25, E.4), an extensive pile of buildings, on the outside of which are shops, and in the interior a glass gallery in the form of a cross, where the Exchange (12-2 o'clock) is situated. The Reading Room of the exchange is well stocked with newspapers (visitors admitted). The principal part of the edifice is occupied by the offices of the 'Austrian Lloyd', a steambost-company established in 1833, by which the postal service and passenger traffic between Austria and the E. Mediterranese and India are undertaken

In the Plazza della Borsa (Pl. E. 4), where the old Exchange is situated, stands a Neptune group in marble and a Statue of Leopold I., erected in 1660 — In the Piazza Grande is the new Municipio (Pl. 11, E, 4), containing the handsome hall of the provincial diet.

The Corso (Pl. E. 3, 4), the principal street of Trieste, together with the two piazzas just mentioned, separates the new town from the old. The latter, nestling round the hill on which the castle rises, consists of narrow and steep streets, not passable for carriages. To the left on the route to the cathedral and the castle is situated the Jesuits' Chunch (S. Maria Maggiore, Pl. 9, F. 4), containing a large modern fresco by Sante. To the W., a few paces higher up, is the Piazzetta di Riccardo, named after Richard Cour de Lion, who is said to have been imprisoned here after his return from Palestine. The Arco di Riccardo (P., 2) is believed by some to be a Roman triumphal arch, but probably belonged to an aqueduct.

The *Catterbuard S. Giusto (Pl S. F. 3) consisted originally of a basilion, a baptistery, and a small Byzantine church, dating from the 6th cent., which in the 14th cent. were united so as to form a whole. The tower contains Roman columns, and six Roman tombstones (busts in relief) with inscriptions are immure I in the portal. The façade is adorned with three busts of bishops in bronze. The alter-niches of the interior contain two ancient mosaics, representing Christ and Mary. The Apostles in the left bay, under the Madonna, are Byzantine (6th cent.). Some of the capitals are antique, others Romanesque.

A disused burial-ground adjoining the church is now an openair Museum of Riman Antiquities (Pl. 16), those on the upper terrace having been found at Trieste, those on the lower at Aquileia (key kept by the sacristan of the cathedral, 50 km). Winekelmann, the eminent German archeologist, who was robbed and murdered by an Italian at the Locanda Grande in 1768, is interred here, and a monument was creeted to him in 1832.

Fouche, Due d'Otranto, once the powerful minister of police of Napoleon I., died at Triesto in 1820, and was interred on the Terroce in front of the church. Fine view thence of the town and sea.

On the slope of the hill opposite the Cathedral rises the Armenian Cutholic Church, a Byzantine edifice — The new Protestant Church, in the Piazza Carradorl, was completed in 1874.

In the Prazza Lipsia is the Nautical Academy (Pl. 1; G. 5), containing the Municipal Museum, the chief attraction of which is a complete collection of the fauna of the Adriana. In the same plazza is the sumptuously furnished Palazzo Revoltella, contains the municipal Picture Gallery (visitors admitted) — The Piazza Giuseppe, which opens towards the Molo of that name (Pi F. G. 5, 6), is embell, hed with a *Monument to Emperor Variouli in of Mexico (d. 1867), in bronze—designed by Schi ling, and erected in 1875. The unfortunate prince, who was a rear-admiral in the Austrian navy, generally resided at Trieste before he undertook his ill-starred expedition to Mexico.

Another pleasant walk is along the Acquedotto through a pretty valley to the Boschetto, a favourite resort (large browery). From the Boschetto a shady road leads to the Villa Ferdinandea (restaurant), adjoining which is the Villa Revoltella, with park and chapel, commanding a charming view of the town, the sea, and the coast.

A very pleasant excursion (railway station, see p. 50, carr 3fl, beat 3fl) may be made to the chateau of Maraman, formerly the property of Emp Maximilian of Mexico (see above), charmingly situated to the N.W. near Granano, and comman ling a flue view of Trieste, the sea, and the coast. The park is open to the public daily. Turm (785 ft.), the Roman Augusto Tourmorem founded by the Taurini, a Ligurian tribe, destroyed by Hannibal B C 218, and subsequently re-creeked, was the capital of the Con ty of Piedmont in the middle ages, and in 1418 became subject to the Dakes of Savoy, who frequently resided here. From 1859 to 1865 it was the capital of Italy and reallence of the king Turin, the stat of a university, and of a military academy, is situated in an extensive plain on the Po, which receives the waters of the Thera Repursa below the city. The plain of the Po is bounded on the W by the Graum and Cottum Alps, and on the E by a range of hills rising on the right bank, app site the city (bill of the Capuchins p 65, 8 perga, p 66) Turin has always been the focus of the national struggles for unity, and by the industry and perseveratics of its citizens has recovered from the severe losses tor sequent on the removal of the court. The population in 1577, including surrounding villages, was 214,200, of the town itself about 195,000 (in 1377, 4,200, in 1631, 36 447, in 1799, 80,752; and in 1848, 130 849).

Turin is conspicious among the principal cities of Italy for the regularity of its construction. Its pain presents rectangular blocks I houses (Isole) long broad, strught a roles (I emerly called controle, now beek wide squares, and namerous gardons. Its bist ry exposins this. The plan of the cld town with eight variations, is ascriained to be the same as that of the county fornoon by the himperor Augustus. It form dia rectangle is life in length, and 22% it in breadth, and is now intersected by the Via di Dora brossa, which raiss of ween the Piszua Castello and the Via de la Conselata. It had four principal against, it has to be rectangled by the North Relation of the North the Pasauco delle Terri, In 14, still exists. The while town was comprised within this circumference outing the in dole ages, and it in the 17th court, indeer the princes of barry, a systematic extension of the city was again in accordance with the original plant. The fortheations constructed by Francis I in 15%, and the citade sugge of 170% or and away most of the old brancings and gave the town its present appearance. The fortheations were demokshed by the French when in possession of the city and environs in 1801, and the citade had to give place to the railway in 1857.

The spacions Piazza Castrino (Pl. E. F. 2), with the Royal Palace, forms the centro of the town—From this point the busiest streets diverge—the 100 Roma, the Via di Dira Grossa, and the broad and handsome Via 11 Po, leading to the bridge over the Po, and flanked by area les (Portice), containing shops, the handsomest of which are near the Piazza Castello (those in the direction of the Po, towards the Piazza Vittoria Emanuele, being inferior). Those areades present a busy and tribiant scene in the evening, when lighted by gas. The University in the Via di Po, see p. 63.—In the S.E. a sie of the Piazza Castello is the new Galleria dell' Industria Subalpina containing cafés, a large luteria, and concert rooms, which is worthy of a visit, though inferior to the areade at Milab. The other end of the areade is in the Piazza Carlo Alberto (p. 58).

The Palasso Madama (Pi 39; E, 2), the sucient castle, a lotty

and combrous pile in the centre of the Piazza Castello, is the only mediaval structure of which Turin brasts, and was erected by William of Monferrat, when master of the town in the latter half of the 13th century. It owes its present name to the mother of king Victor Amadeus II., who as Dowager Duchess ('Madama Rente') occupied the building, and embelished it in 1718 by the addition of a handsome double flight of steps and the façade with marble columns on the W. side. The two original towers on the L. side are still standing, two others on the W. side, one of which is intended for an observatory, are concealed by the façade. Down to 1865 the Palazzo Masiania was the seat of the Italian senate, and it now contains several institutions - In front of the Palace stands a Monument to the Sardin on Army (Pl. 24) by Vinc. Velo, erected by the Mijanese in 1850, and representing a warrior in white marble defending a banner with his sword. In relief, Victor Ismmanuel on horseback at the head of his troops.

Reale, or Royal Palace (Pl. 43 E. 2), erected about the middle of the 17th cent, a plain edifice of brick, sumptiously fitted up in the interior. The palace-yard is separated from the Piazza by a gate, the pillars of which are decorated with two groups in brenze of Castor and Polinx, designed by Abhondia Sangings in 1842. To the left in the hall of the palace, to which the public are admitted, in a niche near the staircase, is the 'Cacallo di Marmo' an equestrian statue of Duke Victor Amadeus I. (d. 1637), the statue is of bronze, the horse in marble, below the latter are two slaves. The steps have recently been magnificently embellished; among the statues those of Emmanuel Philibert, by Varne, and Carlo Alberto, by Vala, deserve special in tice. The royal apartments are generally accessible in the absence of the king

The long S E wing of the edifice (Calleria Beaumont) contains the *Royal Armolax (Armerot Reale, Pl. 4; E, 2, entered from the areade first door to the right when approached from the palace), opposite and to the N E of the Palazzo Madama. It is opin to the public on Sundays, 11-3 o'clock, and daily at the same hours by tickets (obtained between 11 and 3 o clock at the office of the secretary of the Armenry, on the ground-floor). The confection is very choice and in admirably order (custodian 19-1 fr.)

The Sardinian Chamber of Deputies met ber from 1848 to 1860, and the Italian Parliament from 1860 to 1865. The handsome façade at the back, towards the Piazza Carlo Alberto, was built in 1871 from the designs of Bollati

The rooms used by the parl ament are now devoted to the NATE RAL History Connections formerly in the Academy topen to the public every week day 10 4, in winter it 31. The collection is divided into the Zoo agreat and Comparative Anatomy Section and the Palaeontological, Heclogical, and Mineralogical Section. The former consins a fine array of hirds and insects and a c llection of the vertebrates of Italy arranged in a separate gallery. The pale ontole real division contains a fine collection of foss, in losses from the tertiary formations, and the skeletons of a sigantic armadulo (Chyptodos Clavipes) from this de la Plata, and other antediacytan animals.

In the Piazza Carignano in front of the palace, stands the finely-execute 1 marble statue of the philosopher and patriot Gioberti (Pl 29) by Albertoni, erected in 1859.

The PIAZZA CARLO ALBERTO (E. side of the Palazzo Carignano) is embellished with a bronze monument of King Charles Albert (Pl 27), designed by Marochetti, and east in London. The pedestal stands on four steps of boottish granite, at the corners below are four rolessal statues of Saraintan souliers; above them are four sliegorical female figures, representing Martyrdom, Freedom,

The *Picture Gallery (Pinacoteca) consists of 15 rooms containing upwards of 514 paintings. This collection, being of recent date, cannot boast of a very distinct character like most of the other Italian galleries: but it affords the traveller an excellent opportunity of becoming better acquainted with the works of Gaudenzio Ferrari (1484-1549), in which we can distinctly was Leonardo's inspiration, coupled with the influence of the I mbrian school (Nos. 49 and 54). Sodoma (Grocanni Antonio Barra, 1441-1049), who originally belonged to the Lombard school, is also represented by three pictures. Lorenzo di (redi si 1459-1557) Madonna No. 103, of this master a best period, shows that he was infigured by Lagrande. The Madouna della Lenda was not painted. by R , high himself and the Madonna by Idena's also a copy, like so many other pictures in this gal cry. The spacious Piazza S Carlo (Pl. E. 3, 587 ft. long, and 264 ft. wide), which adjoins the Academy, is embellished with the equestrian *Statue of Emmanuel Philibert (Pl 25), 16 ke of Savoy (d. 1580), surnamed 'Tête de Fer', in bronze, designed by Murachetti, and placed on a pellestal of granite, with relicits at the sides On the W side the Battle of St. Quentin gained by the drke under Philip II of Spain against the French in 1997, on the E. side the Peace of Cateau-Cambrésis (1558), by which the duchy was restored to the House of Savoy. The duke as 'procen redditurus' is in the act of sheathing his sword (his armour preserved at the armoury is placed in the same attitude).

The VIA ROMA leads from the Piazza S. Carlo to (N.) the Piazza. Castello (p. 56) and (S.) to the Piazza Carlo Felice (p. 63) and the railway-station - To the left in the Via dell' Ospedale is the Exchange (Pl. 6, F. 3), and adjoining it, a Museo Industriale Raliano (Pl. 34; F. 3), with a technological collection. Farther on is the large Ospedate S. Guovanni, Buttotis (Pt. 35; F. 3) with 557 heds - The cross-street leads in a N direction to the Piazza CARLO PHANIBLE II (Pl. F. 3), with a handsome *Monument to Cavour (P. 26), by Dupré of Florence, eracted in 1874 grateful Italy presenting the civic crown to Cavour, who holds a secoll in his left hand with the famous words 'libera chiesa in obero state; the pedestal is adorned with allegoreral figures of Justice Duty, Policy, and Independence—the reliefs represent the return of the Sarlin antroops from the Crimea, and the Paris Congress Cavour, at the corner of the Via Lagrange, is the house (Pl. 7) in which Count Cayour was born in 1810 (d. 1861), with a memorial tablet.

Adjoining the Palazzo Reale (p. 57) on the W. side rises the Cathedral of S. Giovanni Battista (Rl. 10; E, 2), occupying the aid of three ancient churches erected in 1492-98 by Meo del Caprino (of Florence, from Baccio Pintelli's design?) with a marble façade in the Renaissance style

The Interior consists of a nave and a ster, a transcept and an octage nal dome in the centre. Over the W. Portal is a copy of Lechardo da Vincia last Supper (p. 129). Over the second altar in the right are 18 small pictures, blacken d with age, by Deferrant on t.A.b. Durant. Frequence in the ceiling modern. The seats of the royal family are on the left of the high actar.

Behing the high alter is situated the "Cappella del 88. Sudario (open during in rining mass till 9 o clock), approached by 37 steps to the right of the high after, constructed in the 17th rent by the Theatine in ink Gueron. It is a lofty circular chapes of dark from the choir by a glassification in the white monoments separated from the choir by a glassification, and covered with a curiously shaped dome. This is the burnal-chapel of the Dakes of Savby, and was embellished by King Charles Albret in 1842 with statues in white marble and symbolical figures to the memory of the most illustrious members of his family or i Emissional Philibert (d. 1880). restrictor imperit, by Marchesi, Prince Thomas (d. 1886) 'qui magno animo italicam libertatem arms administratione probabilities and its appearance of the later Queen of Sardinia Maria delands of naort of Victor Emissional (d. 1886), by Revelli. The peruliaringht from above cabines the effect. In a kind of urn over the after is preserved the SS Sudario, or part of the linea cath in which the body of the Sav-ur is said to have been wrapped. The door in the centre leads to the upper corridors of the royal palace, which are used as a public to roughfare.

Corpus Domini (Pl. 12, E, 2), not far from the cathedral, was erected in 1607 by Vitozzi, and derived its name from a miracle of the Host in 1453. The church was restored in 1753 by Count Alfleri then 'decurione' of the city, and lavishly decorated with marble, girding, and paintings. — In the adjacent church of 8. Spirito, Rousseau, when an exile from Geneva, at the age of 16, was admitted within the pale of the Roman Catholic Church in 1725, but he again professed himself a convert to Calvinism at Geneva in 1754.

The Palazzo di Citta (Pl. 37; E, 2), the seat of the municipality, and containing a library, was erected in 1659. The Piazza in front of it is adorned with a monument to Anadeus VI, (Pl. 25), surnamed the 'conte verde', the conqueror of the Turks and restorer of the imperial throne of Greece (d. 1383), a bronze group designed by Palage, and erected in 1853. The marble statues in front of the portico of the Palazzo di Città (town-hall) of (1.) Prince Eugene (p. 66, d. 1736) and (r.) Prince Ferdinand (d. 1853), Duke of Genoa and brother of Victor Emmanuel, were erected in 1858; that of King (harles Albert (d. 1849) in the colonnade to the left was rected in 1859, that of King Victor Emmanuel, to the right, in 1860. Opposite these statues are several Memorial Tablets bearing reference to the late wars and annexations.

In the Plazza Savoia (Pl. D. 2) rises the 'Monumento Siccardi' (Pl 32), an obelisk 75 ft. in height, erected in 1854 to commemorate the abolition of coolesiastical jurisdiction, named after Siccords, minister of justice on whose suggestion it was erected with the consent of the king and Chambers. The names of all the towns which contributed to the erection of the monument, are inscribed on the column.

The Via della Consolata leads hence to the church of La Consolata (Pi 11, D, 2), containing a highly revered Madonna, and formed by the union of three churches the present structure in the 'baroque' style of the 17th cent, was erected by Guarini in 1679, and decorated by Juvara in 1714. The chapel to the left below the dome contains the kneeling statues of Maria Theresa, Queen of Charles Albert, and Maria A islaide. (Queen of Victor Emmanuel (both of whom died in 1855), erected in 1861. The passage to the right of the church is hung with votive pictures.— The plazza adjoining the church is adorned with a gramte column surmounted with a statue of the Virgin, erected in 1835 to commemorate the cossation of the cholera.

Returning to the Piazza Savoia and crossing the Corso Siccar II, we reach the new Giardino della Citadella (Pl D. 2-3), where statues were erected in 1871 to Brefferio (d 1866), the political numbers, and in 1873, on the appearte corner, to the perist J B casame—Farther on, in the triangular Piazza Pietro Micca, Pl D, 3), at the corner of the Via della Cornaja, is a monument in bronze, erected in 1864 in memory of Pietro Micca, the brave 'soldato minatore', who at the sawrifice of his own life saved the citadel of Turio, on 30th Aug, 1706 by springing a mine when the French grenadiers had already advanced to the very gates Nearly opposite rises the statue of Count Alex, La Marmora (1 1856 in the Crimea).

The PIATZA SOLVERINO (Pl. D., E. 3) is embellished with an equestrian statue of Duke Ferdinand of Genua (p. 62), by Batzaco, prested in 1877; the prince is represented as commanding at the battle of Novara.

In front of the imposing Central Station (p. 54, Pl. E. 4, 5) extends the Piazza Carlo Felice, in which it is intended to erect a colossal monument in memory of the completion of the Mont Cenis tunnel. The bronze statue of Massimo d'Azeglio, the patriot, poet, and painter (d. 1866), by Balzico, was east at Munich, and erected in 1873. This large piazza is adjoined by two smaller ones, the Piazza Patrocapa to the W., a lorned with the statue of the minister of the same name (Pl. 31), and the Piazza Lagrange, with the statue of Count Lagrange, the mathematician (d. 1813 at Paris; Pl. 30).

In the Via pi Po (p. 56) which leads to the R. R. from the Plane Castello, on the left, is the University (Pl. 57; F, 21, with a hand-some court in the late Renaissance style, with two areades, on above the other. It contains a Museo Lapulario of Roman autiquities, chiefly inscriptions. Marble statues have been erected beta to Carle Emanuele III—and to Vath ris Amades II—(at the entrance), to Prof. Riberi (d. 1861), and Dr. L. traile (d. 1867). On the corridor of the first floor are busis of celebrated professors and a large allegoriest group presented by Victor Emmanuel. The Library (open to the public daily. S. a.m. to 6 p.m. in summer. and 9-4 and 7-10 p.m. in winter, closed to 8-pt.), numbers 200,000 vols, and contains a number of valuable manuscripts from bobbio and rare editions (Aldi). The University (founded in 1404) has at present a staff of 85 professors, and numbers about 1500 students.

No. 6 to the right in the Via dell' Accademia Albertina, is the Accademia Albertina delle Belle Arti Pl 1, F, 3; shown on week-days on payment of a fee) It contains a small collection of pietures; among them a Madouna ascribed to Raphael a cartoon by Leon. da Viuel, and 24 cartoons by Gandenzio Ferrari.

The Via Montebello, the next cross-street, leads to the new Synagogne (Pl 47. G, 2), begun by Antonelli in 1863, but afterwards discontinued for lack of funds, and now being thished at the expense of the city; it is a square building resembling a tower, with a singular façade consisting of several rows of columns, and will when finished be the loftiest in Turin (354 ft.).

In the Via di Gaudenzio Ferrari, No. 1, is situated the Musec Civico (Pl. 33 · F. 2), containing the civic codections (open to the public on Sun and Thers. 11-3, on other days by paying a fee of 1 fr.) These collections comprise ethnological and prohistoric objects, mediaval sculptures and a copy of the Bucentaur (ground floor) modern paintings and sculptures (first floor) and small objects of mediaval and Renaissance art, paintings and mementoes of Massimo d'Azeglio, and an interesting collection of stained glass (second floor)

The fermer Guardino dei Ripari, on the site of the old fortitications, is now superseded by new streets and squares in course of construction. The squares in this new quarter are adorned with several monuments, such as that to the Dictator of Venice, Daniels Manin (d. 1857), beyond the Ospedale S. Giovanni Battista, representing the Republic Venice, holding in her right hand a palm-branch, and leaning, with her left, on the medallion portrait of Manin. Also statues of Cesare Balbo (d. 1883), the minister and historian, of Bana, the Piedmontese general, and, nearer the Piazza Maria Teresa (Pl. G. 3), of General Guyl. Pepe (d. 1853), the brave defender of Venice in 1849.

An avenue leads from the Piazza Vittorio Emanuele, along the bank of the river, to the chain-bridge (Pl. G. 4), constructed in 1840. In the Via S. Lazzaro, diverging to the right, is situated the church of —

8. Massimo (Pl. 15; F. G. 4), built in 1849-54 in the style of

Roman tumple, surmounted by a dome. The façade is adorned with statues of the Four Evangelists Good modern frescoes in the interior, and several statues by Albertoni.

In the Corso del Re, which leads from the iron bridge to the Piazza Carlo Felice, on the left, is the bandsome Protestant (hurch (Temple Valdese, Pl. 18, F 4; see p 66), completed in 1854, the first creeted at Turin since the establishment of resignous teleration in 1848.

A favourite promenade, especially in the evening, is the *Nuovo Giardino Pubblico (Pt. G. 4, 5), above the iron bridge on the left bank of the Po (Café). It comprises the Betanical Garden, and extends beyond the royal chateau R Volentino, a turreted building of the 17th cent, now occupied by the Polytechnic School ('Scuola superiore d'applicazione dega Ingegneri') In the adjacent Corso Massimo d Azeglio is the Tiro Nazionale, a well equipped rifle-range.

Opposite the spacious Piazza Vittorio Fmanuele (see p. 56; Pl G, 3) the Po is crossed by a Brudge of five arches, constructed of granite in 1810. (Above the bridge are the swimming-baths, p. 55) Beyond the bridge, on the right bank of the river is a flight of 32 steps ascending to the spacious dome-church of Gran Madre di Dio (Pl. 14, II, 3), erected in 1818 in imitation of the Pantheon at Rome, to commemorate the return of King Victor Emmanuel I. in 1814. The groups sculptured in stone on the flight of steps are emblematical of Faith and Charity. The lofty columns of the portice are monoliths of granite. — A few hundred yards farther is the Villa della Regina, now a school for the daughters of officers who have fallen in battle, commanding a fine view of the town.

Following the Via di Moncalieri to the right, we reach the wooded hill on which rises the Capuchin Monastery. Il Monte (Pl. H. 3, 4), ½ hr 's walk from the bridge. Two paths ascend the hill, the wider of which, to the left, is preferable, being shady and unpaved. The terrace in front of the church (which should be visited in the morning, as the evening light is dazzling) commands a fine "Survey of the river, city, plain, and the chain of the Alps in the background, above which (right) the snowy summit of Monte Rosa (10,217 ft.) is prominent, then the Grand-Paradis (13,780 ft.), and Monte Levanna (11,942 ft.); farther W. the valley of Susa (p. 24), S. Michele della (biusa (p. 24), rising conspicuously on a hill (1042 ft.), above it the Roche-Melon (11,000 ft.) to the right of Monte Cenis, and farther S.W. Monte Viso (12,670 ft.). This hill of the Capuchins has always been a point of great importance in the military history of Turin, and was fortified down to 1802.

from the Ponte delle Benne by a shady avenue (the road to Chivasso, see p 69), deserves a visit. The front part is encosed by a wall with arches, while the more interesting portion beyond is surrounded by arcades covered with small domes. To the left by the wall in the first section is the temb of Silvio Pellico (d. 1854), in the other section we observe the names of many celebrated modern Italians, such as d Azegho, Bava, Brofferio, Gioberti, Pepe, and Pineth. A separate space on the N. side is reserved for the interment of non-Romanists.

The Euperga (2555 ft.), the royat burian church, a handsome edifice with a congrue on front, and surgnounted by a goine, conspictionary situated on a hill to the E of Turin is well worthy of a visit, and commands a splendid view (complete Map p 55). The building was beginn in 1718, from designs by Javara, and was completed in 1.51 (crosed 12.2). Adjacent are a seminary for priests and a trattoria. It was near the Superga that the famous battle of Turin between the Italians and French was fought. 7th sept. 1705, in which the latter were signally defeated, and it which the Huise of Savoj regained the Durchy, which was created a kingdom in the Peace of Utreent, 1713. It is said the Prince Eagene reconnuited the hostile camp from this height before the commencement of the battle, and that, observing symptoms of irresolution in their movements, he observed to Durke Amageus is. the Dora Battea (French Doirs), on the slope of a hill crowned by an extensive and well-preserved ancient Castle, with three lofty towers of brick, now a prison. Adjacent is the modern Cathedral, the interior of which was restored in 1805. An ancient sarcophagus adorns the adjoining Piazza. Ivrea was the ancient Eporedia, which was colonised by the Komans, B C, 100, in order to command the Alpine routes over the Great and Little St. Bernard. Pleasant walk to the Madonne del Monte (pilgrimage church) and the lake of S. Gauseppe with a ruined monastery (1 hr.).

Ivrea may be regarded as one of the b. gateways to the Alps. The luxuriantly fertile valley, here 11/2 M. in breadth, is flanked with mountains of considerable height. The ROAD skirts the Dora Batten the whole way to Aosta. On a height to the right stands the well-preserved, pinnacled castle of Montalto (a waterfall near it); saveral other rains crown the hills farther on. The vines which clothe the slopes are carefully cultivated. The road leads through the villages of Settimo-Vittone and Carema. At 11 M (from Ivrea) Pont St. Martin (Rosa Rossa) the road crosses the Lys torrent, which descends from Monte Rosa. The bold and slender bridge which crosses the brook higher up is a Roman structure. This and the ruined castle here are most picturesque features in the landscape. Several forges are situated on the bank of the Dora.

Beyond Donnas the road ascends rapidly through a profound defile. On the left flows the river on the right rises a precipitous rock. The pass is terminated by the picturesque *Fort Bard (1019) ft.), which stands on a huge mass of rock in a most commanding position. The fort was taken in 1052 by Duke Amadeus of Savoy after a long and determined siege, and in May, 1800, before the battle of Marengo, it was most gallantly defended by 400 Austrians, who kept the whole French army in check for a week.

The new road, hewn in the solid rock, no longer leads by the village of Bard, but follows the course of the Dora, below the fort. On the left opens the Val di Camporeiero, or Champorcher.

19 M. Verrex (1279 ft., Ecu de France, or Poste; *Couronne)

lies at the entrance of the (r.) Val de Challant.

The valleys of Aosta and Susa (p. 24) were alternately occupied by the Franks and the Lombards, and belonged for a considerable period to the Franconian Empire, in consequence of which the French language still predominates in these Italian districts. Bard is the point of transition from Italian to French, while at Verrex the latter is spoken almost exclusively.

Above Verrex the valley expands. The ruined castle of St. Germain, loftly situated, soon comes into view. The road ascends through the long and steep Defile of Montjonet. The rock-hown passage is supposed to have been originally constructed by the Romans. The Doire forms a succession of waterfalls in its rugges channel far below. The small village of Montjoest, on the room of which the traveller looks down from the road, appears to cling precariously to the rocks. The castle of St. Germain is again visible from several different points of view.

As soon as the region of the valley in which Aosta is situated is entered, a grand and picturesque landscape, enhanced by the richest vegetation, is disclosed. The Pont des Satassins (see below), a bridge crossing a profound ravine, commands a magnificent view. On the left rises the castle of Ussette.

Near St. Vmcent (Lion d'Or., Ecu de France) is a mineral spring and bath-establishment. Then (11/2 M. farther) -

27^t/₂M. Chatillon (1738 ft. Hötel de Londres, Lion d'Or. poor), the capital of this district, possessing a number of forges and handsome houses. To the N opens the Val Tournanche, through which a bridle-path leads to the Theodule Pass (10.899 ft.) and Zermatt

(see Baedeker's Switzerland).

The road is shaded by walnut and chestnut-trees and trellised vines. The wine of Chambars, about 3 M. from Chatillon, is one of the best in Piedmont. A slight eminence here commands an imposing retrospect; to the E. rise several of the snowy summits of Monte Rosa, on the right the Castor and Pollux Les Jumeaux, on the left the bold peak of the Matterhorn and the Theodule Pass (see above). The background towards the W is formed by the triple-peaked Ruitor.

To the left, at the entrance of the valley of Chambave, stands the picturesque castle of Fents. The poor village of Nus, with fragments of an old castle, lies midway between Chatillon and Aosta.

A footpath leads from Villefranche to the castle of Quart on the hill above (now a hospital) and descends on the other side. Beautiful view from the summit.

42 M Aosta (1912 ft : "Hôtel du Montblane, at the upper end of the town, on the road to Courmayeur; Couronne, in the marketplace), the Augusta Practoria Salassorum of the Romans, now the capital (7500 inhab) of the Italian province of that name, lies at the confluence of the Buttier and the Doire, or Dora Baltea. The valley was anciently inhabited by the Salassi, a Celtic race, who commanded the passage of the Great and the Little St. Bernard, the two most important routes from Italy to Gaul. They frequently harassed the Romans in various ways, and on one occasion plundered the coffers of Casar himself. After protracted struggles the tribe was finally extirpated by Augustus, who is said to have captured the whole of the survivors, 36,000 in number, and to have sold them as slaves at Eporedia. He then founded Aesta to protect the high roads, named it after himself, and garrisoned it with 3000 soldiers of the Prætorian cohorts. The antiquities which still testify to its ancient importance are the Town Walls, flanked with strong towers, the double S. Gate, resembling the Ports Nigra of Trèves in miniature, a magnificent Triumphot Arch constructed of huge blocks and adorned with ten Corinthian half-columns, the half-buried arch of a bridge, the ruins of a basilica, etc. The principal relies may be seen in 1/2 br. We follow the principal street towards the E, and soon reach the Roman Gate and the Triumphal Arch. Proceeding from the latter in a straight direction we cross the new bridge over the Buttier, a few paces beyond which is the Roman Bridge, at first scarcely recognisable, the construction of which is best seen by descending and passing below it.

The modern Cathedral possesses a singular Portal, with frescoes; above it the Last Suppor in terracotta, gandily painted. Near the church of St. Ours are cloisters with handsome carly Romanesque columns. Modern Town Hall in the spacious P.azza Carlo Alberto, or market-place.

The "Becca di Nona (10,354 ft), which rises to the 8 of Aosta, commands a superb view of the Alps. Good bridle path to the summit. Two-thirds of the way up is the Alp Combob (simple fave); on the top is a new refuge but the scene of a victory gained by the Austrians under Radetzky over the Piedmontese in 1849, in consequence of which Charles Albert abdicated. A walk through the town is interesting.

From the station we proceed in a straight direction along the Via Vittorio Emanuele, passing a Monument of Cavour, by Dini, and then turn to the right to the church of S. Galvenzio, erected by Pellegrini about 1570, the stately tower of which rises conspicuously over the town. The church is built without aisles, in imitation of S. Fedele at Milan, and contains several good pictures by Gaudenzio Ferrari (2nd chapel on the left). The tower, ascended by 300 steps, commands a very extensive prospect, most picture esque in the direction of the Alps.

The CATERDRAL a Renaissance structure with nave and aisless upon an old Roman foundation, connected with the Baptistery by an atrium or entrance-court, is a picturesque pile. The market-place is surrounded by colonnades. — In front of the theatre is a marble statue of Charles Emmonuel III., by Marchesi. The Mercato, or Corn Exchange, near the Porta Torino, is a handsome building, surrounded with colonnades. In the Corso di Porta Genova, near the Palazzo Civico, is a monument to Charles Albert.

Austrians partially destroyed before the battle of Magenta.

Farther on, the Naviglio Grande, a canal connecting Milan with the Ticino and the Lago Maggiore, is crossed (comp. p. 118). On the right, before (77 M.) Magenta is reached, stands a monument erected to Napoleon III, in 1862 to commemorate the victory gained by the French and Sarainians over the Austrians on 4th June, 1859, in consequence of which the latter were compelled to evacuate the whole of Lombardy. A number of mounds with crosses in a low-lying field opposite the station mark the graves of those who fell in the struggle. A small chapel has been erected on an eminence in the burial-ground, and adjoining it a charnel-house.

The line intersects numerous fields of rice, which are kept under water during two months in the year. The next stations are Vittuone and Rho (p. 158), where the line unites with that from Arona

Modern historians describe the character of the Genoese in the middle-ages to a similar strain. The whole energy of the Genoese seems indeed to have be a concentrated on comin recand the parsant of gain. The situation of Genes, tising above the sea in a wide se circle, and its numerous palaces, justly entitle it to the epithet of 'La Superba'. The city is surrounded by extensive fortifications, dating from the beginning of the 17th cent, which have recently been strengthened. From the lighthouse on the W. side, where the large barrack of S. Benamo affords quarters for 10 000 men, a broad tampart extends at some distance from the town up the hill, past the Fire Begato (1618 ft.) to the Forte dello Sperone (1693 ft.), the highest point, and then descends past the Forte Castellacero (1253 ft.) to the mouth of the Risagno which falls into the sea to the E. of Genoa, a circuit of about 9. 2 M. in all. The heights around the town are crowned with ten detached forts

Genos is the chief commercial town in Italy, and contains 130,000 inhab, or with the neighbouring suburbs 163,200. The annual imports are valued at 330 million france, the exports at 70 million. Of the imports about one-third is from England, and the rest chiefly from France and North America.

Fr. m a very early period Genea has been famous as a sea port, and even in the time of the Romans it formed an outlet for the products of the extensive Ligarian coast district. The town is believed to derive its name from the fact that the sea penetral is just the land here somewhat in the shape of a knee genu. The most lourishing period of comos began in the middle ages when the estimens area smally defended themselves against the Saracons. In 1119 they waged a victorical war against Pua, which was then the mistress of the Tyrrhenian Sca. From that date the rival cities were almost permanently at war d we to 1284, when a terrible nava, battle took place between them at Melocia on which occas, in the Gen's se captured 29 Pisan galleys and sank ? thera From that disaster Posa never recovered, and Genoa n we blained the supremacy over the W islands. Corsi a, and nominally over Sardinia also, At a still earlier period she had participated in the Crusados and seenred to herself a busy trade with the Levant. She also possessed settlements at Constantinopte and in the Crimea in Syria and Cypres, at Tonis and Majorca. The rivalry of the Gentese and Lenstians was a fruitful source of wars and foods unring the 12-14th centuries, which at length were terminated by a decisive victory gained by the latter in 1980.

The internal history of the city was no less chequered than the external. The party condicts between the great families of the Borna and Spinoto (thilbellin as on one aide, and the Granuldi and Flesch (Guelpha) on the other, led to some extraordinary results. The defeated party used, at the expense of their own innerendence, to the ke the aid of some foreign prince, and accordingly we find that after the 14th cent. the kings of Napies and France the counts of Monferrat and the dukes of Mi an were alternately masters of Ganoa. Nor was this state of matters materially aftered by the revolution of 1839, by which the excluster away of the notality was overthrown and a Doge invested with the sage me power. In the midst of all this confusion the only stable element was the mercantile Banco di S Giorgio which had acquired extensive possessions, thirdy in Corsica, and would have eventually absorbed the whole of the republic and converted it into a commercial aristocracy, had not Genoa lost its power of independent development by becoming involved in the wars of the great powers. Andrea Boria (p. 90), the samiral of Emperor Charles V. at length restored peace by the establishment of a new oligarchic constitution, and the unsuccessful conspiracy of Freschi in 1547 was one of the last instances of an attempt to make the supreme power dependent on unbridled persona, ambition. The power of Genoa was, however, already on the wane. The Turks con-quered its Oriental possessions one after another, and the city was subpected to severe homiliations by its powerful Italian rivals, as well as by the French, who tack Genea in 1684, and by the Imperial troops by whom Genea was conject for a few days in 1746. In 1736 the ambition of Theodere de Acadest, a World shap nobleman occasioned great disquictude to the repulse. He was created king by the inhabitants of Cornen, who had been subjects of Genea but new threw of their yoke to up p. 428). The General pronounce, the newly elected king guilty of treason, in consequence of which to as irrestled, and with the aid of the French, they succeeded in releast lishing their supremacy over Cornica, but were soon afterwards (1768) obliged to even the island to their new at y. After the battle of Marens, (1800) Genea was taken possession of by the French. In 1806 at was formally annexed to the Empire of France, and in 1815 to the Kingdom of Sardina.

The beauty of its situation, and the interesting reminiscences of its ancient magnificence, render a visit to Genoa very attractive, especially to the traveller who is visiting Italy for the first time. To the historian of art the Renaussance palaces of the Genoese nobility are objects of extreme interest, surpassing in number and magnificence those of any other city in Italy

Many filters brildings were creeted by Galeazea Alessi (a pupil of Michael Angele, born at Perugia 1500 d 1672), whose example was generally toll with a sequent architects. The *Harbour ePorto consists of a semicircular bay, about 2 M in diameter, which is protected from the open sea by two long and substantial piers. That on the E is the Molo Vecchio, with the small old lighthouse and the Porta del Molo, creeted by Galeazzo Alessi in 1550, that on the W, the Molo Auoco, adjoining which rises the new lighthouse, or Lanterna, with its dazzling reflectors 410 ft above the sea-level. The summary it, reached by 375 steps, commands a fine view, especially by ovening light (fee I ft), and the arrangements of the interior may also be inspected.

The Duke of Galliera (d. 1876) having presented 20 million frames for the improvement of the harbour on condition that the government and the city would advance the remainder of the required sum extensive alterations have begun to take place here. On the Cava, below Carignano, Pl. F. 5, 6) a large new Molo is to be constructed, while the present Molo Nuovo is to be so lengthened that it will continue to be the outer piet. This is the best starting point for a visit to the church of S. Maria ir Carignano situated on one of the highest points at the S.E. end of the city, and affording the best general survey of Genoa. Opposite the Palazzo D icale we follow the Salita Pollajuoli, ascend the Stradone Agostino to the right, cross the Piazza Sarzano to the left, and proceed to the right through the Via al Ponte Carignano to the Ponte Carignano, a bridge across a street nearly 100 ft. below, leading direct to the church.

*6. Maria in Carignano (Pt. 13, F, 5; 174 ft. above the sealevel), begun in accordance with designs by Galeazzo Alessi in 1555, but not completed till 1603 (principal portal of the 15th cent.), is an indication of Bramante's original plan of St. Peter's at Rome, and is remarkable for its harmonious proportions. The baroque statues below the dome are by Puyet, Parodi, and David the paintings by Pula, Maratta, Guercino, Procaccini, and Cambiaso. The *View from the highest gallery of the dome (368 ft. above the sea; 119 steps to the first gallery thence to the top 130, ascended by an easy and well-lighted staircase), embraces the city, harbour, and fortifications, and the well peopled coast (W. the Riviera di Ponente, E, the Riviera di Lemante) bounded on the S. by the vast blue expanse of the Mediterraneau (Sacristan 25 c., his attendance for the ascent is unnecessary, best light in the morning)

From the Plazza Nuova we proceed to the left through the Via Sellai (Pl. F. 4) to the Plazza Dependant (with a palace of that name, of the 18th cent., on the left,, formerly Plazza S. Domenico (79 ft. above the sea).

From this places the Salita dl 8 Mathro the second side street to the left, leads to the small church of 8. Matter (Pl 14), originally Gothic (1278), which contains numerous renupiscences of the boris family, the façade being overed with inscript has to the rimenory. The interior was altered in 1560 by the Florentine Generations Monterson, who was invited to tennally Andrea Doria, and who with his assistants, execute i the whole of he line script ires with which the church is embilished. Above the high alter is Doria's sword. To the left of the church are hancsome of isters with door to columns, dating from 1308 to, with 17 ancient inscriptions relating to the Dorias, and remains of two statues of Andrea Doria (by Montersch 1548, and one of Granette Doria (1577), which were matilisted during the Rev Jeti to in 1797. Next a circular rolm and a saked with large pich tree by technical pairties (Pala, Deferrant Ferrant, Fiaselta, etc.), and lastly two rooms with sculptures, chaffy modern (Masko Principle Odera), and several others containing casts.

The Via Ginlia leads from the academy towards the E to the Porta degli Archi. On a terrace to the left of the gate stands 8. Stefano (Pl. 11, G,4) a Gothic church, the oldest parts of which date from the end of the 12th century. Ab we the high altar the *Stoping of Stephen by finalin Romano, one of his best works, taken (1530) to Paris by Napoleon in 1811, but restored in 1815. From the back of the church we may proceed to the left to the Acqua-sola (p. 90), or t. Carignano to the right (p. 84).

Two broad streets lead towards the NE from the Piazza Deferrari to the right the new Via Roma and to the left the Via Carlo Felice. The Via Roma (Pl. F. 4) soon reaches a new plazza, containing the prin tpal cotrance to the Gilbert Marsine (Pl. 43), and about to be embed thed with a statue of the great agreetor of that name. The Salita S. Caterina ascends hence to the right to the Acquarola Promerade (see p. 90), while the Via R mais carried through the promenade, unfortunately cutting off an angle of the interesting old Palazzo Spino a (Via Caterina, No. 14), and is continued by the Via Assarctle, which leads to the loftily-situated Piazza Manin (p. 91).

On the left side of the Via Carlo Frlick. No. 12, is the Polarzo Pollo mini (Pl. 26 F. 3) now the property of the Durazzo family (p. 88). — We next come to the Piazza oblite Fontane Morose (Pl. F. 3) No. 17 in the piazza is the Pol della Casa, originally Spinola, adorned with five honorary statues in medes, of the 15th cent., No. 27 is Pol Lud. Stef Pollocum, sumptionally fitted up.

Near the Piazza Fontane Morose begins a broad line of streets built in the lith cert coxtending to the Piazza dell Acquaverde near the railway-station, under the names of Via Nuova, Via Nuovissima, and Via Balbi, and forming one of the chief arteries of modern traffic. In these streets are situated the most important palaces and several churches, some of the form, r should be visited for the sake of their magnificent staircases, which are among the most remarkable objects in Genoa. — On each side of these loftily situated streets a complete labyrinth of narrow lanes, occupied by the lower classes, descend to the lift to the harbour, and ascend the hill on the right, here, too, the traveller will observe many interesting buildings.

The bist of these main streets is the "Via Boova (Pl. E. 3), which is flanked by a succession of palaces on both sides. On the

San Remo, although apparently a small place, contains $1,000 inhab, densely crowded in the older parts of the town, which consist of a labyrinth of quaint and narrow lanes, flights of steps, archways, lofty and sombre houses, and mouldering walls. The trebes by which the houses are connected high above the streets are intended to give them stability in case of earthquakes. The town, which was formerly fortified, stands on a hill between two short valleys, and the houses rising one above another receive their modicum of light and air from the back only. Castigliuoti, a smaller quarter in the W. side, as similarly situated

The E part of the town terminates in an eminence approached by broad roads shaded by cypresses, commanting charming views of the bay and mountains, and crowned with the white dome-covered church of the Madonna della Costa in front of which there is a large bespital for lepers. On a more prominent point stands the Villa Carbone, with a low octagonal tower (fee 1, fr.), the panorama from which conveys a good idea of the peculiarities of the situation. The island of Corsica is visible in the distance to the S.

Another walk may be taken to the W. pier of the small harbour, which is defended by the fort of St. Tecla, erected by the Grocese, and now used as a prison. A survey from the upper platform of the Mole will convey an idea of the sheltered position of the town, which renders the climate as gental as that of Mentone and has brought the place into notice as a winter residence for invalids. In front of the spectator rises a hill in an almost regular semicircle sround the town, sloping upwards from the Capo Nero by La Cella to its culminating point in the Piano Carparo and Monte Bignone, which attain a height of nearly 4000 ft., and descending thence to the Capo Verde, the summit of this barrier being nowhere move than 4 M distant in a straight line N win Is are therefore entirely excluded from this favoured spot, especially as a double range of Alps rises behind the town a little farther back, while at the same time the violence of the E. and W. whole is much broken. In the rich vegetation of this nook the office predominates, and the hills above are chiefly clothed with Country-houses and churches peep from amidst the olive groves in every direction, the highest being at San Romolo at the foot of the Bignone, to which the lew vis.tors who remain throughout the summer resort in order to escape from the heat. Several fine palms rise in the principal street of the lower and modern part of the town, and others in the 'palm-quarter' of the old town, and

A considerable trade is carried on here in palm branches and young palm-tries. The palm-garden of Sign. Moreno is worthy of a visit. The climate is almost as mild as that of Mentone and San Remo, but is more bracing and equable, and invalids frequently come here for change of air, and even to spend the whole winter. Mentone, a small town with 5600 inhab, formerly belonging to the principality of Monaco, and afterwards under the Sardinian supremary, was annexed to France to 1560. It is charmingly situated on the Bay of Mentone, which is divided into the Box de-I Est and the Base de I Quest by a rocky promontory, and being protected by a girdle of rocky mountains from the N. winds, is considered one of the most favourable spots for a winter-residence on the Riviera di Ponente (mean temperature about 3º Fahr. higher than at Nice; a cold wind, however, generally prevails towards noon, especially at the point where the valley opens towards the W bay). The vegetation is luxuriant, consisting chiefly of orange and lemon groves interspersed with graried careb-trees (chratoria siliqua), figs, clives, etc. The Promenode du Midi and the Jardin Public are favourite walks in the afternoon. The rulned eastle on the above mentioned rocky promontory, which has been converted into a burial-ground, affords a fine view, embracing S. Agnese on a lofty hill, erected for defer ce against the Saracens Another picturesque point is the monastery of S. Annanziata, to which a tolerable path ascends (in by hr.) from the Turin road (to the left immediately beyond the railway). Pleasant and sheltered walks may also be taken to the Vollie Gorbio (also practicable for driving), Vallee (abrole, and Vallee de Menton, and to the Cap. Nee Ital Auzo, the capital (52,300 inhab) of the French Departement des Aspes Maritimes, was founded by the Phocian inhabitants of Marseilles in the 5th cent. B.C., and named Nicaea. Down to 1388 it belonged to the County of Provence, and afterwards to the Dukes of Savoy, in 1792 it was occupied by the French, in 1814 restored to Sardinia, and in 1860 finally annexed to France together with havoy. Nice was the birthplace of the French gineral Masséna (in 1758) and of Gluse ppc Garibaldi in 1807). The dialect of the natives is a mixture of Provençal and Italian

In winter Nice is the rel legions of invalids as well as persons in robust health from all parts of Europe, especially from Eugland, Russia, and Germany, who assemble here to escape from the reposite of a northern winter. In summer the wown is deserved.

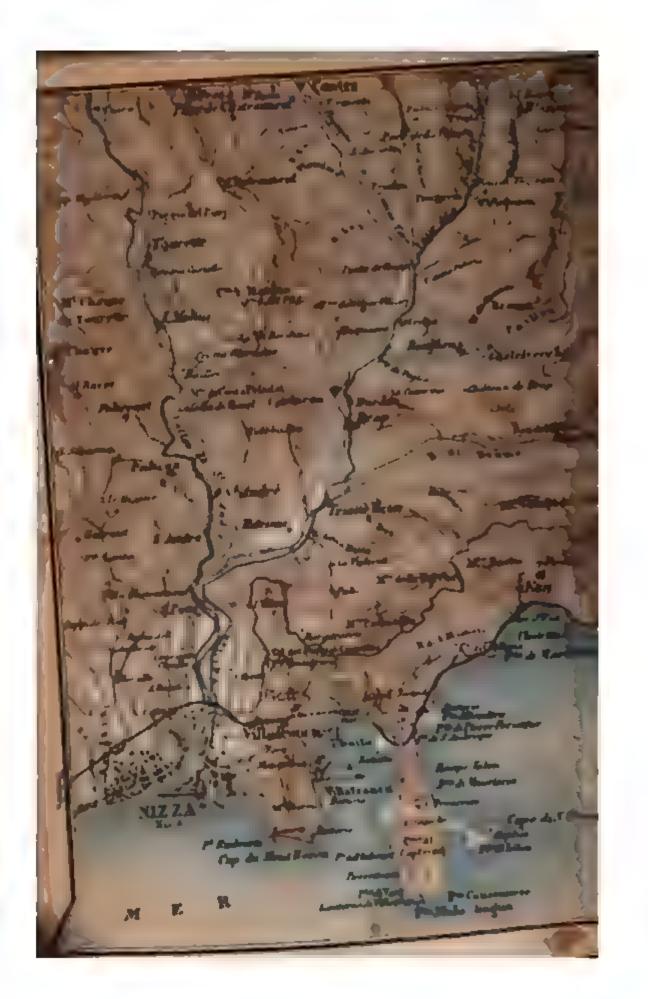

Nice is beautifully situated on the broad Baie des Anges, which opens towards the S, at the mouth of the Paglione or Paillon (a small stream, frequertly dried up). The broad and stony bod of the river with handsome quays on each back, bisects the town. On the left bank is the Old Town, with its narrow, dirty lanes, which however have been superseded by better streets near the shore (Boulevard du Midi and Promenade du Cours). On the right bank is the Strangers Qtarter, which already surpasses the old town in extent, and is intended to occupy the entire space bounded on the W, by the brook Magnan, and on the N by the railway (the Quartier de la Croix de Marbre stretches along the coast to the W, the Boulevari Carabacel and the Quartiers Brancolar and Cimiès to the N E along the bank of the Paillon).

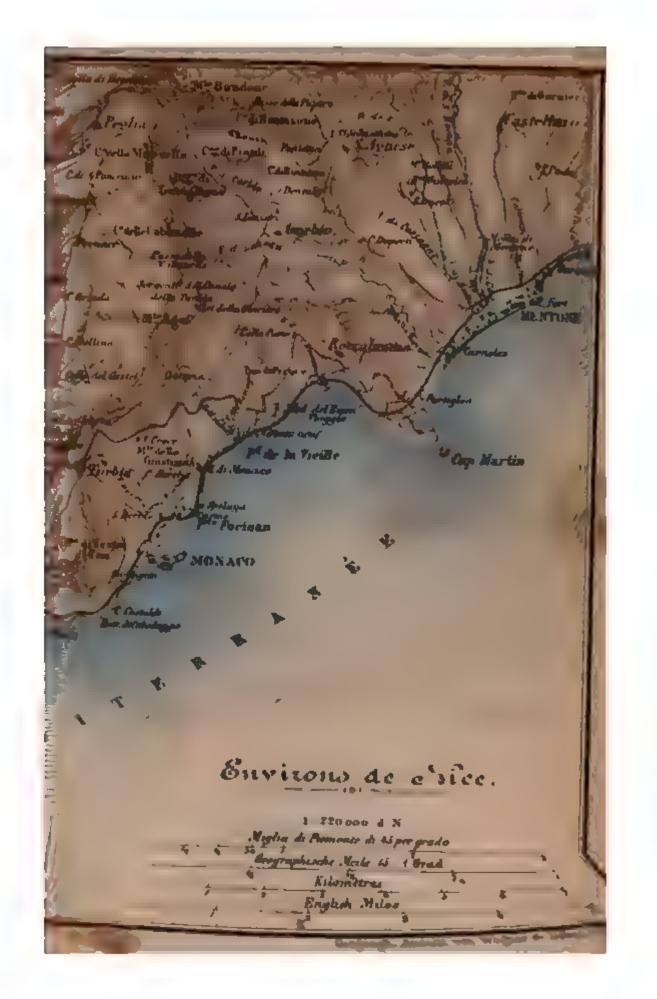

Near the station is a beautiful alley of Eucalyptus Globulus). In the Avenue de la Gare, leading from the station to the town, rises the still infinished church of Vitre Dame, erected by Lenormant of Paris in the bothic style. A Marble I rose in the Rue de France, commemorating the meeting of Charles V. and Francis I in 1538, which was effected through the intervention of Pope Paul III., has given its name (Croix de Marbre) to this quarter of the town. — The Square, a broad space formed by covering in the Paillon between the Pont Vieux and Pont Neuf, is embellished by a Statue of Masséna (p. 103) in bronze, erected in 1857, in front Cho is represented on the pedestal writing his name on the page of history; at the sides are reliefs. — The Trien Library (40,000 vols., open daily 10-3, on Sundays 10-12 o clock). Rue St. François de Paule 2, contains a few Roman antiquities (milestones, etc.), and a natural history cabinet

The Jardin Public (Pl. D. 4; military music, see p. 103) at the embouchure of the Paillon, and the *Promenade des Anglais adjoining it on the W., which was laid out by English residents in 1822-24, and greatly extended in 1862, are the principal resorts of visitors. These grounds stretch along the coast for 1½ M., as far as the brook Magnan, and are bordered with handsome botols and villas (at the beginning of the promenades is the Cercle Méditerranée, mentioned p. 103). On the left bank of the Paillon which is crossed here by the Pont Napoléon, they are continued by the Boutevard du Midi, which is planted with palms.

To the E of the town rises the Castle Hill, 320 ft in height (P). F, 4, ascent from the N, or E side 20 min), crowned by the ruins of a castle destroyed by the Duke of Berwick under Louis XIV in 1706, now converted into beautiful grounds, where palms, oranges, cypresses, and aloes flourish in profusion. The platform on the aummit, erected in honour of Napoleon III, commands an admirable view in every direction. The S. slope of the eastle-hill, which descends precipitously towards the sea, is called the Rauha Capen ('batrobber' owing to the prevalence of sudden gusts) — The Cemeteries, with the exception of the English, are on the N. side of the eastle-hill.

At the base of the eastle-hill on the E, where a house opposite the dogana was distroyed by a landslip in the winter of 1871, lies the small Harbour (PI F 4) called Limpus from an excellent spring (timpulat) which rises near the E pier. It is accessible to small vessels only, those of large tonings cast anchor in the bay of Villafranca (p. 106). The Place Bellevice, adjoining the harbour, is embellished with a Statue of Charles Felix. King of Sardina, in marble, excepted in 1830.

To the N of the town are the villas Chiteau Neuf and Orangini, both in the Quartier Brancolar,

The Environs of Nice, with their attractive villas and laxuriant vegetation, afford a variety of beautiful excursions

The Franciscan monastery of Cimibs, Ital. (imella, is situated 3 M, to the N, of Nice. The best, although not the shortest route to it is by the new road ascending to the E from the Boulevard (arabacel (Pl. F. 2) which on the top of the hill intersects the site of a Roman Amphibeatre (210 ft. long, 175 ft. wide). About 1/4 M, to the right from the cross-road, immediately beyond the amphibeatre, we reach the monastery (two pictures by Bréa in the chapel) reserved in 1543 after its destruction by the Turks. It stands on the site of the Roman town of temendam, to which the above-mentioned amphibicatre and a quadrangular structure commonly called a Temple of Apollo, belonged. Traces of baths and other buildings have also been discovered.

The Villa Clary, to which the public are admitted below Cimiès, on the road to St. André, possesses the finest orange and lemon-trees at Nice and many rare plants

A good carriage-road ascends on the right bank of the Paglione to the (40 mm) monastery of St. Pons, founded in 770 on the spot where St. Pontins, a Roman senator, suffered martyrion in 261. It was destroyed by the Saracens in 890 and the present edifice erected in 990. The treaty by which the County of Norwas annexed to the Duchy of Savoy was concluded here in 1385. The château of St. André (restaurant, closed in summer), which is reached in 12 hr. more, built in the 17th cent, is now unoccupied. Noon 1,4 hr farther up the valley is the insignificant grotte Les Chases de St. André, or rather a natural bridge over a brook, crossed by the road. An avenue of cypresses leads from the château to the grotto.

The excursion may be extended still farther in this direction. From the Grotto of St. André we follow the Torretta road in the desolate rocky ravine a little farther, and then ascend to the left by the new road in several windings to the village of Falicon, the highest point of which affords an admirable view. — From Falicon we may either return by the road to the S to Nice (or by the less beautiful and very steep, but shorter path via Cimiès), or proceed farther towards the N to *Aapromont, 91 3M, from Nice. The road is good the whole way, and commands a fine view. Near Asprement we obtain an excellent *Survey of the valley of the Var and of the Alps.

Farther up the valley of St. André, 7 M. from Nice, lies the antiquated village of Torretta, with the picturesque rain of that name (Fr. La Tourette). The tower of the castle comma, is a very singular survey of the sterile mountain scene, especially of Mont Chauve, the Asprement, and the deserted village of Chateau Neuf perched on a barren ridge of rock, to the S. Montalban and the sea

About 11,2 M farther is the dilapilated village of Château Reuf, formed on the ruins of old fortifications, and probably used in the 15th and 16th cent by the inhabitants of Nice as a refuge from Turkish invaders. It has recently been abandoned by most of its inhabitants on account of the want of water. It is 3 M distant from Torretta, and affords another fine view.

To the E of the harbour La Limpia rises the Montboron, a promoutory 5:00 ft in height, which separates Nice from Villafranca. The summit, which is reached in $1^1/2$ hr., commands an extensive prospect. The mountains of Corsica are visible towards the S in clear weather

The Roan to Villafranca (2 M.; comp Pl G, 4), constructed by the French government, leads round the promontory of Montboron and passes a number of villas, the most conspicuous of which is the Villa Smith, a red building in the Oriental style. Near this village the new "Route Forestiere de Montboron" ascends to the left commanding a superb view of Nice and the numerous villas of the environs; it traverses the whole of the hill of Montboron, leads round the Fort Mintalban, and at length unites with the old road to Villafranca — "Villafranca, Fr Villefranche (carr from Nice, see p. 102; rowing-boat 10 fr.) very beaut. If we follow the road for 11 2 M farther, a road to the right, erossing the railway by a stone bridge, will lead us to (4 M.) Besalieu (rail. stat, to the left of the bridge, see p. 101), an im-significant village situated in the midst of rich plantations of clives, figs, carob-trees (p. 99), lemons, and oranges. Many of the clivetrees are remarkably large, one of them measuring 22 ft. in circum-Beaulieu ites in a wide bay, bounted on the S by the long peninsula of St. Jean. At the foot of the latter has the village of S. Giovanni, or St. Jean (dear inp), 13 4 M. from Beaulieu, A favourite resort of excursionists from Nice. Tunny fishing is successfully carried on here in February, March, and April At the extremity of the peninsula are the rules of an old Saracenic castle, destroyed in 1706 in the reign of Louis XIV. (see p. 104), and the ruined chapel of St. Hospice. Instead of proceeding to St. Jean by the above route, the traveller may be ferried across the bay to the creek of Passable (60 c), and thence cross the peuthsula on foot to St Jean

SOSPELLO.

On the W. Stop of Nice pleasant walks may be taken in the valley of the Magnan (p. 104), in which a road ascends to (2 M.) the church of La Madeleine. The beautiful, shestered banks of the Var, which falls into the Base des Angles, 3% M. to the W. of Nice, are also worthy of a visit (one day; carr. with two horses, 20-25 fr., also a realway station, comp. p. 21).

Savigio rising in terraces on a lofty rock on the right, with the ruins of a castle in the Oriental style—destroyed by the French in 1792, commands the road—On the opposite side is a monastery of considerable extent. The valley contracts, so as barely to have room for the river and the road between the perpendicular rocks. Several small villages are altuated at the points where the valley expands—Beyond (43 M.) situated on a rock here.

The road traverses a dreary valley by the side of the Roja and ascends by 69 zigzags on the barren mountain, passing several refuges, to the summit of the Col di Tenda, or di Cornic (6145 ft.), where the Maritime Alps (W.) terminate and the Apenniuss (E.) begin. The view embraces the chain of the Alps from Mont Iséran to Monti Rosa. Monte Viso is not visible from the pass itself, but is seen a little beyond it, near the 4th Refuge. The descent is very steep. The road follows the course of the Vermanagna to —

The RAILWAY to Turin intersects the fortile plain, bounded on the W. by the Maritime Alps, and, farther distant, the Cottian

Milan (390 ft.), surnamed 'la grande', the Mediolinum of the Romans, which was rebuilt after its total destruction in 1162 by the Emp Frederick barbarossa is the capital of Lombardy, the seat of an archbishop and one of the wealthlest manufacturing towns in Italy, silk and woollen goods being the staple commodities. It is situated on the small river Olona, which however is navigable and is connected by means of the Nampho Geands (p 71) with the Tiemo and Lago Maggiore, by the Naviglio di Parae with the Tiemo and the Po, and by the A miglio della Martesana with the Adda, the Lake of Como, and the Po The town is 7 M in circumference, and contains 200,000 inhab, or, including the suburbs, about 262.000.

The favourable situation of Milan in the centre of Lombardy has always secured for it a high degree of prosperity. Under the homans it was one of the largest cities in I say (p. 115), but ow my to its repeated destruct, in hardly a trace of that period has been left. He heroic struggles against the German emperers are well Killwin. We is the exception of S. imbrogle and a few other charches, the city was totally destroyed in 1000 by the emperor Frederick Burbarossa, but to 1167 it was rebuilt by the allied cities of Brescia, Bergamo, Mantun, and Verona. It was afterwards ruled by the Vaconti (1312-1447), then by the Sforza family (1447-1535). Under the supremacy of the latter it attained the zenith of its reputation as a patron of art, anding been the residence of Bramante from 1476 to 1500, and if Leonardo da Vacon from 1494 to 1516. The most eminent of Leonardo papers who flourish diverse hermarding Linsi, Cesare da Sesto, from Ant Holtrofflo, Micro da Cygionno, Andrea Salaino, and Guadenno Ferrare. Mitan with the rest of Lombardy afterwards fell into the hands of the Sponiards, and in 1714 fell to Austria. In 1796 it became the capital of the Cisalpine Republic, and then (down to 1815) that of the Kingdom of Italy. The bloody insure citim of 17th May, 1848, compelled were happily ended by the desired union with the new kingdom of Italy in 1859.

No t which has been undergone such marked improvement as Milan since the events of 1859. In the province of Aut it has raised itself to the highest rank in the kingdom. So that are in here carried in to such an extent as to have become acrost a special valueby. The Milanese Secret as take great pride in their technical skill, and in effective imitations of nature. Among the best known scouptors are Magni, Peduce, Tandardom Barraghi, Argenti, Caloi, and Barraghia. Paratise is represented by Fr. Hauez, Induno, Bianchi, Massim, Passim, and others, but most of these artists seem to cultivate the modern Parisian style, and to be entirely abuvious of their garriens old national fraditions.

The old part of the town, a portion of which consists of narrow and irregular streets, is enclosed by consis, beyond which suburbs (borgha), named after the different gates (Porta Venezia, Comasina or Gambaldi, Sempione, etc.), have sprung up.

The focus of the commercial and public life of Milan is the Piazza del Duomo (Pt. D. E. 6), which was formerly cooped up between insignificant lands, but has recently been much extended, and is now enclosed by imposing edifices designed by Gauseppe Mengoni (p. 121), and still partly unfinished, forming with the cathedral a striking architectural whole.

The celebrated Cathedral (Pl 5), dedicated * Morme Nascenti. as the inscription on the façade announces, and as the gilded statue on the tower over the dome also indicates, erected in the Gothic style, is regard d by the Milanese as the eighth wonder of the world, and is, next to St. Poter's at Rome and the cathedral at Seville, the largest church in Europe. The interior is 159 yds. in length, 61 yis in breadth; have 155 ft. in height, 17 yds in breadth. The dome is 220 ft. in height, the tower 360 ft. above the pavement. The roof is adorned with 98 (within turrets, and the exterior with upwards of 2000 statues in marble. The structure, which was founded by the splendour-living than traleazzo viscontiin 1386, perhaps after the mode, of the Cologne cathedral, progressed but slowly owing to the dissensions and jealousies of the Italian and Northern architects whereby it was impossible to attain uniformity in the execution. Enrico di Gamadia (Heinrich von Gmund) on of the namerous competing architects from France and Germany, has errongously been called the builder of the cathedral. The whole was finished in its principal parts at the close of the 15th century in accordance with the designs of Francesco di Giorgio (dome), and Giov Ant. Omodeo, excepting the ornamentation the façade (doors and windows), which was executed in the Renaissance style by Pellegrano Tibaldi in the niddle of the 16th century. In 1805 Napoleon caused the works to be resumed—and the tower over the dome to be added, and at the present day additions and repairs are constantly in progress.

The church is craciform it shape, with double aisles, and a transept also flacked with aisles. The Interior is supported by 52 pillars, each 12 ft in diameter, the son mits of which are adorned with canopied riches with statues instead of capitals. The pavement consists entirely of mesalt in marble of different colours. The vaulting is ski fully painted in imitation of perforated stone-work.

The W. side of the Piazza del Duomo is skirted by the Vet Carlo Marto (see p. 131), beyond which, to the N.W., has the Piazza de' Mercanti (see p. 127).

On the N side is the imposing new palatial façade which forms the entrance to the *Galleria Vittorio Emanuele (P1, 40; L. 6, 6), commetting the Piazza lel Duen with the P azza dedla Scala. This is the most spacious and attractive structure of the kind in Lurope. It was built in 1865-67 by the architect Grass Mengons, one of the most gifted of modern Italian architects, who unforturately lost his life by falling from the portal (finished in 1878) in 1877, The gattery which is said to have cost 8 million fr (320,000t), is 320 y is in length, 16 yds in breadth, and 94 ft in height, The form is that of a Latin cross, with an octagon in the centre, over which rises a capola 180 ft in height. The decorations are we l-1 x cuted and bear testimony to the good taste of the Milanese. The octagon is adorned with frescoes, representing Europe, Abla, Africa and America, while the frescoes on the entrance-arches are emblematic of Science, Industry, Art, and Agriculture. The gallery contains handsome shops, and is lighted in the eventua by 2000 gas nets. The circa of gas-jets in the dome is highled by a small engine set in motion by clockwork, which does its work in Ty oin , and attracts nomerous spectators.

The gallery is addressed with A statues of colebrated I mlians at the entrance from the Prazza des Duomo Arnold of Brescis and G. B. The Piazza della Scala (Pl. E. 5) is embellished with the *Monument of Leonardo da Vinci (1452-1519) by Mayne erected in 1872. The states of the master in Carrara marble, over life-size, stands on a lofty p. destal, surrounded by Marco da Ogglonno, Cesare da Sesto. Salvino, and Beltrafilo, four of his pupils, and adorned with copies of his principal works in relief. In the piazza, to the W. of the state, is the Tentro detter Scala (p. 118), to the E. is the larg. Palazzo del Martin, in which the Municipio (Pl. 52) has been established since 1861, erected in 1555 from designs by Galeazzo Alessi, with a massive façado, S.E., s.de) and interesting court.

Reyond it is the Jesuit church of S. Fedele (Pl. 15 in the Piazza of that name, erected by S. Carlo Borromeo in 1569 from designs by Pellegrins, containing a sumptuous high altar. The adjoining Palazzo del Censo ed Archivio, formerly the Jesuit college, contains part of the government archives, chi. Ily documents relating to the history of Milan.

We next proceed from the Piazza della Scala to the N. by the Via S. Giuseppe (Pl. E. D. 5) and Via di Brera to the Brera. In the Via d. I Monte di Pretà, the second side street on the left, is the handsome new Cassa di Rusparmia, or savings-bank, an imitation of the Parazzo Strozzi at Florence.

The *Brera Pl 50, D, 1, Via di Brera 28), or Palazzo delle Scienze ed Arti, formerly a Jesuits' College, contains the Picture (lattery, the Library of the Academy founded in 1170 (200,000 vols; open daily), a Cellection of Coins (50 000), the Observatory, a collection of Cists from the antique, and an Archicological Museum.

The han Isome Court by Ricchini contains statues in marble of the political economist Count Pictro Verri, the architect Marchese Luigh Cagneta (d. 1833), Tommaso Grossi, the mathematicians tiabrio Piola and Fra Bonaventura (availeri (d. 1847), and Carlo Ottamo Castiglione. In the centre of the court is a bronze statue of Napoleon I., as a Roman emperor, by Canoca, cousi tered one of his finest works. By the staircase, to the left, the statue of the celebrated jurist Beccaria (d. 1794), who was the first to call in question the jistica of capital punishment, to the right, that of the satirist Gass. Parint (d. 1799), professor of rhetoric at the college of the Brora.

The *Pioti RE Gallery (Pinacotéca), which contains about 600 works, is open daily from 9 s.m. to 4 p.m. (on holidays from 12, in winter and on Sundays till 3); admission 1 fr., Sundays and Thursdays gratis.

The gem of the collection is Raphacl's Sposalisio (No. 305), the chief work of his drat or Unibrian period. The numerous pictures of the Lombard school, and particularly the frescoes sawn out of churches, are also very valuable. The drawing of the head of Christ for the last Supper (No. 308) shows with what beauty Lechardo could invest his figures. Among the oil-paintings, No. 89 by Bernardene Luine is a very meritorious work, and among the frescoes, Nos. 46 and 51, by the same master. The most interesting works of the early Italian school are No. 155 by tentile do Fabreino, and No 187 by Mantegna. The collection also affords an instructive survey of the progress of Carlo Crivelli (who flourished in 1468-93; 3rd and 8th rooms), a master who connects the Paduan school with that of Venice. The most notable works of the latter school are No. 104 by Gentile Bellini, Nos. 278 and 291 by Georgiani Bellini and No. 294 by Cong da Conegliani; and of a later period No. 205 by Boniface, No. 244 by Titim, and Nos. 249, 250, 251 by Lorenzo Lotto. No 453 by Domenichino, and No 328 by Guercino, represent the Italian masters of the 17th century. The most important works of foreign schools are No 444 by Rubens, Nos. 439 and 443 by Van Duck, and No. 446 by Rembrandt. Each picture bears the name of the painter. Catalogue 1 fr. 25 c.

The finest works are those of Agostono Busti, with the enigmatical surname of H Bumb ija (bern about 1470). Nothing is known about this master, except that he was one of the best Italian sculptors of the 16th cent., and his skill seems to have been inherited by the Milanese statuaries of the present day (p. 119).

The choir, transept, and dome are attributed to Bramonte, who, as is well known, first carried out his principle of centralising the building, an idea which formed the highest architectural aim of the Renaissance, in Upper Italy, and particularly at Milan. A fresco by Donato Montorfano (Crucifixion) of 1495, opposite the Last Supper, is in much better condition.

Depletable as is the condition of the Last Supper, the chief work executed by Leonardo during his stay at Milan the original alone exhibits to its ful, extent the em flous which the master in coded to express, and which even the best copies fail to reproduce. The Via Laurone (with the Palazzo Visconte on the left) leads hence to the Conso of Porta Ticinese in which we proceed to the right in the direction of the gate. Or the left we soon perceive a large ancient *Colonnabe, Pl 57 C 71 of sixteen Corinthian columns, standing detached from other and lings, the most important relic of the Roman Mediclanum, near which is the cutrance to

*8. Lorenzo (Pl. 18) the most an ient church in Milan Whether the handsome inter or once formed the principal hall of the therma. or of a pala e of Maximian (4th cent.), to which the above mentioned colonnade belonged, or a very ancient Christian place of worsh p. like S. Vitale at Ravenna, is uncertain. It was subsequently altered at least three times, the last time by Martino Bassa in the 16th century It is octagonal in form, and covered with a dome. On the four principal sides are large semicircular apses in two stories. each borne by four columns afternately octagonal and round, and the whole structure is simple and dignified. At the back of the high altar is the Cappella & Ippol.to, containing the tomb of Maria To the right of the church is the Chapet of St. Aquilinus, containing mosaics of the 6th and 7th cent, (Christ and the apostles), and an ancient Christian sarcophagus supposed to be that of the founder, the Gothic king Ataulph (411-16). The entranes to the chapel is adorned with an antique marble coping

By the Porta Transse, farther S., rises the ancient church of S. Eustorgio (Pl. 14, C. 8), founded in the 4th cent., re-creeted in the Gothic style by Tosano Lombardo in 1278, and restored in the bad taste of the 17th cent. by Richma, The bones of the Magle.

to whom the church was dedicated, were formerly deposited here, but were presented to the city of Cologne by Frederick Barbaressa after the conquest of Milan in 1162. At the back of the choir is a chapel in the best Renaissance style by Michel 220 (after 1462), containing the tomb of St. Peter the Martyr by G. But luceto of Siena, the freecoes on the high altar, representing scenes from the life of the Magi (1347), and from the Passion, and also the monument of Stefano Viscouti, are by the same master

8. Maria presso S. Celso (Pl. 21, D. 3), near the Porta Lodocica, possesses a handsome atrium attributed to Bramante, and a façade of which the upper part was constructed by Galeasso Alessa. On the right and left of the portal are Adam and Eve by Stolde Lerenzi.

In the Intenton is a picture by Paris Bordone, St. Jerome adoring the Child (2nd alter on the right), Gandenzio Ferrari Baptism of Christ (behind the high alter, Borgognone, Madicina autoring the Child, surrounded by John the Baptist, St. Rochus, and the denors of the picture (1st clapel on the left) above it. Sassoferrato, Madicina. The 2nd charge, in the left centains a sarcophagus with the relies of St. Celaus.

Adjacent to this church is S. Celso, a Romanesque editice, partially removed in 1826.

The Corso S Criso (Pt. D, 7, 8) leads back from this point to the interior of the city. To the right in the Piassa S. Eufemia is the church of that name (Pt. 13; D, 7), dating from the 5th cent, but entirely modernised in the 17th, with an lonic colonnade. Farther towards the N is situated —

6. Alessandro, Pl. 6; D, 6, in the Via Amedei, to the right) erected in 1602, the most sumptuously decorated church in Milan, but destitute of works of art. High altar adorned with precious stones.

We return by the Via Lupetta and the Via di Torino to the Piazza del Dueme. To the right in the Via Canno Alberto is the small church of S. Satiro, Pr. 31, D. 60, founded in 829, and re-erected by Bramente and his pupil Suarde in the 15th cent; the octagonal *Sacristy contains a handsome frieze halfway up the wall, with a gallery above it, and nich, s by Bramante b. low.

To the S. in the Piazza del Duomo, apposite the cathedral are the Palazzo Rease and the Archiepiscopal Palace, both already mentioned (p. 121). Adjacent is the Piazza Fontana (Pl. F. 6), with a fountain in red grante. Beyond it, in front of the Palazzo de Giusticia (Pl. 67; E. 6) is the statue of Beccarm (d. 1794, comp. 122) by Grandi, created in 1871.

The Via Brolo leads hence to the S to the Piazza S. Stefano, with the simple Renaissance church of that name (Pl 34, E, F, 6). The Via dell' Ospedale leads S.W. to the Corse di Porta Romans.

The *Ospedale Maggiore (Pl. 46, E, 7), a vast and remarkably the Gothio brick structure, begun in 1457 by Antonio Filorete of Florence, is one of the largest hospitals in existence, and tains no fewer than nine courts. The extensive principal court, surrounded by arcades, is by Richem (17th cent); the court to the right of it is as ribed to Bramanic. The edifice is entirely covered externally with terracotta in a style frequently observed in other Milanese be ildings, but its façade, with its rich window-mouldings, is superior to any other structure of the kind at Milan. In the chapel are two paintings by Francesco da Vico, containing portraits of Francesco and Bianca Maria Sforza, the founders of the bospital, Farther on, to the S (cutrance in the Corse Porta Romana), is the church of S. Nazaro, Pl 29; E, 7), with pictures by Bern. Laning (*Martyrdom of St. Catharine), and a handsome carved altar.

On the N.E. side of the eathedral begins the broad and bustling *Gorso Vittorio Emanuele (Pl. E. F. 6. 5), which, with its prolongation the Corso Porta Venezia, leads to the Giardini Pubblica and the station. This is the principal business street in Milan, containing the best shops. On the left side is the church of —

8. Carlo Borromeo (Pl. 12; E, 6), a rotunda in the style of the Pantheon at Rome, 156 ft in height, consecrated in 1847. It contains two groups in marble by Pompeo Marchess, and modern stained glass by Jose Bertimi (the finest on the right of the entrance. S. Carlo Borromeo visiting persons sick of the plague).

The adjacent Galleria de Cristoforia, now occupied with shops, was erected by Pizzala in 1830-32.

To the right, farther on, at the corner of the Via Monforte, is the small church of S. Babila (Pl. 10, F, 5), which is supposed to occupy the site of an ancient temple of the sun. In the Via Monforte is altuated the Palazz i di Prefettura (Pl. 53, F, G, 5), with a modern façade. To the S of this point, in the Via del Conservatorio, is the church of S. Maria della Passione (Pl. 24 · G, 6), of the 15th cent, with a spacious dome by Crist, Solari, surnamed Il Gobbo (1530), and paintings by B. Luini, Gaud. Ferrari, etc. The Conservatoire of Music occupies the old monastery buildings

The Corso Vittorio Emanuele is prolonged to the Ports Venezia by the Corso in Ports Venezia (Pl. F. G. 5, 4). On the left, on this side of the canal, is the Archiepiscopal Senanary (Pl. 61) with a fine court by Gius. Meda (16th cent.), with double coloniades, the lower Doric, the upper Ionic. Then, more to the left, Nos. 59-61, the Pal. Cana (Pl. 54), completed in 1861, with rich creamentation in terracotts. Opposite, on the right, is the Pal. Superiti (Pl. 56), another modern building, with lonic columns, reliefs by Marchesi, etc.

The *Giardini Pubblici (Pl. F. 4), between the Porta Venezia and the Porta Nuova, much extended in 1861, and containing fine avenues and several sheets of water, are the favourite promonade of the Milanese, especially on Sunday afternoons. The broad chest-nut avenue on the N. side, extending between these two gates, and planted on the old ramparts, Bastiana), is a fashionable drive towards sunset. A broad flight of steps ascends to the older part of the gardens, opened in 1755, in the centre of which is the Satone (Pl. F. G. 4), a square building containing the new municipal Vu-

The New Grandino Purblico between the Via Palestro and Via Manin, contains a small zeological garden, and is adorned with a statue of the M.lanese poet Carlo Porta and an Italia by Puttinati.

In the Plazza Cavour, outside the S.W. entrance, rises a bronze statue of twentr by Tabacchi on a lofty pedestal of grante. Clio is represented in front registering his name in her tablets, and at the back is the date 1865. - The Valla Reals (Pt. 70, F, 4), a plain modern building in the Via Palestro, contains a few works of art.

In the Via Manin, to the W., is the Museo Civico (Pt. 43, F, 4; admission on Thes., Wed., and Sat., 11-3 o'clock, ¹ 2 fr; on Thurs. gratis) containing natural history collections on the 1st floor palæontology and ethnography (also a phrenological collection); on the 2n-1 floor zoology, comprising one of the finest collections of reptiles to Europe, founded by Jan (d. 1866). At the entrance are busts of Jan and Cristoforis, former directors.

At the N W angle of the city has the spacious Piazza D Armi (Pl. B, C, 4), or drilling-ground, 783 yds, long and 748 yds wide, with the Castello, once the seat of the Viscouti and the Sforza, and now a barrack. The corner-towers and part of the walls connecting them on the S W, side are the sole remains of the original building. The adjoining Arena (Pl. 2, C, 3, 4), a kind of circus for races, etc., constructed under Napoleon I, can accommodate 30,000 spectators (fee † 2 fr.).

Opposite the castle, on the N.W side of the Plazza is the *Arco del Sempione, or Arco della Pace (Pl. 1 B. 3, 4), a triumphal arch in the Roman style constructed entirely of white marble from designs by L Cagnola, began in 1804 by Napoleon as a termination to the Simplon route (p. 25), and completed by the Emp. Francis in 1833 when the dedication and decorations were altered.

8 M Monza (Falcone, Alb. del Castello, near the station) is a town with 26,000 inhabitants. Leaving the station and following the Via Italia to the right, we reach the *Catherral, the chief object of interest. It was creeted in the 14th cent in the Lombard Gother style by Marco de Campione on the set—of a church founded in 1955 by the Lombard queen Theodolinda, and contains double sisles and transept, flanked with chapels on both sides.

Isterion In the cfi transept is the plain sarcophagus of Queen Theodolinds, in the E, transept relicts of the 18th cent supposed to represent the coronation of Emp. Otho 111, or that of Henry III. — he a casket forming the centre of a richly decorated cross over the altar, to the right of the choir, is preserved the celebrated laon (toows, with which 34 Lombard kings were crowned. The treasury is shown for a fee of 1 fr. for 1.2 pers., it also contains a midel of the size crown.

The Brotetto, or town-hall, of the 13th cent, with round arched windows and tower is believed to be part of a palace of the Emp Frederick I and the Lombard kings. The royal Summer Palace near Menza is a large building with an extensive and beautiful park, traversed by the Lambro. The church of the Madonna di Tirana contains frescoes by Luini, Gaudenzio Ferrari, and Cesare da Sesto.

The lines to Como and Licco divide at Monza. Lugano (932 ft.), with 6024 inhab., is charmingly situated on the lake of the same name, and enjoys quite an Italian climate (the agave blooming here in the open air). It is a very pleasant place for a lengthened stay, the environs possess all the charms of Italian mountain scenery, numerous villages and country-seats are scattered along the margin of the lake, and the lower hills are covered with vineyards and gardens, contrasting beautifully with the dark foliage of the chestnuts and walnuts in the background. To the S, immediately above the town, rises the Honte S. Salvatore, wooded to its summit, among the mountains towards the N, the double peak of the Monte Camoghè (7303 ft., p. 32) is conspicuous.

The interior of the town with its arcades, workshops in the open air, and granite-paved streets, is also thoroughly Italian in character. On market-day (Tuesday) a variety of picturesque Italian costumes and characteristic scenes may be observed here

The once numerous monasteries of Lugano have been suppressed with the exception of two. The most important was that of S. Maria degli Angioli, now the Hôtel du Pare. The adjacent church contains beautiful *Frescoes by Bern Lumi,

The painting on the wall of the screen, one of the largest and finest ever evecuted by Luini, represents the *Passion of Christ, and contains several hundred figures, arranged according to the antiquated style in two rows. In the foregroup, occupying the upper part of the wall, stand three huge crosses, at the foot of which we perceive Roman warriors the groups of the boly where, and St. John, and the executioners casting lots for the garments. Above, on a diminished scale from left to right, are Christ on the Mount of Olives. Christ taken prished, the Scourging the Bearing of the Cross the Entonian of the composition strikes one as old fashioned. Capecially after seeing Leonard's works, the eye cannot fail to be gratified by the nomerous beautiful details. The St. Sebastion and St. Rothus, below, between the arches, are particularly fine. To the left on the wall of the church, is the hast Supper, a picture in three sections, formerly in the Lyceum, and in the 1st Chapel on the right is a Madona both also by Luini.

S. Lorenzo the principal church, on an eminence (fine view from the terrace), probably erected by Tommaso Rodari at the end of the 15th cent, has a tastefully adorned marble façade.

Adjoining the Theatre are the old government buildings (now the Hôtel Washington), with a cool and pleasant colo haded court. The hall contains a monument to the architect Canonico di Tesserete, and a marble bust of General Dufour.

A small temple at the Villa Tanzina, where suites of apartments may be hired, ¹ 4 M S of the Hôtel do Parc, contains a bust of Washington, 'magnum sacculorum decus'. — The Villa Reamfour, charmingly situated near the Hôtel du Parc, of which '

now a dépendance, has a beautiful and very extensive garden, containing fine cedars, magnolias, camellias, etc.—Superb view from the tower in the garden of the Villa Enderlin, to which access is permitted by the proprietor.

Monte Caprino, opposite Lugano, on the E bank of the lake, is much frequented in holidays by the townspeople, who possess wine cellars (cantine) in the numerous coel grotties by which the side of the mountain is honeycombed. These receptacles are guarded by numerous hots, which from a distance present the appearance of a village. Good wine of toy coolness may be obtained here ('As') recommended), and there is also a browery.

Beyond Ligano the road gradually winds upwards to the W, turns S past the small Lake of Mussino, crosses the Agno, leads through the (3 M.) village of that name (967 ft.), and a short distance farther reaches the W, arm of the Lake of Lugano. Near Magliuse the lake is quitted, but another of its bays is touched near (3 M.) Ponte Tresa. This bay, which is so completely enclosed by mountains as apparently to form a distinct lake; is connected with the Lake of Lugano by a narrow channel only. The Tresa, which here emerges from the lake and forms the frontier between Switzerland and Italy, falls into the Lage Maggiore, 3 M. S.W. of Luino It is crossed by a bridge at Ponte Tresa.

Ferrari?), it is surrounded by five smaller pictures, the upper representing God the Father, at the sides eight saints and the domatrix.

On a height overlooking the entire district, 12 hr N. of the station and pier, is a colossal * Statue of S. Carlo, 70 ft. in height, resting on a pedestal 42 ft. high, erected in 1697 in honour of the celebrated Cardinal, Count Carlo Borromeo, Archbishop of Milan (born here in 1538, died 1584, canonised 1610)

The head, hands, and feet of the statue are of bronze, the robe of wrought copper. Notwithstanding its enormous dimensions, the statue is not devoid of artistic ment. The various parts are held together by iron cramps attached to a pilor of masonry in the interior. By means of lad ders, kept in readiness in the neighbourhood (fee), the lower part of the robe can be reached on the W side, and the interior entered. The unterprising view r may now climb to the head of the statue, which will hoof three persons but the sufficienting heat and the number of bats render the ascent far from pleasant

The adjacent church contains a few relics of S. Carlo The extensive building in the vicinity is an Ecclesistical Seminary.

Three days suffice for a visit to this district, which, though sendom visited, is one of the most beautiful of the S. Alps. Trave, are from the Simplen (R. 3) should, after visiting the Borromean Islands, begin this excursion at Stersa (p. 156) and terminate it at Arona. From Stress or Isola Beha by the Motterone to Orta 9, from Orta (or rather from Pena) to Varalto 4, are walking, from Varalio to Arona 5, to Novara 5 hrs. drive

A GUDE (to the summit of Monte Metterone 5-6 to Orta 8 fr; donkey and attendant to Orta 12 fr and fee) can hardly be dispensed with Mules at Orta a bigb charges. The ascent of the Moterone is fatiguing, as the descent must be made the same may, but presents no difficulty and is very attractive.

The Lago Maggiore is separated from the Lake of Orta by a long mountain ridge, which is crossed by a footpath from Stress (p. 156) in 5-6 hrs. via Gignese, Coiro, and Armeno (where the high road is teached) to Orta (see below) — Farther to the N this mountain culminates in the grassy Monte Motterone. The path from Stress (guide desirable, see above) ascends opposite the Isola Bella, at first through a chestnut grove, then, above the village of Someroro, over form clad and grassy slopes, passing several chalets shaded by lofty trocs, and leading to the W. to a small church, where it turns to the right. Thence to the summit 1 hr more

The extensive prospect commanded by the summit of *Monte Motterone (4891 ft.), or Margaszoto, which may be called the Rigi of the S. Alps, embraces the entire amphitheatre of mountains from Monte Rosa to the Ortler in the Tyrol. A panorama may be bought at Stresa or Orta for 31 o fr.

To the right of M ate Rosa appear the snow mountains of M ate Moro, Prezo di Bottacello, Samplon, Monte Leone, Gries, and St. Gotthard, farther E the conical Stella above Chiavenna, and the bing, imposing ice-range of the Bernina, which separates the Val Bregagha from the Valenda At the speciator's feet are seven different lakes, the Lake of Orta, Lag. di Mergozzo Laga Maggiore, Lago di Monato, Lago di Comablia, Lago di Manadone, and Lago di Varese, farther to the right stretch the excusive plains of Lomardy and Picdmont, in the centre of which rises the lofty cathedra, of Milan. The Tiem and the Sosia meander like silver threads through the posies, and by a singular optical delusion frequently appear to traverse a lofty tableland. The simultaneous view of the Isola Madre in Lago Maggiore and the Isola S. Gina in the Lake of Orta has a remarkably picturesque effect. — The mountain itself consists of a number of barren summits, studded with occasional chalets, shaded by trees its base it is esciriled by abestnut trees, and the foliage and luxurians.

Franc's of Assist, each containing a scene from he life of the saint. The life size figures are composed of terracotta, highly coloured, with a backer and al fresco, as a whose though destitute of artistic worth, the representations are spirited and effective. The best groups are in the 13th, 16th and 30th chapels the last representing the conomization of the saint and the assembly of cardinals. The *Tower on the samuel of the hill commands an admirable panorama, the snowy peak of Nonte Rosa rises to the W above in ower intervening in sintains. The *Freinta del Monte. expects a fee of 1 fr., for showing the above mentioned three chapels

Opposite Orta rises the rocky island of S. Giulio, covered with trees and groups of houses (be at there and back 1 fr.; also steamboat station). The Church, founded by St. Julius, who came from Greece in 379 to convert the inhabitants of this district to Christianity, has been frequently restored; it contains several good reliefs, some ancient frescoes, a handsome pulpit in the Romanesque style, and in the sacristy a Madonna by Gaudenzia kerrari

On the W bank of the lake, opposite the island, the white houses of the village of Polla (small ℓ a/ ℓ) peep from the midst of vineyards and groves of chestnut and walnut-trees. Boat from Orta to Pela 1 fr. with one rower; steamboat, see above).

A path towards the S winds apwards fr in Pelia through a grove of chestnut and fruit trees, in 11 g hr to the Madonna del Sasso, the picturesque church of the vidage of Boletto. An open space by the church on the brink of a precipice several hundred feet above the cake, commands a fine prospect

In f hr (from Pella) we reach Arola, at a small chapel beyond which we must again avoid the ascent to the right, the path pursues a straight direction and soon descends. The Pellino, a mountain-torrent, descending from the Colma, forms (5 min) a picturesque waterfall. Reautiful retrospective views of the lake. The path now ascends through a shady wood, between disintegrated blocks of grapite which crumble beneath the touch, to the Col di Colma (212 hrs from Pella), a ridge connecting Monte Presigone with Monte Gmistrella. The prospect of the Alps is beautiful, embracing Monte Rosa, the lakes of Orta and Varese, and the plain of Lombardy The whole route is attractive. In descending on the W. side (to the right) the traveller overlooks the fruitful Val Sena, with its numerous villages. The path, again traversing groves of chestnut and walnut-trees, carpeted with turf and wild-flowers, now leads through the Val Duggia to (1 hr.) (withco and (1 hr.) ---

A bridge with three arches crosses the river. The old town and the Sacro Monte are very picturesque when seen through the arches of the bridge. — The collegiate church contains an altar-piece representing the Nuptials of St. Catharine by Gaudencio Ferrari, who was born here in 1484 (d. 1549; p. 59). The churches of *S. Maria delle Grazie (in the choir), S. Maria di Loreto, and S. Marco also contain frescoes by this maater (those in the last being of his earlier period).

The Bacro Monte, the object of numerous pilgrimages, rises in the immediate vicinity of the town. It is attained in 14 hr. by a path shaded by heautifus trees, but the enjoyment is somewhat marred by the importination of beggars. The summit, surmounted by a chape, and crucilly, romniands a magnificent view of the airrounding mountains towering one above another. Besides the church there are a great number of Chapeus or Oratories on the summit and stipes of the bacro Monte, many of them buried aim ing the trees containing scenes from the sife of the Sava ur, in terraculta with life-size figures arranged in groups. Each chapel is devoted to a different subject, the lat, for example, to the Fall, the 2nd to the Annunciation, and so in to the Abth, containing the Entombiaent of the Virgin. Some of the frescoes by Pellegrino Tibalds and Condense Ferrari are worthy of inspection. The body of the church begun in 1396 by Marco de Camptone in the Gothic style, consists of a nave with aisles and 14 chapels, and is surmounted by a dome, borne by ten slender columns. Pavia, with 28,100 inhab, capital of the province of the same name, situated near the confinence of the Ticino and the Po, the Ticinum of the ancients, subsequently Papia, was also known as the Città di Cento Torri from its numerous towers, of which only a few still exist. In the middle ages it was the faithful ally of the German emperors, until it was subjugated by the Milanese, and it is still partly surrounded by the walls and fortifications of that period. At the N. end of the town is situated the Casile, erected by the Visconti in 1360-69, now used as a barrack.

Leaving the railway-station we enter the Corso Cavour (Pl. A. 4) through the Porta Borgorato or Marengo (in a wall to the right is the statue of a Roman magistrate), and following the Via

S Ginsappe to the right reach the Piazza del Duomo

The CATREDRAL (Pl. 4; B. 4), rising on the site of an ancient basilica begun in accordance with a design by Bramante, and continued by Crastoforo Rocchi in 1486, but never completed, is a vast circular structure with four arms

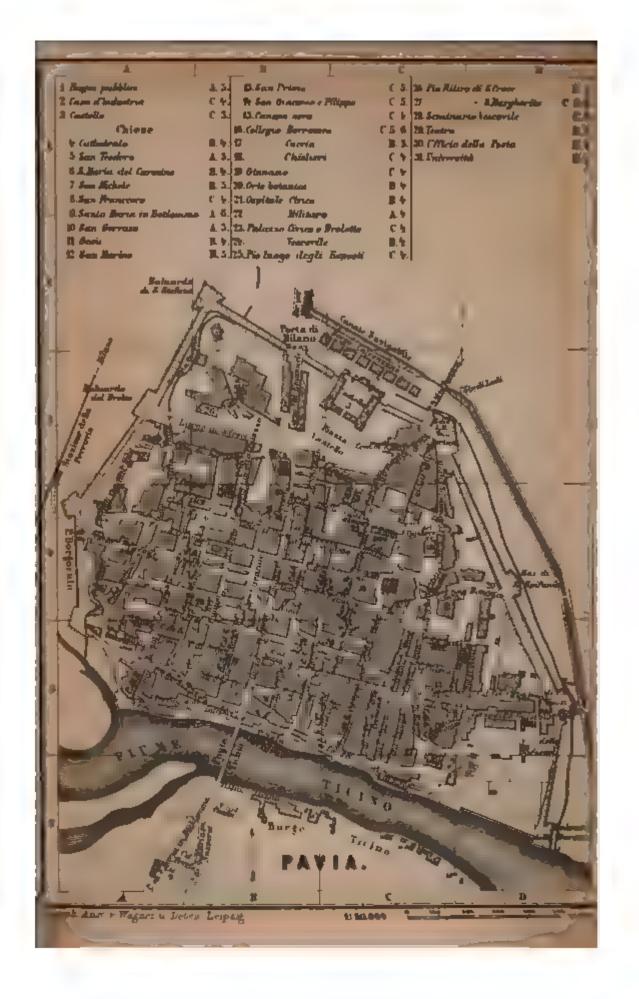

In the Interior, on the right, is the sumptions "Area di S. Agosino," adorned with 290 figures (of saints, and allegoricar) begun, it is supposed, in 1362 by Bounto da Campighone, by whom the figures on the tombs of the Scaliger family at Verma (p. 189) were executed. To the right of the entrance is a whoden model of the church as originally projected.

The gateway to the left of the church is in the late-Romanesque style. Adjoining it rises a massive Campanile, begun in 1583.

We may now proceed to the Corso Vittorio Emanuels, a street intersecting the town in a straight direction from N. to S., from the Porta di Milano to the Porta Tisinese, and leading to the covered Bridge (14th cent; a pleasant promenade with picturesque view) over the Ticino, which is here navigated by barges and steamboats. A chapel stands on the bridge, halfway across.

MICHELE (Pl 7, B, 5), to which the third side-street to the right leads (coming from the bridge), a Romanesque church erroue-ously ascribed to the Lombard kings, belongs to the latter part of the lith cent, and is now undergoing restoration. The façade is adorned with numerous very ancient reliefs in sandatone, in ribbon-like stripes, and a curious gabled gallery. The nave and aisles are supported by eight pillars, from which rise double round arches. The short choir, under which there is a crypt, terminates in an appearance of the transept rises a dome. The pillars of the nave bear traces of ancient freecoes. The interior has lately been restored.

The traveller may now ascend the Corso Vitt, Emanuele to the University (Pl 31, B, 4), founded in 1361 on the site of a school of law, which had existed here since the 10th century. The building is much handsomer than that of Padua, the quadrangles of the interior are surrounded by handsome areados and embellished with numerous memorial-tablets, busts, and monuments of celebrated or dessors and students. In the first court is a marble statue of the mathematician Antonio Bordoni (d. 1864), in the second a statue of Volta and three memorial reliefs of professors attended by students of the 14th century

The Corso next leads in a N direction, past the Theatre, to the Castle mentioned at p. 164 (Pl. C. 3), containing a handsome court

At the back of the university lies the Ospedale Civico and farther E, in the Contrada Canepanova the church of S. Maria Incoronata di Canepanova (Pl. 15, 1, 4), a small domo-covered structure designed by Bramante (1492). More to the N., at the corner of the Contrada del Collegio Germanico, is the Romanesque church of S. Francesco (Pl 8, C, 4), dating from the 14th cent., with aisles and choir in the pointed style. In the vicinity stands the Cellegio Ghisheri (Pl. 18; C, 4), founded in 1569 by Pius V. (Ghisheri), a colossal bronze statue of whom has been erected in the plazza in front. On the E, side of the Plazza Ghishori is the Institute di Belle Arti, containing collections of natural history, antiquities, etc.

In the Contrada del Gesù, to the W of the university, to the right, is the Jesuits' Church (Pl. 11; B, 4) - In the Contrada Malaspina is the Casa Malaspina, at the entrance to the court of which are busts of Boethus and Petrarch. The interior contains a small collection of engravings and paintings.

Rottines, when confined here by the Emperor Theodoric, composed his work on the Tons atton of Philosophy and Petrarch once spent an antumn here with his daughter and sor in law. His grandson, who died at the Casa Malasgina, was interred in the neighbouring church if S. Zeno A short poem of Petrarch in alias, in to this event, in six latin alstiches, is one of the many inscriptions in the wal, opposite the entrance

The Contrada del Gean terminates in the Plazza del Carmine, in which is situated the church of S. Magia del Carmine (Pl. 6), a brick edifice of fine proportions, flanked with chapels, and dating from 1375.

The most interesting building in the S.E. part of the town is the Collegio Borromeo (Pl. 16; (, 5, 6), with its beautiful court, founded by St. Carlo Borromeo in 1563; the vestibule is decorated with frescoes by Fed. Zuccari.

Cremma, the capital of a province and an episcopal see, with 26,500 mbab, lies in a fertile plain on the left bank of the Po. The spacious streets and piazzas bear testimony to its ancient importance.

The original town was wrested by the Romans from the Gallic Cenomans and colonised by them at various periods, the first of which was at the belianing of the second Ponic war (BC 218). It suffered seriously during the civil wars, and was several times reduced to rains, but was restored by the Emp. Vespasian. The Goths and Lombards, especially Ring Agilulf, as well as the subsequent conflicts between Guelphs and Glubelines, occasioned great damage to the two. Cremons esponsed the cause of Frederick Barbarossa against Milan and Grema, and afterwards came into the possession of the Visconti and of Francese. Sforza, after which it belonged to Milan. On 1st Feb., 1702, Prince Eugene impressed the French marsha, Villeroi here, and took him prisoner. In 1799 also the Vistonia detailed the French here.

The manifectivers of the far fam of Violins and Violas of Cremons were Andr and Ant. Aman (1590-1620), the two Guarners (1563-80 and 1717-40), and Stradience (1870-1728)

Cremona was the birth, are of Soforube Angustola (1535-1628) who, like her five aisters practised the art of painting and was highly estermed by her contemporaries. She afterwards retired to Genoa and even in her old age afterched the admiration of Van Dyck. In the 16th cent Cremona possessed a school of art. If its own, which appears to have been influenced by Remanino especially, and also by Giullo R. mano.

In the Piazza Granor, Pl. F. 4) rises the Torrasso, a tower 397 ft in height, said to be the loftlest in Italy, erected in 1261-84, connected with the cathedral by a series of loggie. The summit commands an extensive prospect. Opposite the tower is the Gothic *Palazzo Pubblico Pl. 121 of 1245 (restored), containing a few pictures by masters of the Cremona school, and a richly decorated chimney piece in marble by G. (. Pedone (1502), . Adjacent is the *Palazzo de' Giureconsulti, of 1292, now a school.

The *Cathedral (Pl 3; F, 4), of 1107, in the German-Lombard style, has a rich façade embellished with columns.

The Interior with its airlie and transpit, also Canked with airles, Is covered with frescoes executed by various representatives of the school of Cremona, such as Borra con : 1500) father and son, and the lat r minsters Camps Attabeth Bembe, and tratte On the left wall; above the first four arches of the nave, Borracone the Elder Life of the Vergin depicted in eight scenes bile with, Bourfairo Bembo, The Magi, and Presentation in the Temple, beyond the organ, Altobello de Melone, hight into Egypt and Massacro of the Innocents, above the last arch, Buccacano Christ tenching in the Comple. In the vicinity are the octagonal Bultislero (Pl. 1, 8, 4) of 1167, and the Campo Santo (Pl. 2), with curious and very anchous mosaics; among these are Hercules and Nessua; Piety wounded by Cruelty; Faith tearing out the tongue of Discord, etc. (entrance to the right of the cathedral, No. 10).

From the Palazzo Pubblico to the W. the Contrada Arilerticeds to the Palazzo Reale (formerly Ala di Ponzone), which contains natural history and other collections, a cabinet of coins, and a few pictures (open daily 9-3 except Sundays). Farther up the Corso Vittorio Emanuelo, in the second cross-street to the left, is the richly painted church of S. Pietro at Po (Pl. 10, D. E. 5), designed by Ripari in 1549-70, and containing pictures by Ant. Campi, Bern. Gatti, and others. — We then return by the Contrada Bassa to S. Agostino e Giacomo in Branda (Pl. 6, D. 3) of the 14th cent., with paintings by Perugino (6th chapel on the right, *Madonna and two saints, 1494) and Galeazzo Campi

We next walk through the Contrada S. Margherita (passing on the right the small church of that name, built and embellished with paintings by Giulio Campi) to the Piazza Garinaldi (Pl. C. D. 2) with the church of S. Agata (Pl. 5; choir adorned with earlier and better frescoes by Giulio Campi), whence the Corso di Porta Milano leads in a N.W. direction to the gate of that name and to the station.

Among the numerous handsome palaces of Cremona may be mentioned the Pal S. Secondo, the Palazzo Crotti (formerly Raimondi) containing sculptures by Pedone, the Pal. Stanga a S. Vicenzo, and the Palazzo Dati (now part of the large hospital), with its fine court and staircase.

About 11 2 M to the E f the town, not far from the Mantua road, is the church of S. Bergomo (1246 ft.), the ancient Bergomum, which belonge i to the republic of Venice from 1428 to 1797, is now a provincial capital with 36,000 mhab, and one of the busiest of the smarler trading and manufacturing towns in Italy. The once far-famed fair (Fiera di S. Alessandro, lasting from the middle of August to the middle of S. ptember) has now lost its importance. The town consists of two distinct parts, the old and the new. The New Yown (Burgo S. Leonardo and Rargo S. Tomaso), with its woollen silk, and other manufactories, the Corso, the interesting piazza where the fair is held, the new Prefettura, and a recently completed Protestant church, lies in the plain.

The OLD Town (Città), beautifully situated on the hills and containing many interesting houses of the early and late Renaissance, is connected with the lower town by the Strada Vittorio Emanuele. The Promenade affords a flue view of the richly cultivated plain and the beautiful amphitheatre formed by the surrounding mountains, particularly those to the N.E. The Castle (Pl. A. 1), tising on the hill to the N.W. above the town, commands a still finer prospect

In the market-place (1¹ 4 M from the railway-station), now the Piazza Garibaldi, is situated the Palazza Nuovo (Pl. 8. C. 2), the seat of the municipal authorities, erected in the Renaissance style by Scamozzi, but unfinished. Opposite to it is the library in the Oothic Palazza Vecchia or Brolette, the ground-floor of which consists of an open half supported by pillars and columns. Near it are the Monument of Torquato Tasso (whose father Bernardo was born at Bergamo in 1493), and a handsome fountain.

At the back of the Brotetto rises the church of S. Maria Maggiore (Pl 5, B, C, 2, 3), erected in 1173 in the Romanesque style with ancient portals supported by lions on the N, and S, sides. Adjoining the N, portal is the rich Renaissance façade of the chapel of the Collegn

The Interior (entrance on the S side) contains some ancient pictures. One Tarved work on the choir stalls by the Bergamisque Giov Franc Capo Ferrate, and admirable inlaid wood (intersia) by Fra Damana This church sise contains the monument of the celebrated composer Damiralia of Bergamo (d. 1848), by Fine Fela, and, opposite, that of his teacher thee Bimone Maye (d. 1845). The facade of the appointing Cappella Colleon: shown by the engrestano of the church) in the early Renaissance style, is latishly adorned with a juried marbles and sculpturing. In the interior, which has been much altered, is the monument of the founder Bartolomineo Colleon (d. 1475, p. 255), by G. Ant. Amadea, which is deservedly considered one of the best Renaissance sculptures in Lombardy. The reliefs represent the Bearing of the Cross, Cruciffxion, and Descent from the Cross, below runs a frieze of Cupids, above which are the Analysis attom, the Naturaly and the Mage and on the armust is the pladed eques run statue of C. Bront, adjacent the much smaller, but beautifully executed in a ment of his oxighter Medea. Above the alter, to be right, are some time sculptures, to the after A Hay Family by Angelies Assignment.

The adjoining Cathedral (Pl. C. 2. 3) was built from the designs of C. Font in 1 in the second half of the 17th cent, on the site of an carlier edifice. At the first altar to the left is a Madenna and saids by G. B. Moroni, a pupil of Moretto; the choir contains a Madenna by Saroldo. The adjacent Baptistery, a Remaissance structure, is best viewed from the passage leading to the sacristy, in which are three pictures by Lorenzo Letto.

On the slope of the hill, in the street leading to the lower town, is situated the Accademia Carrara (Pl. 11, E. 2), a school of art containing a picture-gallery (Pinacoteca Lochus, open to the public daily from 30th Aug. to 18th Sept., during the rest of the year on the 1st San, and 3rd Thurs, of each month, abown at other times on application to the custodian).

The eminent painter Lorenzo Letto (b. after 1480, d. at Loreto 1554), whose style is closely analogous to that of the Venetian school, was probably a native of Bergamo. Good examples of his works are possessed by the churches of S. Bernardino (high alterpiece of 1521), S. Bartolommeo (in the choir, 1506), S. Vichele freengelo or Posso Bianco (Visitation, fiesco above the door of processing the content of the choir of Brescia (515 ft.), the ancient Brixia, which was conquered by the totals and afterwards became a Roman colony, vied with Milan at the beginning of the 16th cent as one of the wealthiest cities of Lombardy, but in 1512 was sacked and burned by the French under Gaston de Foix, after an obstinate defence. Five years later it was restored to the dominions of Venice, to which it belonged till 1797, but it has never recovered its ancient importance. On 1st April, 1849 the town was bombarded and taken by the Austrians under Haynau, and some of the buildings still bear traces of damage done on that occasion.

Brescia is beautifully situated at the foot of the Alps, and its numerous fountains of limpid water lend it an additional charm. It is now a man facturing place with 35,500 inhab., the capital of a province, and the resilien e of a bishop. Iron wares, and particularly weapons (hence 'Brescia armata') form the staple commodities, and a considerable number of the firearms used by the Italian army are made here. The woollen, linen, and silk manufactories are also worthy of mention. Brescia occupies a place of a little importance in the listory of art from having given birth to Alpssandro Rt ovvicino, surnamed IL Mobberto (1498-1555) who appears to have studied exclusively at his native place, and whose teacher is said to have been Floring Ferramola of Brescia 11 has been asserted that he was influenced by Titlan and the Roman school, but for this there is no mason. Like the Veronese masters, he is distinguished from the Ven tian school, with which he has generally been classed by the comparative soborness of L s coouring Combdited a livery lone, notwithstanding which he vies with the Venebans in richness and brid lancy while be sometimes reveals the possesse in in full degree of the idealay of the golden period of art. Businessen began his career as a painter in his 18th year. He rarely extended the sphere of his labours beyond his native place, and Breseia is therefore abandantly stored with his works. The churches here such as S (kimente, p. 175) display his fertibity, both as a painter tel fresco and in cits, ferming quite a museum of his pictures. S. (in vann) Evangelista (p. 174), S. Nazaro c. Celso (p. 76), and for Galleria Testo (p. 174) all contain admirable speciment of its powers. Another enument master of the school of Brescia, and a contemporary of Buenvicino, was Girol Romanoio (145-1568) also contains several interesting animoties to 17b)

High after piece an Assemble in Marble, designed by Conco. In the dome the four Evangelists, high reliefs in marble.

Passing through a door between the 2nd and 3rd altar, we descend by 25 st ps to the Duomo Vecchio (Pl 6, D, 4), generally called La Rotonda situated on the low ground to the 8 of the Duomo Nuovo (shown by the sacristan of the new cathedral who lives at the back of the chair of the latter). This massive structure is circular, as its name imports, with a passage round it surmounted by a dome and rosting on eight short pillars in the interior. The substructure is very ancient (9th cent.) while the dome and cupola (Romanesque) date from the 12th century. The transept and choir with lateral chapels at the back were added at a very early period. On both sides of the pull it are statues by Alessandro Vittoria. At the second alter on the right is the monument of Bishop Lambertino (d. 1349) with reliefs. Alter-piece, an Assumption by Moretto (1526). — Below the dome is the crypt, or Busilies di 8 Filastro supported by 42 columns.

Opposite the E side of the Duomo Nuovo is the entrance to the *Biblioteca Quiriniana (Biblioteca Comunale, Pl. 19, D, 4, fee by fr.), comprising 40,000 vols, bequeathed to the town in 1750 by Cardinal Quirini. Several curiosities are preserved in a suparate cabinet. The Brolette (Pl. 2; D, 3), adjoining the cathedral on the N., is a massive and spacious building of the 12th cent , but was afterwards so much altered that its original form has been almost entire,y obliterated It was anciently the seat of the municipal authorities, and now contains the courts of justice. Part of it is used as a prison. The campanile on the S side, called La Torre del Popolo, belongs to the original edifice. - A well preserved fragment of Gothic architecture in the street ascending hence, with circular windows and brick mouldings, is also interesting

To the W., not far from the Bralette, extends the interesting Plazza VECCHIA, in which rises the *Palazzo Comunale (Pl. 16: (, 3), usually called La Loggia, the town-ball of Brescia, erected by Formentone of Brescia in 1508 on the ruins of a temple of Vulcan. with a 'putto frieze by Jacope Sansereno and window mouldings by Palladio, of the latter half of the 16th century. The interior was half destroyed by a fire in 1575. The exterior of this imposing structure is almost overladen with enrichments. On the ground floor is a deep hall resting on columns; in front are pillars with columns in the wall. In the angles of the arches is a series of busts of Roman emperors as medalhous. The upper floor recedes considerably. The handsome adjacent building on the right, the Archive e Comera Actarile, is probably also by Formontone (The traveller should walk round the whole building,)

On the opposite side of the Piazza, above the arrade, rises the Torre dell' Orologio, or clock-tower, with a large dial marking the hours according to the Italian computation (twice I to 12, The bell is struck by two iron figures as at Venice (p. 225). left rises a Monument, erected by Victor Enimanuel in 1864 to the natives of Brescia who fell during the gallant defence of their town against the Austrians in the insurrection of 1849 — The third side of the prazza is occupied by the Monte de Pieta (formerly the Prigion) a plain Renaissance building with a handsome loggia

Not far from the Prazza Vecchia is the church of *8. Giovanni Evangelista (P. 11, C. 3, contaming several admirable pictures.

The temple which, according to inscriptions, was erected by Vespasian in A.D. 72 (Temple di Vespasiano), stands on a lofty substructure with a projecting colonwade of ten columns and four pillars to which the steps ascend. The substructions portions of the steps, and the bases and parts of the shafts of the columns, in white marble, are still well preserved. The Cella consists of three sections, each of which was dedicated to a different god (perhaps favored lands and Markey).

The pavement of the Principal Hall has been restored with the aid of the original remains. An ancient mosaic has also been placed here By the walk are alters and Reman inscriptions from the province. The Room on the right contains mediava, and other curiosities, ornaments, the monument of Count Pitignan), weapons, medals (those of the Napoleome period very numerous). In the Central Room and the Room on the left are ancient semptures, including some interesting marble busis and a relicit of a naval battle, the most valuable of all, however is a fine statue of ""Victori, excavated in 1826, a broaze figure about 6 ft in height with a silver-plated wreath of laurel round her head a prestored belief on which she is about to write, in her left hand, and a prestored belief under her left foot. This is one of the most admirable specimens of the ancient plastic art now in existence. Also a number of coins and medals, ornaments, busts in gilded broaze, fragments of a colossal figure from a temple, portions of sare ophage, decerated breastplate of a horse, etc.

The street opposite the museum descends to a small plazza, from which a street to the left leads to S. Clemente. Remains of an ancient edifice are built into the wall of the house No. 285 in the small piazza.

About 12 M from the Porta S Giovanni (Pl. A. 3) lies the pretty Campo Santo, to which an avenue of cypresses leads from the high road.

29. From Brescia to Tirano in the Valtellina. Lago d'Isso. Monte Aprica.

Distance about 8t M. From Brescia a post omnibus daily at an early hour, halling at Pisogne (1 hr.) and at Reeno (1 hr.), and seriving at Edolo in the evening Diligence from Edelo to Tirano also daily in 6 hrs.

This route is recommended to travellers who are already acquainted with the Lake of Come, and who desire to reach the upper Val Tadina and the Stelvio or Bernina (R. 5). The scenery from Ison onwards is beautiful the whole way

A new Branch Radway, diverging at Palazzolo (p. 171), connects the Lago d'Isco with the Milan and Ver na line (8 M. in 25 min ; fares 1 fr. 15, 80, 80 c.). Paratico, its terminus, has on the left bank of the Oglin, apposite Sarnico (see below) Intermediate station, Capriolo,

The Milan road is followed from Brescia to —

12 M. Iseo (Leone), situated on the lake of that name, a busy little town. STEAMBOAT twice daily from Sarnico (Leone d'Oro), at the S W. and of the lake, to Iseo and Lovere (see below) and back, in correspondence with the diligences between Grumello (p. 171) and Samico, Brescia and Isco, and Lovere and Edolo, from Sarnico to Lovere, 29/4 hrs (fares 2 fr., 1 fr. 40 c.)

The *Lago d'Iseo (Lacus Schmus, 620 ft. above the sea-level), about 15 M. in length from N to S., about 1000 ft deep in the centre, and averaging 11 . M. in breadth, somewhat resembles an S in form. The Oglio enters the lake between Pisogne and Lovere and emerges from it near Sarnico. The scenery vies in beauty with that of the Lago di Garda, the soil is admirably cultivated, and the vegetation of a luxuriant, southern character. The Mex-Isola an island 11 2 M, in length, consisting of a lotty tidge descending precipitously on the E. side (at the S. E. base of which lies Peschiera d'Iseo, and at the N.W. base Siviano, two fishing-villages), rises picturesquely and boldly in the middle of the lake.

Opposite Peachiera lies the islet of S. Paolo.

The new rock-hown *Itoad on the E bank, beginning at Sais Marazzno and terminating at Pisogns, a distance of 6 M, is little inferior in boldness to that on the banks of the Lake of Como. It is carried through a number of galleries and supported by solid masonry. Immediately to the left lies the lake, while the rocks rise precipitously on the right, overbanging the road at places. From less it winds through a succession of vineyards, which cover the valley and its slopes, and reaches the bank of the lake at Suizano, opposite the island mentioned above. On the mountain, far above, is seen the white church of S. Rocco; then the ruins of the monastery of S. Loretto on a rock in the lake. Sale Marazzno (Albergo della Posta), consisting of a long row of houses, is the largest village on the road. Next Marone, at the W. base of Monte Guglielmo (6414 ft.; ascent 4 hrs., beautiful view), and—

24 M Pisogne (Albergo Grisoni), at the N E and of the lake. Towards the end of this part of the route the scenery is strikingly beautiful, especially where the lake terminates in a rounded bay, and where Lovere (S. Antonio, or Posta, Leone d'Oro, Roma), with its busy barbour, which before the construction of the road afforded the sole outlet to the industry of the Val Camonica, lies picturesquely on the N bank. The church of the Madonna dell' Assunta (ontains several pictures by Moroni, and a monument by Canova The long and bandsome Palazzo Tadmi, a conspicuous point in the distance, contains a collection of antiquities, pictures, and natural history specimens. Omnibuses between Lovere and Edólo, and Lovere and Bergámo (p. 169)

The road now quite the lake and traverses a fertile, alluvial tract. To the left flows the Oglio, a considerable river, which is crossed at Darfo. The road skirts the W. side of the valley, which presents the usual characteristics of the valleys of the S. Alpa, yielding rich crops of maize, grapes, mulberries, etc., and enclosed by lefty, wooded mountains. The dark rocks (verrucano) here contrast peculiarly with the light triassic formations.

At Ciridate the Oglio is crossed by two bridges. On the height a very picturesque deserted monastery. Near Breno a broad hill, planted in numerous terraces with vines and mulberries, and surmounted by a ruined castle, rises from the valley.

38 M. Breno (Pellegrino, Italia, poor) is the capital of the Val Camenica, which is 36 M. in length, extends from Lovere and Pisogne to the Monte Tonale (see below), and produces a considerable quantity of silk and iron.

The road now crosses a mountain-terrent descending from Monte Pisso, the indented crest of which peeps from an opening on the right. A massive mountain of basalt here extends towards the road, and columnar basalt is visible at places near the summit. Beyond Capo di Ponte (1374 ft) the character of the scenery gradually changes. The valley contracts, maize and mulberries become rarer, while numerous chestnut-trees flourish on the slopes and in the valley itself. The road ascends slightly 541 2 M. Edolo (2287 ft., Due Mori, Gallo, uninviting), a mountain-village possessing iron - works, lies on the Oglio, here descending from the rocks, and is overhung on the E. by the Monte Accolo. (Diligence to Tirano, 8 hrs., one-horse carriage in 6 hrs.,

10 fr., to Lovere in 9 hrs., 15 fr.)

The TONALE ROUTE, diverging here to the N E to the Monte Tonale (6345 ft), leads on the E side of the Monte Topale, which forms the boundary between Lombardy and the Tyrol, through the Val d. Sob (Sulsberg, and Val di Non (Nonsberg), which descend to S. Michele (or Walsch-Michael, a station on the railway from Botzen to Verona (p. 41), in the valley of the Auge

The new road to Tirano, which crosses numerous bridges and rests almost entirely on masonry, gradually ascends from Edolo on the N. slope of the Val di Corteno, affording pleasant retrospects of the Val Camonica, and the snow-peaks of the Adamello in the background. 41/2 M. Cortenedolo (the village opposite, on the right bank of the Cortono, is Santicolo), then (21 g M.) Galleno, whence a path to the N leads over the Monte Padrio in 3 hrs. to Tirano. The road next crosses to the right bank of the Corteno, and recrosses it again at the small village of S Pietro, not far from the summit of the (6 M) Passo d'Aprica (4049 ft) About 3/4 M. beyond the pass near the poor village of Aprica, stands the new *Albergo dell' Aprica

A view of the Val Tellina, with Sondrio in the background, is now soon disclosed. The broad, gravelly bed of the Adda and the devastations frequently caused by the stream are well surveyed hence. Several of the snowy peaks of the Berning come in view to the N.; lower down, above Tresenda, rises the square watch-tower of Tequio. On the road is the Belvedere (lnn), 1^{1} $_{2}$ M.

from Aprica. Fine "View of the valley of the Adda.

The admirably constructed road now descends through plantations of . hestnuts, in a long curve, to La Motta, it finally reaches the bottom of the valley of the Adda by means of two tunnels and crosses the river near Tresenda. From Tresenda to Tirano about 6 M, more Tirano (1506 ft , Posta or Angelo , Due Torri, with the post-office, Stelein) is a small town with old mansions of the Visconti, Pallavicini, and Salis families, which has often suffered from inundations of the Adda. Those whose lestination is Sondrio (1139 ft , *Posta Maddalena), capital of the Valtellina, need not proceed first to Tirano, but carriages are seldom to be obtained at Tresenda. Comp. Bucdeker's Eastern Alps.

30. The Lago di Garda.

Steambout. W Bask between Desenzano and Riva dep from Desenzano daily at 1 50 pm, arr at Riva at 6 pm, aep from Riva at 5 am., arr at Desenzano at 9 15 a.m. (lares 4 fr. 35, 2 fr. 40 r.). Station Salo, Maderno, Carynano, Tignale, Tremosine, Lomone, Riva. E Bask between Riva and P schiera, every day except Tuesday dep from Riva at 5.40 am. arr at Peschiera at 9.40 am. dep from Peschiera at 1.20 pm, arr at Riva at 5.10 pm, (fares 5 fr. 10, 2 fr. 90 c.). Restaurant in board the steamers, payment to be made in Italian money.

The Lago di Gorda (226 ft.), the Lacus Benacus of the Romand the largest of the N. Italian lakes, is 37 M. in length, and 11 so 10 M. broad, area 189 sq. M., depth in many places upwards of 1000 ft. The whole lake belongs to Italy, except the N. extremity with Riva, which is Austrian.

The lake is rarely perfectly calm, and in stormy weather is almost at rough as the sea, a circumstance recorded by Virgil (Georg ii. 160). The blue water, like that of all the Alpine lakes, is remarkably clear. The carpione, or satmon troot, which attains a weight of 25 .bs., the trutta, or trout I by Ih , the lagone, and the surdene are excellent lish.

The banks, although inferior in attraction to those of the bake of Como, present a great variety of beautiful landscapes, enhanced by the imposing expanse of the water. The thores of the S. had are that and wall cultivated, but they become bolder between cape S. Vigilio and a point to the N. of Solo, where the lake contracts. The vegetation is luxuriant especially on the m. re sheltered W. bank. Even the sensitive commarrives at maturity here, but the trees require to be carefully covered in winter. This is accomplished with the aid of numerous white pillars of brick, 8.20 ft. in height, erected at regular intervals, and united by transverse beams at the top. The fruit is more bitter and aromatic than that of Sicily, suffers less from carriage, and keeps longer. Price in pientiful seasons 3-4 fr. per hundred, but frequently as high as 10 fr.

Description of Mayer's Hôtel, Posta Vecchia, both Italian and very indifferent, *Ath & Ristor, alle Due Colombe, moderate), a small town with 4300 inhab., at the S.W. angle of the lake, is a railway station (p. 171). Omnibus from the steamboat to the train 50 c.

luggage 25 c.

To the E., not quite half-way to Peschiera (p. 171), is the narrow promontory of Sermione, projecting 3 M. into the lake.

which here attains its greatest breadth.

A pleasant excursion may be made thither by hoat or by carriage (6 M from Descayan), but the road is not recommended to walkers. The fishing village (poir locands) adjoins the handsome rain of a castle of the Scaligers (p. 186). We then cross the live clad beight past the little church of S. Pietro, to (f. M.) the extremity of the periodals, where we obtain a clarming view. On the hill are remains of allies, and on the promontery are relies of a building extending out into the take, which are said to have be onged to the clarity house of Catallas, who wrote his poems here (Sirmio peninsularum insularumque ccellus).

The STRAMBOAT steers near the W bank, but does not touch at the small villages of Moniga and Manerha. Opposite the promontory of S. Vigilio (p. 183) it next passes the small Isola di S. Biayio and the heautiful crescent-shaped Isola di Garda, or dei Frati-

the property of the Marchese Scotti of Bergamo. The latter was fortified by the Italians in 1859, but the works have since been removed. The steamer now steers to the W and enters the bay of Salo (Gambéro, Serena), a delightfully situated town with 3400 inhab, surrounded with terraces of fragrant lemon-groves. The Monte S. Birtolommeo, at the foot of which the town lies, affords a charming view, especially by evening light. (Diligence to Brescia, see below.) Gardone is the next village, then Maderno, on a promontory extending far into the lake, with an old basinca with Roman inscriptions on the walls. Beyond cises the Monte Pezzocoto. Farther on are Toscolano, Cecina, and Bogliaco, with a large country-residence of Count Bettuno. Most of the lemon - gardens belong to members of the Italian noblesse. Then Gargnano (*Ceroo, unpretending), an important looking place (4100 mhab,) in the midst of lemon and onive plantations, and one of the most attractive points on the lake (diligence twice daily to Brescua by Sall, Gavardo, and Rezzata).

The mountains now become loftler. The small villages of Muslone, Provere, Tignale, and Oldese are almost adjacent. Then Tremosine, on the hill, scarcely visible from the lake, to which a steep path ascends on the precipitous and rocky bank. In a bay farther on are seen the white houses of Limone, another lemon and clive producing village. The Austrian frontier is passed a little beyon! Rino, a busy harbour with 5000 inhab, is charmingly situated at the N. end of the take, at the base of the precipitous Rocchetta. The Church of the Minorites, outside the Ports S. Michele, erected in th. 16th cent. and adorned with gilding and stucco mouldings, contains several after pieces by Guido Rem, Palma Vecchio, and others. The Parish Church in the town possesses several modern pictures and frescoes. The watch-tower of La Rocca on the lake, fortified anew since 1850, at present a barrack, and the old Castello, high on the mountain to the W., erected by the Scaligers, greatly enhance the picturesqueness of the place. The situation of Riva is sheltered and healthy, the heat of summer being tempered by the lake. Exclusions To the 'Pall of the Ponals of his, less accomplished by host others and back 2 I and fee. The waterfall itself which is formed by the Ponals about y before it fives from the Vai in lear outs the take, is insignificant but its surroundings are pictures us. We discurd ark at the point where the discissed bridge path from the Ledro valley reaches the lake, ascend a little, passing some runned hours, and buy not the old bridge, just on with fail, reach the best point of view. The walk to the fail by the new 'Road is also interesting. It leads at a considerable height along the rucky prompters of the Wohank, through a succession of tunners and on lags, to the Vai di Ladro. If the point where it turns to the right into the vailey, a path descending to the left, then ascending, and again descending, leads to the waterfall, and a minards the most beautiful views (shad) in the afternoon).

The Monte Brione (1184 ft), a half i hr to the h of Riva, affords a fine survey of the valley and almost the entire lake. The cashest ascent is from the N side. The small village of La Grotta, at the foot of the Monte Briene, 12/2 M, from Riva (by 5 Aressandro) is a favourite afternoon resort.

A pleasant excursion may be made towards the N W to (1 2 H) Farrone where there is a wife and pictures; to be the with a fine waterfall, lately made easily accessible (attendant 20 kg, for each person ring at the mill). The excursion may be continued by Congna to 2 1 M) Tenns, from the old castle of which a charming view is enjoyed. The road then traverses righty cuttivated uplands, at a considerable height, and leads by Varignano to (4 2 M) Area (1 43)

The Monto Baldo, a range 45 M in length, which separates the Lake of Garda from the valley of the Adigo, is best ascended from Aago (see above). The Alterimo di Nago (6010 ft.), the summit I wards the N. and the most beautiful point, is reached bence to obtain (with guide). Extensive panerama, comprising a great pirt on of Upper Italy, the take, the valley of the Adige, and the anow mounts as of the Adamedo, Presancia, and the Ortler. The ascent of the Monte Maggiore, or Telegrafo (72% ft.), the central point, from Torre or Garda (p. 193), via Caprino, in 7 hrs. is faliguing.

The Valle di Ledro affords another interesting excursion (carriage to Pieve and back 5th, diligence daily at 3 pm). Beginning of the route the same as to the Fath of the Ponale (see above). The road then turns to the W into a green valley, and leads by Biaceta, Moloia, the pretty Lago di Ledro (2135) ft), and Metrologo on its N tank, to (b'4 M from Riva) Piere di Ledro (Albergo alla Torri). At Bettecca, 24 M teyond Pieve, opens the Val Concer, with the villages of (14 br) Engine and (14 br) Leatum (thence back to Riva direct, by the Mte. Tratta and Campi, in 31/2 brs). From Bettecca the readleads by Tiarno, and through the sequestered Val Ampola to (9 M) Store (Cavado Biance) in the Val Bona, or Chiese, in which, 8 M. higher, lies Condino (Torre), the capital of 8. Guidicaria Beyond Store, and about 1½ M. below the bridge over the Chiese, the read crosses the Caffare near Ledwone (Austrian and Italian frontier), and reaches (1½ M.) the Lago d'Idro, 8 M. long, ½ K. broad, the W. bank of which it skirts. Opposite (3½ M.) Anjo, with the mountain castle Rocca d'Anjo, iles the small village of Idro. At (3 M. Larenone, at the S. and of the lake, begins the picturesque Val Sabbia of which the capital is (3 M.) Festone (Tro Spade). At (3 M.) the Lago d. Garda (p. 181), that to the W. to Presegie and through the Vol Garea to (15 M) Breseia (p. 172)

About 10 min, after the steamboat (p 180) has quitted Riva, the fall of the Ponale, mentioned p 182, comes into view Torbole (p. 182) lies to the left. The steamer now steers S. to Malceaine (2100 inhab), a good harbour on the E. bank, with an old castle of Charlemagno, which was afterwards a robbers' stronghold Goethe, while sketching this rain, narrowly escaped being arrested as a spy by the Venetian government. The castle has since been restored. Beyond it is the rock of Isoletto, then Cassone, and a little farther the small Island of Trimelone. The next places of importance are Castello, S. Giovanni, Castellello. all belonging to the parish of Brenzone, Montagna (somewhat inland), and Torei. The banks gradually become flatter. The promontory of San Vigilio, sheltered from the N. wind by the Monte Boldo (p. 182), extends far into the lake, and is the most beautiful point of view on the E bank. The surrounding hills are planted with vines, plives, and fig-trees. The village of Gards (1500 inhab.), beautifully situated in a bay at the influx of the Tcsino, which descends from the Monte Baldo, gives its name to the lake. The château belongs to Count Albertini of Verona. To the S. in the distance is the pentusula of Sermione (p. 180) The next places are Bardolino (2500 inhab.) with a harbour, Cisano, and Lasize (3100 inhab.), another harbour.

Peschiera (see p. 171) at the efflux of the Mincio from the take, is a station on the Milan and Verona railway. The station is on the

in the history of Aucastruttue Verona is a place of considerable impostance, not only on account of its medieval buildings, but as the birthplace of Mobels Summebels (1481-1554), the most fumous in I tary architect f Upper Pary, who imparted the palaces some of the features of fortified eastles and of Fra Giorondo (1435-1514), one of the most typical masters of the Renaissance, whose works are to be found at Venice, Paris and home In judging of the Verona jaraces, we must be an in that it was enstoning for as at Genea and other towns to adorn the façades with paintings. The painted façades of huses near S. Fermo, the Porta Borsari, Piazza d Lo Erbe (p. 186), the Palazzo Todosch op Jell and others, recall the style of Paul an masters of the 15th cent , an are perhaps traceable to the influence of Mantegna. The most distinguished Veronese PAINTERS of the 10th cent were Vittue Pirane (Pranello) Leberale da Verma. Fr. It is an interesting fact that the pillars, which were probably left rough undesign, dly, afterwards because a model for the favourite 'rustica' pillars of the Renaissan e. The arcades, 72 in number are let by the town at high rents to traders of every description. In the interior of the Arena a small theatre is usually established - The Via Nuova, terminating near the Arena, and paved with massive blocks of stone is one of the principal thoroughfares of the town, leading N.E. to the Piazza delle Erb , see p. 188).

The S, side of the Bra is bounded by the Gran Guardia Antica (Pl 35, D 4; now a corn-magazine), or old guard-house, and the Gran Guardia Vuova (Pl. 36, D. 4), now the Municipio, erected in 1840. To the W., in the areades of the spacious Pulazzo Guastowerso, by Sammucheli) are the cafes mentioned at p. 186 the Portone or principal gate, is an ancient tower of the Scaligers. The W corner is occupied by the Teatra Fibirmonics (Pl 41; C, 4) In the court towards the Plazza Bra, under the areades erected by Pompei in 1745, is situated the valuable Musco Lapidario (Pl. 29). collected and described by Scipione Maffei, containing Roman, Greek and Arabic inscriptions, Roman and Greek basrelicis and statues, ancient Christian succephagi, and a bust of Maffel. The museum is shown by the custodian of the Teatro Filarmonico, who lives in a wide-street at the back of the theatre. No. 1.

Several streets lead from the Plazza Brk towards the M. to the Corso Cavot & (Pl C, D, E 3), the principal street of the town , which a number of handsome palaces are situated (see P. 190).

the Corso, about midway, rises the Porta de' Borsari (Pi D, 3), an ancient triumphal arch or town gate, occupying the whole breadth of the street, consisting of two cutrance-archways, with two galleries above them, and a façade towards the outside of the town, erected under the Emperor Gahienus in A D 265

The Corso leads to the N.E., straight to the once busy centre of mediaval life. On the right it first reaches the Piazza delle Erbe (PI E 1), the fruit and vegetable market, formerly the forum of the R public, and one of the most picture sque plazzas in Italy At the upper end of it risks a Marble Column, which bore the Hon of St. Mark down to 1797 to indicate the supremacy of the Republic of Venice Opposite is the Palazze Muffer, now Trezza, with a façade over aden with encichment, and a curious spiral staircase in the interior. The Foundarn is adorned with a statue of 'Verona', part of which is ancient. The Tribuna, with its canopy supported. by f ur columns, in the centre of the Piazza, was anciently used as a seat of godgin ent. Many of the surrounding houses are a lorned with frescoes in the style which was so popular in N. Italy ouring the 15th and 15th centuries. Some of those have been recently restor 4, such as the Casa Mazzanta near the column, and the Casa der Mercinti (1:01), empellished with a statue of the Madenna. -With regard to the Via Cappello or S. Sebastiano and Via Luoni, leading to the 5.k. to the Pente Nave, see pp. 191, 192.

Opp site the Casa Mazzanti rises the Tower of the Municipio, about 320 ft in height. A short street to the left of the latter leads to the *Piazza dei Signori (Pi E. 3), a small square paved with flag-stones, and surrounded by imposing edifices. — Immediately to the right is the Palazzo della Ragione (seat of the assize-courts) with an interesting and very picturesque court, founded in 1183, and lately restored and extended.

In the angle diagonally opposite is situated the Otd Town Hatt, or "Palazzo del Consiglio (P. 34), usually called La Loggia, orected before 1.000 by Fra Giocondo da Verona (p. 187), and restored in 1873, with coloured and gilt ornaments, above are five statues of celebrated natives of ancient Verona: Cornelius Nepos, Catul us, Mantua Virgilio gaudet, Verona Catulio. Quantum parva suo Mantua Virgilio. Morti d), Vitruvius the younger Pluny, and Einitius Macer, the poet and friend of Virgil. In the interior of the loggia are busts of celebrated Veronese of medizval and modern times. On the upper floor are several apartments which have been tastefully restored (porter in the court).

In the middle of the pizza rises a marble Statut of Dante, who, as recorded by the inscriptions on the monument and on the palace adjoining the Loggia at a right angle, found an asy um here with the Scaligers after his banishment from Fiorence in 1316, by Zanoni, creeted in 1865. — Opposite to the Pal. de Guareconsulti erected in 1263, but altered in the 16th century. A small adjacent side-street contains a picturesque fountain

The passage opposite the entrance to the Piazza delle Erbe leads direct to the modernised Romanesque church of S. Warm Antica (Pl. 11), and the imposing Gothic Tombs of the Scaligers, or della Scala family, who for upwards of a century were presidents of the republic of Verous. The ladder, which forms their crest, recurs frequently on the elaborately executed railings

The largest of the monuments, that at the corner of the sire t, was executed by Bouno do Compositions for Con Signorio (d. 1375) during his life time. It consists of a sare charges resting on a probation supported by commins of moderate height, over which rises a camply crowned with an equestrian statue of the prince. On the square columns in the middle access. Christian her ses on naches higher up are the Christian virtues. On the their side next in the Piazza to Silver, is the monument of Mostone II (d. 1351), another sare phages with causely and equestrian static. Besides these two principal nonnuments there are several other large sare of has of different members of the family among which is that of Con Grande II who was assassinated in the public streets by his rotter Can Stepario in 1358. Over the church door the sarrophagus and equestrian size of Con Grande (Francesco della Scolo d. 1329) the patient of Dante, ad conting it, also on the church wall, that of Guranni della Scola (d. 1350), lastly that of Mastino I. (d. 1277), the custodian lives in a house to the right of the entrance to the church fee 30c.).

In the vicinity at the E and of the Corso Cavour ris s *6. Anastasia (Pl 1; F, 3), a fine Gothic church begun about 1261, with a brick façade, a portal subsequently covered with marble, ancient sculptures in the lunette, and a freeco of the 14th c utury

The Interior, borne by 12 circular common is remarkable for a discussed symmetry of proportion, the vaniling is painted in the late bothle style. On the two first pulars, as supporters of the basin for a necessical water are two largers (I Gobbe) in white and gray man 1. That on the left executed by Gabriele Cahari, father of Pado Verenese, that on the right by Aless Rossi in 1591. The chapel of the Polagram, on the right by the high altar, is adorned with relicits of the 14th and 1 representing two more unents of the Polagram in red marks. In the choir, to the I ft is the monument of General Saviga (1442). The chapes on the right and left of the choir contain good frescoes of the 14th and 15th contages.

To the left of the church, over a gateway adjoining the small church of S. Pietro Martire (Pl. 15), is the dark marble sarcophagus of a Count Castelbarco, and in the gateway three others, the third of which is adorned with a good relief of the Madonna.

The Cathedral (P., 4; E, 2) is an imposing to the structure of the 14th cent—with choir and Romanesque façate of the 12th century. Behind the columns of the hands me portal are Roland and Oliver, the two paladins of Charlemagne, in half-relief. The columns in front rest upon graffins. The Interior, which consists of nave and aisles, with eight pollars, contains an elegantly wrought rood-loft of marble, designed by Sammeheli—Over the 1st altar on the left is an "Assumption by Tition, partied about 1543.

Without the majestic randour of the Assunts of the trart to Bist this fine composition is striking for its masterly combinate on thirth and shade and harmonious colours with realistic form and action

The arches of the handsome Closters rest on double columns of red marble in two stories, one above the other (entrance to the left of the façade then turn to the left again opposite the side-entrance).

To the N. of the choir rises S. Grovanni in Fonte, the ancient Baptistery of the 12th cent. The adjacent Vesconado (Pl 45) contains the Biblioteca Copit dare with its precious MSS (palimpsests), among which Niebuhr discovered the Institutiones of Gaius.

On the left bank of the Adige, to which the Ponte daribaldi leads (toll 2 c) is situated 8. Giorgio in Braida (Pl. 10, E, 1, 2), completed in 1604 from designs attributed to Sammeheli, surmount, 1 by a dome, and containing some admirable pictures.

On the W wall, over the door, Baptism of Christ, by Tintoretto. Ist aliar in the left, St. Ursala and her companions, the Saviour above, painted in 1545 by Franc Caroto, 4th aliar in the left, "Madonna with two sair is tood the Father above, three angels with musical instruments below by Airolano day Eiber (1929), 5th aliar on the left, St. Cecina, by Morette. To the right in the chair the Miracle of the Five Thousand, by Paolo Farmato, to the left, the Shower of manna, by Fel Brassocia, both painted in 1666. High alter piece Martyrdom of St. George, by P. Veronese, a masterpiece of the highest rank. "Paul") treats the scene as much as possible as if it were one which actually happened, restrains the nath is within the bounds of moderation, avoids any excess of realism, and thus retains the power of exhibiting his gargeens coleuring in the most triumphant abundance". — (Burchhard's 'Cuerone).

Fellowing the Corso Cavour (Pl. D. C. 3) from the Ports Borsari p. 188) in a S.W. direction, we observe on the left. No. 19, the *Palaszo Berdacqua, by Sammicheli, then on the right, No. 38, the Palaszo Portalupi, and, on the same side, No. 44, the Palasso Canossa, also by Sammicheli, but with an attica added in 1770. On the right we then reach the Castello Vecchio (Pl. C. 3), the ancient palace of the Scaligers, now an arsenal, connected with the opposite bank of the Adige by a handsome bridge (not accessable) constructed in the 14th century. — The street called Rigasta S. Zeno diverges here to the right. (S. Zeno, see below.)

At the end of the W continuation of the Corso is the *Porta Stuppa (or Palio, Pl. A. 4), the finest of the gates of Verons erected by Simmicheli.

The Via S Bernardino (Pl. B, 3) leads to the monastery and church of B. Bernardino (Pl. 3; entrance from the E. corner, through a pleasing monastery-court, if the church-door is closed, ring in the corner to the left, adjoining the church). In the choir, to the eft, is a Madonna with saints, by Benaglio. To the right of the high alter is the entrance to the *Cappella dei Pellegrini, by Sammicheli, one of the finest of the circular buildings of the Romaissance, with the antique forms eleverly and beaut fully executed.

*8. Zeno Maggiore (Pl 23; B, 2) is a Romanesque church of noble propert one. The nave in its present form was begun in 1139; the choir dates from the 13th cent, the projecting portal rests on lions of red marble. The church was lately restored.

The Portag is embellished with marble reliefs of scriptural subjects executed about 1178, fr in the creation of woman and the Fall to the Betrayal ty Judas and the tracelistion. The huming scene to the right in one of the lower sects have known as the Chase of The derice, an all islon to his baying embraced the heretical Arian detrines. The derice, of the same or a still earlier period, consisting of a number of small branch plates with reliefs (the oldest very rudely executed), are said to have been it sented by Dukes of Cleve (in the Rhine)

The istudion is borne by alternate prilars and columns. To the left of the entrance is a large ancient vase of purphyry, 28 ft in circumference. On the chair screen are statues of Christ and the 12 Apostes, in marble,

The walls to the left of the came are covered with the reliefs on the pertainent, behind which are traces of others of the left, to the right are freed as of the lith and lith centuries. To the right of the steps to the chair is an after in each side of which are four a lumin of brown marble, resting on he as and balls, each in one block. To the right in the Choir, above the crypt, is the very ancient painted marble figure of St. Zebo. Physical Italiae regist, Magne Caroli superatoris file pussing sepalerum. Adjacent is a very large Roman surcognague.

We next visit the S. E. Quarters of the town. To the S. E., of the Piazza delle Erbe (p. 188) runs the Via S. Senastiano of Cappello (Pl. E. 4) in which a hat over the gateway of a court opposite the Palazzo Sambonifazi is said to indicate the house of Juliet's parents (Capuletti; p. 194). Farther on, the Via Scala diverges to the right, leading to the church of S. Marci della Scala (Pl. 20 E. 4), founded by Can Grande in 1324; and containing the tomb of Scipione Maffel (J. 1755), the learned antiquarian. Adjoining the church is the Palazzo Tedescha, with a painted façade. — Close to the church of S. Schustiano (Pl. 18, E. 4) is the Biblioteca Comunate (open in winter 9-3 and 6.9, summer 9-4), founded in 1860, which contains numerous documents from the suppressed monasteries.

The VIA LEONI the S prolongation of the Via S Sebastiano, leads to the Ponte felle Navi. In this street, on the left, at the corner of the Corticella Leoni and built into the sale of a house rises the "Arco de' Leoni, the half of a Roman double gateway, coeval with the Porta de' Borsari, but more delicately executed, and bearing an inscription partially preserved.

A little farther is the Gothic church of S. Fermo Maggiore (Pl. 6, E. 4), erected at the heginning of the 14th century. The architecture of the exterior, with its façade of brick, enriched with marble, is worthy of inspection.

The Isterior is modernised, beaut ful old ceiling in walnut wood, and remains of good frescoes of the 14th cent by Zerio, Fra Martino, and Pisanello, the fluest being a trucitizion over the left side of tance. To the 12ft of the parameters a Research of the left side of tance. To the 12ft of the parameters the monageness of the physician Greenamo della Torre by Riccio (the originals of the bronze relifs were carried off by the French, and are in the Louvre), in the chapel is the left of the choir a Madonna with saints by Franc Buousipiori (1484). The Cappella del Sagramento contains (left) an alterpiece by Carolo, painted in 1528, above are the Virgin and St Anna, below are John the Baptist, St Schastian, and other saints

The Ponte delle Navi (Pl. E. 4) in the vicinity which commands a good survey of S. Fermo, was erected to replace a bridge across the Adige which was destroyed by an inundation in 1757

Immediately to the right beyond the Adige, at the beginning of the promenade, is the *Palazzo Pompei alla Vittoria (Pl. 361,23 E. 5), an interesting edifice by Summitheli presented by the family to the town, and now containing the Museo Cruco (fee 1 fr.)

On the GROUND FLOOR are several rooms containing casts, antiquities, chiefly from excavations in the old theatre near the Porta Pietra, and lossils from the Monte Boles.

The Pinacoteca e picture gallery, on the first floor, contains works principally of the Vir bese sel 1. The first and second rooms contain the trafferta Bernascont, presented to the town by Dr. Bernascont

Mantua, Ital Mantuea a very ancient town founded by the Etruscans, with 25 3.00 inhab (3000 Jews), is a provincial capital and strongly fortified place, bounded on the N W by the Lago Superiore, on the N E, by the Lago di Mezzo, on the E by the Lago Inferiore, and on the S and S W by marshy land, which in case of a slege is capable of being laid under water

Mantea is mentioned in ancient times as the home of Virgil, who is said to have been born at the vil age of Pictole (the ancient Andear) 3 M to the SE, but it was not like the middle ages that if became a place of importance. In the conflicts of the Holicustantian period the fown embraced the cause of the Oucliphs. In 1338 the cottons elected Imperford of Gonzaga, as the 'Capitano del Popolo, and to him the fown was in debled for its prosperity. The Gonzagas fought so cessfully against Milan and Venue, and succeeded in extending their territory while they were the fractal patrons of art and science. In 1530 Federige II was raised to the rack of duke by Charles V, and in 1536 was invested with the county of Monteferrate (d. 1540), the chief menament of his reign is the Palazzo de Telip 198. In 1627 when Charles I. Nevers, a member of a French cellateras line took passession of the throne the Mantuan war of succession broke out and the Emperor Fordinanc II declared the fiel forfeited On 18th July 1030 Manina was taken by storin and sacked by the Austrians. Although the emperor, being hard pressed by the Swedes was a liged to conclude a peace in 1631, the town never recovered from this blow. Corlo IV, the had duke having taken the breach si le in the Spanish war of succession, was nectared an outraw in 17th, and Monte. forrato was a arded to friedmont while Mantua was annexed to Austria and afterwards became the chief support of the Imperial domination in Baly. After a long and distinate defence by techneral Wurmser, the fortress enjatelated to the French on Jno February 1797. In accordance with the Prace of Villatranea the Austrians retained Manica, although caprived of the rest of Lombardy, but they were compelled to cede it to Italy in 1966. Manhaa was the scene of the labours of two great RENAISSANCE PAIN TERS. One of these was ANOREA MANTEUNA, who was born at Padus in 1431, and entired into the service of Lodovice Ganzaga in 1460. The frincipal wirk of his earlier period is preserved in the church of the Eremitan, at Pad ia. In the life of his compositions, and in the fidelity of his characters, he rivals the heat of his contemp raries, while he aux passes them in accuracy of perspective, and in his refined taste for beauty of lands ape. He died at Manua in 1906. When Rapha is pupils were dispersed after his death. Runano. In muitation of Raphae's work in the Farmonia, he here composed moth region de orative paintings, which, though far in ferior to their prototype are attractive from the richness of the motives and the sensions magnificency of the composition, and are important owing to the influence which they exercised on later art. Prosumer , and Miccold dell' Abbate, pupils if Grulio Romano who were educated here, were afterwards summoned to housained lead and this formed with an eting link between the French and the Italian Renaissance. Grabe Romano's works must also have exercised no slight influence on the style of Rubens, is ho spent several years at Martia.

It ring subsequent centures. The façade received some additions in the Gothic style in the 14th contary. The form of the edifice is that of a Greek cross (with equal arms) covered by a Byzantine dome in the centre and on at the extremity of each arm. Around the W and part of tro N transcept is a vestibile covered by a series of smaller dota s Externally and internally the church is a lorned with five hundred columns of marble, the capitals of which present an exuberant variety of styles. The most remarkable are eight detached columns in the vestibule, four at each of the lateral portals on the B sile with peacecks and lions. The mosaics cover an area of 15,790 sq ft , and the interior is also profes by decorated with gilling brouge and Oriental marble. The aggregate effect is highly picturesque and fantastic. The messics some of which are said to have by a xecutal as far back as the 10th cent belong chiefly to the 12th and 16th centuries and afford interesting evidence of the aptitude of the ear i at Venetians for pictorial composition -Since 1807 St. Mark's bas I on the extendral of Vene, a dignity which formerly belonged to S Pietro di Cast Ilo (p. 158)

Reliefs in perphyry are immured by the cutrance to the Palac of the Doges, representing two pairs of knightly and acmed begins embracing each other. They are said also to lave been trought from Ptolemais, and have given rise to agreat variety of conjectures, the most recent being that they represent four emporers of byzantium of the 11th cent, and ones aderned the pedestal of an equestrian statue.

Opposite St. Mark's, to the S.W., rises the isolated square "Campanile (II (impanile is S. Marco), 322 ft. in height which is always open to the public (doorkeeper 15 for each pers. on entering It was founded in 911 restored in 1510 and finally completed a 1591 the apper part and the spire having been constructed by Burt tenoneo Burn. The ascent by a winding inclined plane of 38 bends and finally by a few steps, is easy and well lighted. The wat him a at the seminit is provided with a telescope and opens the door to the second gallery for a triffing gratily. The "View comprises the city, the Lagran (comp. p. 220) the Mps. and part of the directic; W. the Monti Enganei near Padua (p. 259), thing shows the Lagune; E. in clear weather the Istrian Mts., rising above the Adriatic, a magnificent spectacle towards sanset. The ascent of the campanile is recommended to the traveller, both for a preliminary survey, and as an appropriate termination to his visit to Venice. The Loggetto or vestibule, on the E side of the campanile, erected by Sansormo in 1540 and lately restored, once served as a waiting-room for the procurators, whose office it was, during the aessions of the great Council, to command the guards. The brouze statues of Peace, Apollo, Mercury, and Pallas, and the reliefs on the coping by Sansovino, and also the Bronze Doors, cast in 1750, deserve inspection.

VENICE.

The Clock Tower (La Torre dell' Orologio), on the opposite side, at the E and of the old Procuratie, creeted by Pietro Lombardo in 1496 rises over a gateway, resembling a triumphal arch, restored in 1859. On the platform are two Vulcans in bronze, who strike the hours on a bell. The custodian of the clock, who lives in the building, shows and explains the mechanism (fee ¹ 2 fr.). The entrance is under the archway to the left, where it is indicated by a notice. The Merceria (p. 215), the principal commercial street of Venice, quits the Piazza of St. Mark here, and leads to the Ponte Rialto (p. 242).

From the S.E. corner of the Piazza of St. Mark to the Lagune, extends the *Piazzetta (Pl. F. 4), which is bounded on the W. by the former Library, and on the E by the Palace of the Doges.

The *Library (Antica Libraria di S. Marco), which now belongs to the royal palace, begun by Sansovino in 1536, is a magnificent structure of the 16th cent., and one of the finest secular edifices in Italy In plan the structure consists of a double colounade with arches and embedded columns. In the upper colonnade the arches rest upon smaller, additional columns of the Ionic order. The effect is so fine, that Sansovino may be fairly said to have justified the liberty he has taken in enlarging the metopes at the expense of the triglyphs and architrave, and in some other points (Burckhardt) - In the direction of the Lagune are two Granute Columns, brought by the Doge Michiel from Syria in 1120, and erected here in 1180; one of them bears the Winged Lion of St. Mark, the emblem of the tutelary saint of Venice; the other is surmounted by St. Theodore on a crocodile, the patron of the ancient republic, placed there in 1329. This used to be the place of execution, and is now the headquarters of the gouddliers (comp. p 214). On the Lagune, between the Library and the Royal Garden, is situated the Zecca or Ment, which was also built by Sansovino in 1536.

The *Palace of the Doges (Palazzo Ducale, Pl 60), the W side of which 82 yds in length, looks towards the Piazzetta, and the S side, 78 yds in length, towards the Molo, was lounded in 800, afterwards destroyed five times, and as often re-exceed in a style of greater magnificence than before. The reconstruction begun in 1341 from the designs of Filippo Calendario was carried out under the super ntendence of Pieter Buseggio. The façade was restored in the Gothic style in 1424-42. The whole building is undergoing restoration. On the W and on the S side the palace is flanked by two colonnades of 107 columns (36 below. 71 above), one above the other, with pointed vaulting. mouldings of the upper colonnade, 'La Loggia' are remarkable for their richness. From between the two columns of red marble (9th and 10th from the principal ports.) in the Loggia, the Republic anciently caused its sent nees of death to be published. The capitals of the short columns below are richly decorated with foliage, figures of men and animals etc. On the corner-pillar by the portal are interesting representations of Numa Pompulina, Scipio, the Emperer Trajan judging the cause of a weman, and of Justice, with inscriptions. Above these is a group representing the Judgment of Solomon. At the corner towards the Lagune. Adam and Eve (Perphyry reliefs on the corners to the left, see p. 224.) The fine Portal adjoining St. Mark's, constructed of marble of different colours in 1439, in the Gothic style with a Renaissance tendency, and recently restored, is called the Porta della (arta from the placards formerly exhibited here to approunce the decrees of the republic. Justice is represented in the tympanum.

The *Court, began at the close of the 15th cent. by Antonio Bregno and Antonio Scarpagnino, but only partially completed, has an admirable finished façade on the E side. The unsymmetrical form of the court was probably rendered necessary by the provious existence of surrounding buildings. Within one of the highest windows to the left was the prison of the poet Count Silvio Pellico in 1822, before he was conveyed to the Spielberg at Brünn. In the centre of the court are two Cistern-fronts in bronze, dating from 1556 and 1559. To the right, on the façade of the Clock Tower, is a statue of the Venetian general Duke Francis Maria I, of Urbino (d. 1825). The other statues are antique, but freely restored. The charming small façade farther E., perhaps the best, is by Guglielmo Bergamasco (1520)

The *Scala der Giganti the flight of steps by which the palaces is entered, derives its name from the colossal statues of Mars and Neptune at the top, executed by Sansovino in 1554. It was on the highest landing of these steps that the coronation of the doges used to take place. Opposite the landing are statues of Adam and Eve, by Antonio Rizzo (1462).

The *Interior of the Ducal Palace (admission, see p 216) also forms a noble specimen of Venetian art. Had not the fire in 1577 destroyed so many paintings, we should have been able here to trace the whole progress of Venetian art during its golden era. The earliest Venetian painters devoted their energies to the chare of St. Mark, but the great masters of the 15th and 16th cent were chiefly occupied in embellishing the Palace of the Dogos Their works having unfortunately perished, the edifice now forms a musoum of later masters only, such as Imt wett. Palma faccane, and Paolo Veronese but, nevertheless, it still presents a brilliant and most attractive array of the Venetian painters, so far as their energies were enlisted in the service of the state

We ascend the Scala dei Giganti Around the upper colonnade are placed the busts of a number of Venetian scholars, artists, and doges. The first staircase is the richly decorate i Scal 1 d Ore, constructed by Buttista Franco under the superintendence of Sanso and and completed in 1577, which was once accessible to those only whose names were entered as Nobill in the Golden Book By this staircase we ascend on week-days (admission 1 fr., payable at the second landing) direct to the upper story, where we enter the Atrio Quadrato In this case we traverse the narrow passage to the left, visit the apartments described at p. 229, and afterwards lescend to the middle story

The next staircase, the Scala der Censori, which forms the entrance to the apartments on Sundays and festivals, first leads to the First Froor which contains the Library (on the left; p. 228), the Sabi del Maggior Consiglio (in a straight direction - see below), and the Archaeological Museum (on the right; p. 228).

I Sala del Maggior Conniglio (loor generally open; if not, ring) In this large has (50 yds long 26 vds broad, 47 ft high), the Nobili, whose names were entered in the 'Golden Book, and who constituted the highest authority in the Republic form rly sat. The History at Picture consist of two series. The first illustrates in a somewhat beastful style the life of the Doge Sebastiano Zeam (1173-79), who are rood an asylum to Pope Alexander III when at variatee with the Eurperor Frederick barbarossa, and (in league with the towns of Lomburdy) resisted the imperial demands. The gallery contains almost exclusively pictures by Venetian masters. The general public will be most interested in the works of the time of Bellins and the following period, as well as in the historical pictures by Gentile Bellins and Curpaccio in the National Room, exhibiting a lifelike picture of ancient Venice, the brill colours of which cause us to forget the poverty of the execution and want of inspiration which characterise the individual figures as well as the groups. It is instructive to compare these paintings with the manner in which Florentine artists of the same epoch arranged their groups and described historical events. Attention must be drawn to the numerous pictures of Giovanni Bellini (Nos. 38, 94, and others), representing the assemblage of saints surrounding the throne of the Madonna ('sacra conversazione'), to the beauty of the nude figures, and to the powerful and imposing, though not very saintlike male figures. A picture by Boccaccino da Cremona (No. 182), a little known master of the earlier school, is one of the best of that period. Giorgione's Storm at sea (No. 37)' is of doubtful authenticity, and moreover much damaged. Palma Vecchio is not represented here by his best works. On the other hand Rocco Marconi's Descent from the Cross (No. 405) is one of his finest efforts. Titian's masterpiece, the Assumption of the Virgin (No. 24), requires no comment; the glowing rapture of the apostles, the jubilant delight of the angels, the beaming bliss of the Madonna, the magnificence of the colouring, cannot fail to strike the eye of every beholder. The gallery comprises what is perhaps the earliest known work of this master, and his last, uncompleted creation the Visitation and the Descent from the Cross. The Presentation in the Temple (No. 457) is very attractive owing to the spirited character of the grouping, and the beauty of the individual figures. Bonifacio's wealth of colour is displayed in the Adoration of the Magi (No. 57), and in the History of the Rich Man (No. 500). The Miracle of St. Mark (No. 45) by Tintorello, and the Supper in the house of Levi (No. 547) by Paolo Veronese, are specially interesting

Beyond the Corribor which contains numerous architectural drawings, we pass through an ante-chamber containing sculptures (1. Adonis by Rinalde Rinaldi, III Adonis by Jacopo de Martine).

The present posit, a of the picture is very unfavorizable. 'Neither the place nor the light is that for which Titian intend a it, and the contrast between the radiance of the sky and the darkness round the tomb is list on the one hand whilst coarseness of outline and foreshortening

The style in which the legend is narrated is almost two simple, but interesting on account of the admirat le perspective and is third rendering of real lift. The traveller who has visited Belgium cannot fail to empare this work with the celebrated shrine of 5 I raula at live, expanded by Hans Menning a not the same time (1489, for the Hospital of St. Join there. The except to fithe portners artist is tender and graceful almost rike minimum painting while the extensive canvasce of his Venetian contemporary are vigorous, almost coarse in character.

489. P. Veronese, Salutation; 488. Carpaccio, Circumeisian (510). *487. Tatian, Presentation in the Temple.

It was not to be expected that Intian should go deeper into the period from which he derived his gospel subject than other artists of his time. It was in the nature of littan to represent a subject like this as a domestic pareant of his own time, and seen in his light it is exceedingly touching and supprisingly headiful blary in a dress of celestial blue ascends the steps of the tempa in a halo of indiance. The harmony of the colours is so true and ringing and the chords are so subtle that the eve takes in the scene as it to were one of natural richness, unconscious of the means by which that richness is a tained. In this gorgeous yet pasculate and robust realistic Titian shows his great originality, and claims to be the noblest representative of the ventum school of colour of the colour colours.

The Canal Grande ((analeszo), the main artery of the traftic of Venice, nearly 2 M in length, and 33-66 yds in width. intersects the city from N W to S E , dividing it into two unequal parts, and resembling an inverted S in shape. The Canal Grande occupies the same position at Venice as the Corso at Rome, the Toledo at Naples, or the Roulevards at Paris Numerous gondolas and other craft are seen here gliding in every direction, but little or no commercial traffic is carried on, as the water is too shallow for sea-going vessels Handsome houses and magnificent palaces rise on its banks, for it is the street of the Nobili, the ancient aristocracy of Venice. A trip on the canal is extremely interesting; the distance from the Piazzetta to the station may be traversed in less than 1 2 hr., but 3 4-1 hr. at least should be devoted to it in order to obtain a glimpse at the principal palaces in passing The gondolier points out the most important edifices. The posts (pali) were formerly the distinguishing marks of the palaces of the nobles, and are still so to some extent, being painted with the heraldic colours of their proprietors. The following, beginning from the Piazzetta, are the most striking.

From the N side of the Piazza del Nettuno (p. 289) the busy Mercato at Meszo (Pl. F. G. 4) leads to the E to the leaning towers (see below)—In the neighbouring Piazza DEL Dyomo (Pl. F. 3.4) rises the cathedral church of

8. Pietro (Pl 2), in the 'baroque' style begun in 1605. It consists of a spacious nave with circular vaulting, the aisles being partly converted into chapels with lofty galleries, and partly into separate apartments. In the chapter-room St. Peter with the Madonna, above the choir an Annunciation, the last work of Lod tarracci — Adjoining it on the NE is the Polazzo Arcivesconte (Pl 42), with a court constructed by Tibaldi in 1577.— In the vicinity to the NW of S Pietro, is the small church of the Modenna di Galliera (Pl 20, F 3), with an interesting, but dilapidate I façade of 1470. Opposite is the Pal. Fina (Pl. 57, F, 3) with fine "Frescoes by the Carracci from the myths of Jason and Æneas."

We now return to the Mercato di Mezzo, at the E en l of which nearly in the centre of the town, are the Leaning Towers (Pl. G. 4), the most singular structures in Bologna. The Torre Asinelli (Pl. 78), erected in 1109 by Gherardo degli Asinelli which looks prodigiously high when seen from the pavement below, is 320 ft in height and 4 ft out of the perpendicular. A rough staircase of 447 steps leads to the summit, which cummands a fine view. The Torre Garisenda (Pl. 79) erected in 1110 by Filippo and Ottone Garisenda, is 163 ft, high only but is 10 ft, out of the perpendicular. Dante (Infermo xxxi, 136) compares the giant Antens, who bends towards him to this tower, "when a cloud passes over it". The latter is probably the only one of the many leaning towers in Italy whose obliquity has been intentional (comp. p. 324), but it was found impossible to complete it.

From the leaning towers five streets radiate to the gates of the same names the Strata Castiglione, S. Stefano, Maggiore, S. Vitale and Luigi Zamboni (or 8 Denate). To the right at the corner of the Strada S. Stefano and Str. Castiglione is situated the "Palazzo della Mercanzia (Pl 43, G 4), or Fero de Mercinti (thamber of Commerce) a Goth a structure said to have been erceted in 1294, and restored by the Bentivog.i in 1493 interior is adorned with the armorlal bearings of all the jurists who taught law here from 1441 to 1800. - Farther S, in the STRADA CASTIGLIONE is the Pot. TREATH CONTINES, which form the chief boast of the gallery. Although it would be unfair to degree iste the undoubted talent and skill of these late masters, the r works are unsatisfactory owing to the absence of any definite aim or indication of progress, and from the obvious pains which have been taken to reproduce trite the mosin an interesting manner. In the department of fresco painting the works of these Bolognese effective (see p. 259) are most numerous at Rome, but they are admirably represented here by a series of oil-paintings. We may first mention several works by tend Rem, the nost talented master of this school. No. 134. Madorna della Pietà, remarkable for its masterly grouping, which again recurs in No. 130, the Cruciffxion, and which places these two pictures on a level with the finest works of the 16th cent in point of composition; No. 135, the Slaughter of the Innocents, excepts hally harmonious and diguified in character; No. 139, No. Andrea Corsini, an excellent specimen of Guido's powers as a colourist, No. 142, a masterly drawing in chalks for the Erce Home which was so popular in the 17th century. The most interesting work of Ledevice, Curacer is probably No. 15, the Nat vity of St. John. Annibule Curegor's Madouna and saints (No. 36) has the merit of stately architectural arrangement. The Communion of St. Jerome (No. 34) by Agrating Carracel is very inferior to O meni than a treatment of the same subject in the Vat can. Domenichino a seenes of martyrdom are far from pleasing, but fiver-. can a Madouna with the two Carthusian monks (No. 13) is a devotional picture of profound sentiment - The gallery also possesses several valuable works of the Earlish Printop of Italian art. Thus No. 78, a Madouna by Fr. Frances, exhibits features of resemblance with Ferugino, who is represented here by one of his flucst works (No. 197, Madenna and saints). We also obtain a good survey here of the masters who went over from Francias school to that of Raphael thus, 204, Timote della Vite, Mary Magdalene: 292, 90 Innocenzo da Imola Madouna and saints. and Holy Family The gem of the gallery, however, is RAPHARL's Sr. Ubertita (No. 152), the indelible impression produced by which is denotices due to the master's unrivalled genius in exalting his figures into the regions of the supernatural, and yet making them human and pleasing. Everything has been maturely considered. the broken instruments, the angels song, the distribut on and grid ation of the characters, - and yet the picture appears as simple and natural as if it could not possibly have been arranged otherwise.

said to weigh 470 tons. The substructure, with its ten arches, has until recently been half under water, the upper part is approached by a double staircase of marble, added in 1780. A pleasant walk may be taken round the wails of the town, and partly upon them, as they are now nearly level with the ground.

The Construe, which lies within the precincts of the Pineta (p. 312), is reached from the R tanda in 12 hr. by following the Canal Navigno

About 2 2 M from the Porta Nuova is the church of B. Maria in Porto Fuori, a basilica with open roof, erected by Bishop O lesti (known as It Pechatore), in consequence of a vow male liuring a storm at sea in 10.06. The left aisle contains the sirrophagus of the founder, of 1119. The choir and the two adjacent chapels contain angust the freezess from the life of Mary and the Saviour, errose only attributed to Grotto, and now much damaged. It is supposed that this spot was formerly the site of the old harbour, and that the massive substructure of the clock-tower belonged to the lighthouse (faro). (A visit to this church, which however is of no great interest, and to S. Apollinare may conveniently be combined.)

No traveller should quit Ravenna without visiting the church of S. Apollmare in Classe, situated 21 gM from the Porta Noova (carrisee p. 303). About 3 M from the gate a small marble countrient bas hear of S. Lorenzo in Cesarca, the last relic of the venerable town of Caesarer (p. 303), which was removed in 1 m3 About 1 M, farther, the Ponte Nuovo crisses the united rive's Ronco and Monlone, the confluence of which is higher up. Before the bridge is crossed, a path leads to the left in 20 min. to the church of S. Mar a in Porto—the lefty tower of which is seen from a distance.) The road then traverses marshy mead we to—

*8. Apollinare in Classe, erected in 534 by Julianus Argentarius on the site of a temple of Apolio, consecrated in 549 and restored in 1779. This is the most imposing of the basilicas at il existing at Ravenna. It consists of a nave and sizes, with a vestibule at the W end, and a round campanile. The exterior exhibits trace of an attempt to relieve the surfaces of the walls with polasters and arches.

The spacious laterior rests on twenty four cipetimo columns and has an open root. The Walls are aborned with portraits of bishops and archboshops of Rayenna, an authorical series of 125 from the first tishop. The Auc. of the Cuota is also embelsished with moral so in the centre a bast of thrist, at the sides the emblems of the tour eveny lists and below them two decks of sheep hastening to Christ from the towns of Jerusalem and Bethlehen.

The calebrated Pine-Forest of Rivennia, or La Pineta, probably the most vererable and extensive in Italy, which has been extolled by Pinte, Become Dryden, Byron, and other poets, begins a little beyond the church of S. Apoll nare, and extents for many miles along the road to Rivania, as far as Cerem. If the traveller prolong has extension for 1/2 by beyond S. Legh on (Ital Latorno, French Livourne), which was a very insignificant place in the 16th cent (in 1551 only 749 lubab), now the capital of a province, and the most important commercial place in Italy after Genoa, is indebted for its size and importance to the Medici, who invited hither the oppressed and discont uted from all parts of the continent as, for example Roman Catholics from England, Jews and Moors from Spain and Portugal, and in rehauts from Marseilles, who were auxious to escape from the periss of civil war. Monte-quieu consequently calls Leghorn, the mast replace of the dynasty of the Wedict - The population amounts to upwards of 80,000, or, including the suburbs, 97,800 souls (many of whom are Jews), exclusive of a fluctuating sca-faring community of fully 3000 The town carries on a brisk trade with the Levant in cotton, wool, and unbleached silk, and with the Black Sea in grain. The most important industries are the manufactures of coral oru ments and oil.

41 M Empoli (Albergo del Sole) is a small town in a fertile district. In 1260 after the defeat of the Florentines on the Arbia, the Ghibellines proposed to transfer the seat of government hither and to raze Florence to the ground. This project however, was strenuously opposed by the heroic Farinata degli I berti, who was himself a member of the Ghibelline party (Dante's Inferno, N. 45). The town is a busy place with old houses and narrow streets, and a Church of 1093, containing good pictures by Lorenzo Monaco, S. Bottic Li, Francesco di Giovanni, Cigoli and others, and a fine Boptistery of 1447.

Hence the appellation Montelupo, 'mountain of the wolf', which was desirous of devouring the goat (capra)

The train now crosses the Arno and slowly winds through the defile of the Genfolme, through which the Arno flows. The heights are clad with rock-pines—below which is quarried the pictra scream, a kind of sandstone frequently employed in the construction of the palaces of Florence—The Ombrone, which falls into the Arno, is next crossed—52 M. Signa, with its grey towers and pichaeles, founded in 1377 by the Florentines to command the road at this point. This place, as well as the opposite village of Lastra, is noted for its straw-plait—Near (54 M) S. Donnme is Brezze, with numerous villas which proclaim the proximity of the capital. The train now approaches the Cascine, the park of Florence, and enters the station near S. Maria Novella.

The Climate is mill and ham,d and Pisa is a well known wintering place for patients suffering from asthma pneumonia, pleurisy, and other pulmonary complaints. The mean winter temperature is about 4 2 lower than that of the Riviera, and during the five winter in athathere are on an average 62 days if rain, and one if so w. The best apartments are on the N sile of the Lung Arms, that part of which between the Ponte di Mezzo and the Ponte Sol erino, called Jung Armo heale, is the sunniest. The Lung Arne Medico is less favourably sitrated. The rents or farnished rooms are highest in Oct ber, after which they grade ally fall. The average rent of a single room is I have for per day, but many landlords decline to let their rooms except for the whole wint c. Living at an botel is of course more expensive (pomon 9-12 fg. per day) but the visitor is more independent. The best stanted hotels are the Hotel de t vino, the Vittoria and the Gran Bretagna. As the Lung Arno is the chief centre of society in winter, invalids are remained mended not to take ro ms at a distance from it

Posa, a quist town with 25,900 inhabitingly suburbs 50,400). the rapital of a province, is situated 6 M. from the sea, on both banks of the Arno It was the Pisac of the aurients and once lay at the confluence of the Arnus and Auser (Serchio), which last

Pasa became a Roman colony in B. C. 180. Augustus gave it the name of Colonia Intia Pisana, and Halrian and Autoninas Pius erected temples, theatres and friumphal areaes here. At that period the t wit mus have been a place of consideratio importance. but all its ancient monuments, with the exception of a tew scanty resident 329 have assupplied. At the beginning of the fath cent. Posa attained the rank of the attained greatest commercial and scafaring towns to the Med terrancan, and became a rive. If Venice and Genoa. It was cheeky indebted in is new into the zen, with which it tok the lead in the wars against the Intificial In-1725 the Pisans expelled the Saratells from Saratina and took permanent possession of the island. In 1030 and 1 89 they again defeated the Baracens at Tubia and in 1 63 destroyed their thet near Patern. In 1114 they conquered the Balearic Islands, and soon afterwards took a prominent part in the trusades. In the 12th and 13ch centuries their power had reached its zenith, their trade extended over the entire Medit grancas, and their supremacy embraced the Italian islands and the water of the coast from La Spezia to Clvità Vecchia. In the intestine wars of the penersu a Pisa was the most powerful acherent of the 6th be lines, and therefore sustained a severe shock through the cownfair if the Holichstanten. The pretracted wars which the critizens carried in with the noa led to their disastrous defeat at Mer via near Legitorn on 6th Aug 1284 op 800, and the peace concluded in 1800 compelled them to evacuate Corsica and other possessions. In 13% the pape invested the kings of Arrag on with Sardiona and Pisa was thus deprive I of this important island also. The city was farther weakened by internal distensions, and feel a victim to the and then of the condottier. In 1405 it was sold to be rence, but on the arrival of tharas VIII endeavoured to shake off the y ke of its arrogant neighbour. In 1709, however it was beinged and again excupied by the Florentines to whom it thenceforth continued so ject,

In the Kistory of Art Pisa occupied an outportant position at an early period. Fut was obligen to vield up its artistic precedence earlier than its platical to the in refort mate blorence. The progress of art at Pisa was more rapid than in the rest of Tiscany lowing perhaps to the Influence of its num rous and handsome ancient pronuncities as R man forms repeatedly recur in the buildings. With the Countation 4 the CATHEDRAL of Pisa began the lawn of meodoval Italian art. This a creb is in the old basilica style, but with the not unimportant innovation of having a dome over the centre of the cross. The non-null-cut but dong operations of the Pisana continued throughout the whole of the 12th cont, and terminal d with the exact a of the charming church of 5 Maria della Spina (1230) and that of 5 taker na (1264). In the 13th cent. Pisa was also important as a craole of Scription and pave fight to Aucolo Pisano, a precursor of the Lenaissance. Under what influences Niccolo was trained is uncertain, but focus is a marked influence on twich his works with the Ir semi-what artique east, and those of his Pisan , sell c sours (such as the brouge door of the cathodral by H namen). His successors thereann and Andrea Puono acher a to his stale or at least to the spirited character of his nest us. Pisa also boasted of possessing Painti ks at an early period. The name of thente them their balt of the 12th cent) for example, was known far beyont the limits of the town, but his works are uninteresting, except to the student of art The tast that Constore was invited from Florence to embels shall appear of the cathedral, indicates the decline of native art, the development of which appears to have ceased entirely in the 14th century. The execution of the trescens to the Campo Santo was a manifed exclusively to foreign artists, not indeed to crotte home it has Vasara asserts, but to his pupils and to be note masters haffa macce, the ester smoon the Dalian paint re who is u t a merely mythical personage as has been surposed is said to have assisted in executing the tres oes in the Campe Saules but in what extent is anknown. In the coth continues a Govern (142) 97) of hi rence, a just of him Angelico, spent to years at You where the Campo Santo is graced by his most important work

The busiest part of the town and chief resort of visitors is the Lung' Arno, a broad and handsome quay extending along both banks of the river throughout the whole I ngth of the town Un the N and more sheltered side, and particularly on the Lung-Arno Rogio or Reale (Pl C D, 4), are situated the principal hotels and cafes The far-famed illumination here (La Luminara) takes place on 17th Juno, every three years, and the Carnival is also cerebrated here. The Lung Arno, with its prolongation outside the Ports alle Spiagge (Passegginta Nuova), is much frequented in the evening. Churches and buildings in the Lung-Arno worthy of note, see p 328 The fiver is crossed by three bridges. besides the railway bridge. That in the centre is the Ponte di Messo (Pr. D. E. 4), above it is the Ponte alla Fortessa (Pl. F. 5): and below it the Ponte Solfermo (Pl. B. C. 5), completed in 1875. and forming the shortest route between the railway station and the Piazza del Duomo

The chief boast of Pisa is the PIAZZA DEL DIOMO (PI B, 1), to which every visitor first directs his steps. The Cothedral, the Leoning Tower, the Buptislery, and the Campo Santo situated here, form a group of buildings without parallel, especially as it is situated beyond the precincts of the town and therefore removed from its disturbing influences.

The  Cathedral (Pl 22), erected after the great naval victory of the Pisana near Palermo (1063) by Busketus and Ramaldus in the Tuscan style, and consecrated by Pope Gelasius II. in 1118, is a basilica with nave and double aisles, and transept flanked with angles, 104 yds, in length, and 35 g yds in breadth in the interior, and covered with an elliptical dome over the centre. This remarkably perfort edifice is constructed entirely of white marble, with black and colcured emamentation. The most magnificent part is the facade, which in the lewer story is adorned with columns and arches attached to the wall, and in the upper parts with four open galleries, gradually diminishing in length. The cheir is also imposing The ancient bronze-gates were replaced in 1602 by the present doors, with representations of acriptural subjects, executed by Mocchi, Tacca, Mora, and others, from designs by Giovanni da Belogna. The only one of the old doors now existing is the Crociera di S. Ranieri in the S. aisle, by Bonannus 12th cent.), representing 24 scriptural scenes.

The Interior (usually entered by the last mentioned door on the E, side opposite the (ampanile) is borne by 68 ancient Roman and Greek co omos captures by the Pisans in war. (The capitals are now covered with stucces). The nave has a flat coffered certing rically gides, the aisles are valited, and above them can triforia which cross the transcopt to the chile. On 15th Oct., 1556, the dome and the whole cherch with the exception of the choir, were seriously injured by fire, but were subsequently restored. Many traces of the restoration are observable in the interior.

Nasa Most of the tombstones formerly here have been removed to the Campo Santo. A few still remain by the W. Wall, on the right and ha of the principal entrance, among them that of Aechb Rinner in (d. 1882), by Tarca, and that of Archb triulinno ac Medic (d. 1860). On the pillar to the right of the Jour an old freese of thrist and the Mary sily Bernardo Palront. The designs of the two he altars are a tributed of Mach Angelo, the execution to Stayi da Pietra Santa. The large altar pieces are by Long, Allory, Pasingnano, Salimbens, and their massers of the 16 hound, the intervious posteries are of the 17th and 18th einturies. The Pulpit by Giordina Pisance (1811) is being restored. The swaying of the broaze lamp which bangs in the nave is said first to have suggested to Califeo the rica of the penaltim. On the last power of the nave in the right St. Agues, by And Let Sarto. Opposite is a Mad lank by Perino del Vaga.

The *Baptistery (Pl 15, Battistero), begun in 1153 by Profisation, but according to the inscriptions not completed till 1278, and with Gothic additions of the 14th cent. is also entirely of marble. It is a beautiful circular structure (33½ yds. in diameter), surrounded by half-columns below, and a gallery of smaller detached columns above, and covered with a onical dome (190 ft. high, restored in 1856). It has four entrances, at those on the N. and E. are sculptures in marble of the 12th century

The *Campanile, or clock-tower, begun by the architects

Bonannus of Pisa and William of Innsbruck in 1174, and completed by Temmas Pismo in 1350, rises in eight different stories, which like the Daptistery are surrounded with half-columns and six colonyades. Owing to its remarkable oblique position, 13 to our

Leaning Tower. The question whether this peculiarity was intentional or occidental has frequently been discussed. The most probable solution is that the foundations settled during the progress of the structure, and that, to remedy the defect as much as possible, an attempt was made to give a vertical position to the upper part. Galileo availed himself of the obtique position of the tower in making his experiments regarding the laws of gravitation. The New from the platform, embracing the town and environs, the sea to the W., and the mountains to the N.E., is very beautiful; a good staircase of 254 steps leads to the top. Permission is only accorded to a party of not fewer than three, but if necessary the custodian (50c) will provide a third person (15-20c). The tower contains seven hells, the heaviest of which, weighing 6 tons, hangs on the side opposite the overhanging wall of the tower.

The Campo Santo (Pl 16) or Burnal Ground, was founded by Archb Ubaldo, 1188-1200 (open daily from morning till dusk; visitors knock at the door to the left, 1 g fr. to the onstodian on leaving). After the loss of the Holy Land the archbishop conveyed 53 ship-loads of earth hither from Mt. Calvary, in order that the dead unght repose in hely ground. The structure which surrounds the churchyard was begun in 1278 by order of the senators of the city, and completed in 1283 by Generali Pisano, in the Gothic-Tuscan style It is 138 yds. in length, 57 yds in width, and 48 ft. in height - Externally there are 43 flat areades resting on 44 pilasters, the capitals adorned with figures. Over one of the two entrances is a marble canopy, with a Madouna by Granani Pisanai?, In the interior there is a spacious had, the open, round-arched windows of which, with their beautiful tracery, 62 in number, look upon a green quadrangle. Three chapels adjoin the Campo; the oldest is to the right of the entrance, in the centre of the E. side, with dome of later date. The walls are covered with *Frescoes by painters of the Tuscan school of the 14th and 15th centuries, below which is a collection of Roman, Etruscan. and mediaval sculptures, these last being important links in the history of early Italian sculpture. The tombstones of persons interred here form the pavement.

The traveller will hardly care to devote much time to the other works of art at Pisa but he will be amply rewarded by taking a short walk through the town in order to obtain an idea of the extent to which building enterprise was carried at Pisa in the middle ages.

The central part of ancient Pisa, and the forum of the republic, is now the Piazza del Cavallert (Pl. D. 3), formerly degli Ancient, which was remodelled in the 16th and 17th centuries. In this plazza rises —

8. Stefano ai Cavalieri (Pl. 18), the church of the knights of the Order of St. Stephen, begun from designs by Visari in 1565; interior complete (1596, façade lesigned by Buontilente It contains Turkish trophies on the right and left of the door, and ceiling-paintings of the battle of Lepanto (1571) and other victories over the Turks, by Cristoforo Allori, Jacopo da Empole, and others. On the 2nd alter to the left a Nativity by Alessandro Allori Contains adoravit, a finely conceived work, 1564. Excellent or Centure adoravit, a finely conceived work, 1564.

The Palazzo Conventuate dei Cavalieri, adjoining the church, altered by Vasari is now a school, above the windows are busts of six masters of the order; in front of the building a marble Statue of the Grand-Duke Commo, designed by Giov, da Bologna and executed by Francavilla (1596). Opposite to it once stood (down to 1655) the ill-famed 'Tower of Hunger', properly Torre des trustands atte Sette Vie, in which Archb Ruggiers deglis Ubaldins caused Count Ugolino dei Cherardeschi with his sons and nephews to be starved to death in 1288 as a punishment for treason, as described by Dante in the 33rd canto of his Inferno.

The neighbouring church of 8. Sisto (Pl 36; C, 3) was founded by the Pisans to commemorate several of their victories on the day of 8. Sisto 6th Aug., 1089. It contains a number of ancient columns of marble and granite. The church was frequently used as a place of assembly by the Great Council of Pisa.

On the right, in the VIA S. FREDIANO (No. 972), leading from the Piazza dei Cavalieri to the Arno, is the old Accudemia delle Belle Arti (Pl. 1, D. 3), founded by Napoleou in 1812, and recently transformed into a Scuola Technon-Industriale. The second floor contains a chronologically arranged collection of pictures, chiefly of the earlier Tuscan schools. It is, however, of little value to the student of art, as Messis Crowe and Cavalcaselle and other authorities deny the accuracy of most of the names attached to the paintings.

On the whole, however, Plorence is considered a healthy place

In 1864, when Florence supplanted Turin as the capital of Italy, the enterprise of the extitent received a powerful stimulus, as was shown, for instance, in the rapid extension of its precincts; but it is well known that financial ruin was the price prid for the short-lived honour. As early as the later out, blarence on tained 90 000 in bab., in 1859 about 112,000, and now 123 000 (with the suburbs 169,500). The Florentines have ever been noted for the vigour of their reasoning powers and for their pre-eminence in artistic talent; and even at the present day their superiority over the Geneese and the inhabitants of other towns of Lombardy is apparent from their manners and their dress.

Florence is situated on both banks of the Arno, but by far the greater part of the city lies on the right bank. On the latter, to the N of the Poute Verchin, at some listance from the river, was situated the Roman town of Florentia, which however was extended at an early period in the middle ages to the opposite bank of the Arno. The walls of the city, which have re-cotly been almost entirely removed, were constructed at the same time as the cathedral, between 1285 and 1388. The ancient Garks however have been spared, of which the following are the most interesting: Porta alla Crice (Pl. G. 5), crected in 1284, with frescoes by Ghirlandajo; Porta S. Gatto (Pl. F. 2), ere ted in 1330, once also adorned with frescoes by Ghirlandajo; Porta Romana (Pl. A. 6), erected in 1328 by Jacopo Occagna: Porta S. Frediano (Pl. A. 3); and Porta S. Minuato (Pl. D. 6) The New Quarters of the town are at the W end, on the right bank of the Arno, extending as far as the Cascine (p. 419), and containing the best hotels and the residences of most of the visitors, and also to the N. and E, of the Porta S Gallo The broad Viale, which under various names encircles the town on the right bank and occupies the site of the old fortifications, is not yet entirely completed.

BRIDGES The oldest of the six bridges which connect the banks of the Arno is the Ponte alte Grazie (Pl. D. 5.6), constructed in 1235, the scene of the maion effected between the Guelphs and Ghibellines in 1283. The Ponte Vecche (Pl. 1, 5; p. 403), which is said to have existed as early as the Roman period, and was reconstructed, after its repeated demolition by Taideo Gaddi in 1362, consists of three arches. The Ponte 8 Trimili (Pl. C, 4; p. 402), was originally creeted in 1252, and rebuilt scon after 1567 by Bartelommeo Ammanati. The Ponte alla Carraja (Pl. B, C, 4), originally built in 1248, destroyed together with the Ponte Vecchio by an inundation in 1333, and restored in 1337 was again creeted in 1559 by Ammanati by order of Cosmo I. Besides these, two Suspension-Bridges have recently been constructed one at each end of the town (toll 5 c., carriages 42 c.).

The river is bordered on both sides by broad and handsome quays, called the Leng' Arno, of which the different parts are the Lung' Arno Corsine, the Lung' Arno Soderme, Lung' Arno Attorn, etc. The busiest streets are the Via Tornibuoni (Pl. C. 4) and the Via Culzujuoli (Pl. D. 4) Many of the other streets also take their names from old families, the guilds, public games, trades, and the like. The streets were first paved with stone in the second half of the 13th century.

The *Pisses della Signoria (Pl D, 4, 5), with the Palatza Vecchio and the Leggia dei Lauri, once the forum of the republicand the scene of its popular assemblies and tumults, is still an important centre of business and pleasure.

The *Palaxzo Vecchio (Pl. 85), originally the seat of the significant, the government of the republic, subsequently the residence of Cosimo I, and now used as a town-hard was erected in 1298 by Armition det Candia, and afterwards considerably sitered by Fiorgeomy, Michelozzo, Cronaca, and Lasari. The tower, 30% ft. in height, is by Arnolfo. The original inscription over the door Jesus Christus Rex Florentini popul, a produced electus was altered by Cosimo I to Rex region et Dominus dominantium. From 1504 down to 1873 the famous statue of David by Michael Angelo, which is new in the Academy (p. 391), stood to the left of the entrance. On the right is Hercules and Cacus by Michael Angelo's rival Baccio Bandinelli (p. 1i). The two insignificant statues by Bandinelli and Rossi on each side of the entrance were used as chain-beaters.

The fountain occupies the site of the stake at which Savonatela and two other Dominican marks were burned on 23rd May, 1498. Adjoining it is the Equestrian Statue of Cosmo to bronze, with bas-reliefs by trioranne da Bologna, 1594. — In the S. angle of the Plazza risos the *Loggia dei Lanzi (Pl. 53; D 5), originally called Loggia dei Signori, an open hall of the kind with which it was usual to provide both the public and private palaces of Florence, in order that the inmates might enjoy the open air, or participate in public demonstrations, without being obliged to descend to the street. This structure was projected in 1356, having perhaps been designed by Andrea di Cione (Orcagna), but was not creeted till 1376. Benci di Cione Dami and Simone di Talenti are said to have been the architects. The style of the architecture shows a falling off from the Gothic, while the sculptures (Faith, Hope, Charity, Temperance, and Fortitude, by Agnoto Gaddi, 1383) exhibit an incipient leaning to the Renaissance forms. The present name of the loggia dates from the time of the Grand Duke Cosimo I., when his spearsmen or 'lancers' were posted here as guards.

By the Sters are two lions, that on the right is antique, the other by Flamono Vocca. Inder the arches, to the right is the "Rape of the Sabines, a group in marble executed by Graconar do Bologna in 1583, on the left "Perseus with the head of the Medusa in rouze, by Benreusto Cellon (1553) who also executed the statuettes and busielies of the pedestal, behind it the Rape of Polyzena, a large group in maride by Fedu erected in 1865. To the left of the latter, Juddl, and field fernes in bronze, by Bonntello. In the centre a "Warrior supporting a deal man, usually supposed to represent Ajax with the tody of Patriclus or Achilles, an ancient copy of a tirreck work, brought here from Rome in 1570. To the right of it Hercules slaying the centair Nessus, in marile, by Gioo do Bologna, by the wall at the back are six large draped female statues of which the third from the left represents the so called "Thusnelda, from Trajan's borum at Rome.

To the left, behind the equestrian statue of Cosimo, mentioned at p. 352, is the *Palazzo I guccioni (Pl 87), erected in 1550, from designs variously attributed to Raphael. Michael Angelo, and Paladao — On the W side of the plazza rises the Palazzo Fenzi, built by Landi (1871) in the early Florentine style, which has been adopted in many of the newer edifices

Between the Pal. BARDESUR. Italy I. 5th Edit.

Opposite the first mentioned statues is the Post Office, formerly the Mint.

Approaching from the Piazza della Signoria, we enter by the second door to the left under this portico, and second by a staircase of 126 steps to the Galleria degli Uffixi , open on Son , and from April to Nov. on Thurs also, 11-3, gratis, on other days, 9-3 admission 1 fr.). The gallery originated with the Medici collections, to which numerous additions were made by the Lorraine (amily, and it is now one of the best in the world, both in extent and value. A few of the finest objects only in this vast collection are here enumerated. Those who have time for a brief visit only should first walk through the corridors, in order to become acquainted with their topography, and then return to the *Tribuna, the gem of the whole gallery Permission to copy is easily obtained by addressing a written application to the directors. The position of many of the best pictures is occasionally altered, but is sufficiently indicated by the number of copyists clustered round them. The names of the painters are affixed to the pictures. { Catalogues at the entrance, 31 g fr.)

The pictures in the Tribuna are the choicest in the gallery, as their position indicates, and are therefore all worthy of careful inspection. These are, however, by no means the only treasures of the collection. Thus the predelle (No. 1294) of Fra Angelia & frequently copied winged picture of the Madouna and angels (No. 17) are more interesting than the principal picture itself. Among the FLORENTINE works of the 15th cent, we may first mention Filippo Lippi's Madenna and two angels (1307), and four works of Sundro Bottiecili a round picture of the Madonna (1267 bis) the Adoration of the Magi (1286), so much extelled by Vasari, and, as specimens of other subjects, his Venus (39), and his Calumniation of Apelles (1182). Filippino Lippi's Madouna and saints (1268) attracts attention owing to its size and clear colouring, and his Adoration of the Magi (1257), with its numerous figures, is interesting on account of the portraits it contains. The best of the early masters was Domenico Ghirlandaye, whose beautiful round p.cture of the Adoration of the Magi (1295), and the Madonna with saints (1297), are remarkable for the excellence of the composition, and the harmony of colouring. The mythological works of Pier di Chsimo (21, 28, 38, 1246) betray a taste for fantastic subjects from which Lechardo himself was not entirely free. A very important work, though unfluished, is Fra Bartolonomeo s Madonna enthroned (1263), with its masterly grouping. Another very effective picture, notwithstancing its unfinished condition, is Leonarde's rich composition of the Aderation of the Magi (1252). The gallery also contains the Visitation of Mary (1259), the master-piece of Alber-Imelle, and several pictures by Rudolft (durlandage (1275, 1277), which show that very able works were produced during the golden era of art even by masters of second-rate importance. Sodoma's St. Sebastian (1279) also ranks as one of the finest creations of Italian art. Among the works of the other Italian Schools the most notable are Manteyna's Madonna among the rocks (1920), and among the numerous Venetian works Internal Flora (1920), three works by Interpretate (621, 630, 631), and a number of portraits.

The collection is also rich in works of northern origin, the better of which, in spite of the proximity of the more studied Italian pictures, maintain their peculiar charm owing to their depth of colouring, and their unsophisticated realism. The finest works of Van Eyek's School are a small Madonne by Membrig (703), and an Entombment by Roger van der Weyden (795). The Man praying (769) is either by Membring or Hugo van der Goes. and the two portraits (749) are variously attributed to the latter and to Petrus Cristus Among the principal Graman masters, Durer is represented by an Adoration of the Magi (in the Tribuns). a portrait of his father (766) two heads of Apostles (768, 777), and an unattractive Madonna (851) Holhern's portrait of Richard Southwell, dating from 1537 (No. 765), is an admirable work, but the portrait of himself, which was originally a slightly coloured charcoal drawing only, has been painted over and much altered. The NETHERLANDS SCHOOL of the 17th cent, is also represented by several excellent works. Among those by Rubens are a small picture of Venus and Adoms, with a landscape by J Brueghel (812), the portrait of his first wife (197), and two pictures of scenes from the life of Houry IV (140, 147). The best of Rembrandt's works preserved here are the two portraits of himself (451, 452), and a small Holy Family (922). The Dutch genrepainters have also enriched the gallery with several important and well preserved works, such as Ger. Dows Apple-woman (926), and the Schoolmaster (186), Fr. Micris' Charlatan (854), and the large family portrait (981), G. Wetsu's Lady and hunter (972), and Jan Steen's Family feast (977). Among the portraits of the painters those by the Netherlands masters unquestionably occupy the highest rank. The modern portraits of the painters placed here show how sadly this branch of art has fallen off since the 17th century.

First Vestmule. Busts of members of the Medici family. Brouze statues of Mars and Silenus, the latter with the infant Bacchus, a copy of the original at Rome. Various Reman reliefs with representations of processions and sacridees (almost all the heads modern).

The 'Madonna del (ardinello', the Mad onna at Verde at Vienna and 'La belle Jardiniere' in the bouve from a gr up nearly althou Madonna in which Mary and her Son alone appear the child holes of Baptist has been added. This not only admits of the delineation of ditional features of child-life, but also makes possible the construction of a regularly arranged group. The two children, standing at the feet of the Mad and form a bread base for the composition, which tapers tap-wards easily and naturally to the head of the Virgin. This arrangement first found express h within the reasms of sculpture, whence it was cagerly adopted by the Florentine painters Springer

GALL FERONI (closed; vis.tors apply to the custodian).

This collection was bequeathed to the city by Sign Feroni in 1800, and I rought from the Palazzi Ferent (Pi 66) a few years ago. It c stains few objects of great ment. On the wall to the right of the entrance: Teners the lownger, Interior of a butcher's shop and tavern, Carlo Dolo (P), Madonna del dito, *Carlo Dolo:, Angel with the hily; Schidore, Madonna and Child

The first floor of the edifice contains the Biblioteca Maxionals (admission, see p. 345, entrance by the 8th door from the piazza), which has been form d since 1860 by the union of the grand-ducal Biblioteca Palatina formerly in the Pitti Palace, and the still more extensive Biblioteca Magliabecchiana The latter, founded by Antonio Magliabecchi, a jeweller of Florence, has been dedicated to the use of the public since 1747. The present library contains about 300,000 vols and 8000 MSS., comprising the most important works of the literature of other nations. There are also several very rare impressions—the first printed Homer, Florence 1488; Ciecro ad Familiares, Venice 1469 Dante, Florence 1481 Every facility is afforded for the use of the library; to the right, at the end of the great reading-saloon, is the room containing the catalogues. - The staircase to the right of the library leads to that *CENTRAL ARCHIVES OF TUBCANY (Pl 96; D, 5), arranged by Bonains, one of the most amposing collections of this description, (140,000 documents).

To the k, of the Uffizi, and to the S, of the Palazzo Vecchional the beginning of the Via de Ner', is situated the Loggia det Grano (Pl 52), which was creeted by Cosimo II, and is adorned with his bust. — To the W of the Uffizi is the church of Sto Stefano (Pl 34; D, 5), which is said to have been founded as early 27 790. The epithet 'ad portain ferream' is sometimes applied to it from its door studded with large nails. It was here in 1373 that Boccaccio, by desire of the Signoria, publicly explained Dante's Divine Comedy.

The Piazza S. Firenze, the Badia, and the Museo Nazionale, see pp. 376-379, by the Ponte Veschio to the Pal. Pitti, see p. 403.

From the Piazza della Signoria the busy Via del Calzaruoza (FI D. 4) leads towards the N. to the Piazza del Duomo.

The Via di Porta Rossa, the first sub-street to the left, leads to the Mercato Nuovo, once the market for silks and jewelry, when straw and woollen wares are now sold. The market is adorned with a good copy of the ancient boar in bronze, by Pietro Tacca, the arcades are by Bern Tasso (1547). In the third street diverging to the right from the Via Calzajuoli, on the left side, beyond the first cross-street, is the house in which Dante was born (Via 8 Martino 2, Pl 46). It has been recently restored, and provided with a memorial tablet bearing the inscription in questa casa degli Alighieri nacque il divino poeta. (The traveller interested in historical research should observe the numerous memorial-tablets in various parts of the town, recording important events in the annuls of Florence.)

In the Via Calzajuoli, on the left, rises the church of *Or San Michele (Pl 31, D.4), or originally 8 Michele in Orto, as it was called from a plot of grass once here, which was paved in 1284, and flanked with an open colonnade. With a view to embellish the open space, in which figures of the Madonna and St. Michael were placed under canopics, it was resolved in 1336 to erect a 'Palatium' containing an oratory below, and a corn exchange above. The work was at length begun in 1350, in the Gothic style, and progressed tapidly under the supervision of Andrea Oreagna. The external decoration of the edifice with statues was undertaken by the twelve guilds, whose armorial bearings are placed below the piches

On the E side, towards the Via Calrajueli, (r.) St. I. ake, by Giovanni da B dogna. 1562 t, udges and a tarkes), "Christ and St. Th. mas. by Andrea del Verrecchia, 1483 (guido of the merchants), (l.) John the Baptist, by Lor Ghiberti, 1414 (guid) of the c. th dealers. Then farther to the left on the S sid. (r.) St. John by Bacca, da Mantelope, 1515 (weavers of side). Beneath the adjacent can p) was fermerly placed a Madenna by Mono da Fiesole (physicians and apotheraries, removed to the interior of the church ace below) now a 18t. (corge by Bonatello, which was originally destined for the vacant meke to the N., arm users), in the left. St. James, by James d'Antono de Banco (furriers). St. Mark by Banatello 1453, anders. On the W. façane, (r.) St. Eligius by James de Banco (tarriers), St. Stephen, by Lorenzo Ghiberti (w. avers of well), (l.) St. Matthew by Metheoric (420 (money changers). On the N. side for an imply no he, below a fine re it, then four saints by James de Banco (bricklayers, carpenters, smiths, and mase no.) (l.) St. Philip by the same (shocmakers). St. Peter, by Demitello (butch rs). The coloured inclalibous in has relief above the niches are by Luca d Ha Robbin.

In the Interior which consists of a double have, divided by two pillars, to the right the fine High Actor (Canopa), a celebrated work of Andrea tricagna in marole and procious stones, with numerous reliefs from sacred history completed according to the inscription, in 135° and erected over the mirael working many of the Virgin. At the side after under the organ, a marble group of the Holy Family, by Francesca de Sangalto. No side. Madonas and third by Moro da Fresols.

Opposite (r.) is the Oratorio of S Cirio Borromeo (Pl. 6), of the 14th cent, also originally deducated to the archangel Michael.

The Via del Calvajuoli, before its extension, contained the ancient towers of the Adimari, Medici, and Visdomini, which commanded the street in case of a riot, and were then joined by bravy chains barring all passage. We next teach the (1.) entrained to the Bazaar (Pl 40), and pass a number of shops, etc. — The next street to the left leads to the busy Mercato Vecchio (Pl. D. C. 4), the market for meat, vegetables, fish, etc., extending as far as the Piazza Strozzi (p 400). The Piazza del Mercato is one of the oldest in the town, and was called by the Lombards 'Forum Regis'. The column erected here to indicate the centre of the town bears a statue of Abundance, by Foggini (1652-1737), which replaces one by Donatello On the N side is the Loggia del Pesce, by Vasari — In the vicinity is the Chetto, or Jewish quarter.

The Via Calzajuoli is terminated by the Piazza DEL Duomo (Pl. D. 4), in which rise the Cathedral and the Baptistery, and of which the W. part is called the Piazza di S. Glov. Battista after the latter edifice.

On the left, at the end of the Via Calzajuoli, is the elegant Bigallo (Pl. 45), an oratory begun in 1351, probably by Orcagna, for the brotherhood della Misericordia, who afterwards made over the building to the 'Capitani del Bigallo'; it is now an orphanasylum Over the arcades (N) are three small statues (Virgin and two saints), by Alberto de Arnoldo, and two almost obliterated frescoes from the legend of St. Peter the Martyr, 1444. The chapel, now containing the archives of the asylum, contains a Madonna and two angels, by Alberto di Arnoldo, 1364. The room of the cashier is adorned with a fresco representing charity, and a view of Florence by Giotino, 1342.

Opposite the Bigallo is the *Battistero (Pl 5, D, 4), or church of S. Giovanni Battista, an admirable octagonal structure, which was once extelled by Dante ('mio bel S. Giovanni' Inf. six , 17). Several different accounts are given of the origin of the hunding and the construction of the altar. The local tradition, which recent investigations tend to confirm, is to the effect that the baptistery was created on the site of a temple of Mars in the early Ohristian, or even in the Lombard period. As the building was not used as a paptistery till after 1128 (previous to which it had been the principal church of the Florentines), and as it possesses the polygonal form usually employed for chapels of the kind, it is not improbable that it was not creeted in the present form till after 1128, and the external decorations in marble would accord with this hypothesis. On the other hand, the embell shment of the interior, with its straight beams and galleries, is of a character unknown in the 12th cent., so that some authorities believe it to have been erected in the 11th century. It is at all events certain that its builder was well acquainted with ancient forms. The lome, which is 90 ft in diameter, afforded Brancheschl a model for that of the eathedral - The three celebrated *Bronze Doors were added in the 14th and 15th contuctes.

The First Dook, the oldest of the three, on the S. side, opposites the Bigatio, was completed by Andrea Pisano in 1350 silest O. years of about. The scenes are from the hife of St. John. The broad decoration at the sides are by Lorenzo Chiberti and his son Vittorio (about 1452-62); above is the Behending of John the Raptist by Forcenzo Danti, 1571.

The Second Dook, facing the cathedral, executed by Lorenzo Chiberts (1425-52) is considered a marvel of art. It represents ten different scenes from scripture history. (1) 1 Creation and Expulsion from Paradise, (r. 2 Camelaving his trather and Adam tilling the earth, 3 Nonh after the Flood, and his interaction. A Abraham and the angels and Sacrifice of Isaac, 5. Isaan and Isaabi, 6 Joseph and his brethren, 7 Promitgation of the Law in Mt. Sinat, 8. The Walls of Jericho, 9 Battle against the Annoln ten, 10. The Queen of Sheba. This is the distribution of the Law in Mt. Sinat, 8. The Walls of Jericho, 9 Battle against the Annoln ten, 10. The Queen of Sheba. This is the distribution of the Law in Mt. Sinat, 8. The Walls of Jericho, 9 Battle against the Corntrols at the sides are also by Chiberta over the door the Baptism of thrist, by Andrea Sansormo, 1520, the angels by Spinatera (18th cent.) The two purphyry of anima were presented by the Pisaas (in 1200) in recognition of the assistance rendered them by the Fibrentines against Lucca in the expedition to Majorca in 1117. The chain of the harbour of Pisa, carried off by the Fibrentines in 1362 was formerly suspended here, but has been recently restored to the Pisaas, and is preserved in their Campo Santo (p. 325)

The Thics Door (N) is also by thiberts (1463-27). It represents in 28 sections the history of Christ, the Apostles, and Fathers down to 8t. Angustics. Hany r val artists are said to have competed for the bonour of undertaking this work of whom the principal were Chiberts, Remedieschs (vielt is should a moare the works in the Bargelles, p. 378). Jacopa della Fonte, Summe du Colle and probably also Bonatelles, but the preference was given to Chibert. Above the door, the Preaching of St. John by Fr. Rustice, 1541 (supposed to have been designed by Leonardo da Vinci).

In the Interior of the baptistery, below, are eight nickes each containing two columns of Oriental granite with guided a rinthian capitals. The choir is probably part of the original tuilding. The statues and pictures are of subordinate importance. The dome and choir bays are adorned with 'Mesaies' by Fra Jacopo (after 1225) Andrea Tabled 1320) Apollosio Greco, and others (restored by Baldovinetii 1492), which however are not visible except in very bright days. On the pavement are early mesaics, with the reduce and insertations, and messes with ornaments, 1331. The font is corriched with reliefs by an implator of Oreagns. To the right of the high alter is the tumb of Prope John XXIII (d. 1419), who was deposed by the Council of Unstance, precied by the Medici (Cosino del Medici had accompanied the pape to Constance the recumbent bronze statue by Donatello, the figure of Faith by Michelosio. On an alter to the right of Andrea Pasano's decrete of St. John there is placed here an alter of mass we silver (225) that in weight) with a cross of the same metal (141 lbs.) advined with bas reliefs from the life of the Baptist (kept in the Opera del Dromo, p. 374)

Opposite the N side of the church is a column of speckled marble (cipolline), called the Colonna di S Zanobi, erected in 1330 to commemorate the removal of the relies of St Zenobius, (From this point through the Borgo S Lorenzo to S. Lorenzo, see p. 393)

The *Cathedral (Pl 8, D, 4), Il Duomo or La Cattedrale di S. Maria del Fiore, so called from the lily which figures in the arms of Florence, was erected in 1294-1462 on the site of the earlier church of St. Reparata. This imposing example of Italian trothic was designed by Arnolfo del Cambio, who superintended the works down to his death in 1310. He was succeed d by Getta (who actuals architect-in-chief for 33 months), Franceso Talenti, and Alber di Arnoldo. The nave and alsles were completed in 1335.

19th Aug., 1418, was announced the public competition of models for the dome, of which Vasari has given so racy an account, and in which the genius of Filippo Brunelleschi accured the victory in spite of the jealousy of rivals and the doubts of the cognoscenti. The construction of the cupola lasted for furteen years (1120-[434] The church was finally consecrated in 1436, but the lantern on the top of the dome, also designed by Brunelleschi, was not completed till 1462. The building is 1851 yds, in length and 114 yds (across the transepts) in breadth, the dome is 300 ft. high, with the lantern 352 ft. (ascent, see p. 373). The facade was begun by Arnolfo but in 1332 his successor Gotto designed a new and more imposing plan (of which copies still exist, e.g. in the cloisters of S. Marco, 5th lunette from the entrance on the right h. and executed one half of it himself. In 1588 this work was removed with a view to replating it by a new facade designed by Buontulents. Desio, Ligely, and others, but the project was not carried out. The cathedral (like S. Croce, S. Lorenzo, etc.) was thus left without a facade, and was then decorated with frescoes by way of supplying the defect. In April, 1860, Victor Emmanuel laid the foundationstore of a new façade, but the work was not begun till the autumn of 1875. The design is by De Fabris — The first part of the coloured ornamestation of the building, which liffers from the rest, is due to Grette, and that of the nave is attributed to Brunelteschi.

The dec ration of the second School is a Preteo di Gioconnica North-Italian the Maconna between two angels in the functions by Lorenze di Gioconnica Lambragae (1992). The corresponding "N. The *Campanile, or belt-tower, began by Grotto in 1334 and completes after his death (133b) by Andrea Pisano, Fr. Talenti and by Aeri di Fioraganti (who also executed the windows), a square structure in the style of the cathedrai, 292 ft. in height, recently restored, is regarded as one of the fluest existing works of the kind. It consists of four stories, the lowest of which is rightly decorated with reliefs and statues. The window-, which works will size with the different stories, are entirhed with beautiful.

On the W side are statues of the four Evangelists, the three first of which are by Donatello [*St. Matthew, the finest), and the fourth (St. John) by Nanna di Bartolo, surnamed Rossi (1420) On the S, four prophets, three of which are by Andrea Pisano and the fourth by Giottino, on the E. side are a prophet, and three patriarchs by Donatello (Abraham and Isaac), and Aiccold di Piero Aretmo, on the N side are four sibyls by Luca della Robbia (?) and Nanni di Bartolo (?). these figures, on the sides of the tower, are bas-reliefs; those on the W and b, sides having been designed by Gette, those on the E. side by Andrea Pisano, and those on the N. by Luca della Robbia, the Seven Cardinal Virtues, the Seven Works of Mercy, the Seven Beatltudes, and the Seven Sacraments. In the lower series is represented the development of manking from the Creation to the climax of Greek science (Creation of Eve. Adam and Eve at work, Dwellers in tents, Astronomer, Rider, Weaving, Navigation, Agriculture, etc.).

The campancie is ascended by a good starcase of 414 steps (fee for 12 pers of 1). Beautiful View from the top, embracing the valley in which the ally lies the neighbouring heights, studded with villas and richly cultivated, and the mountains to the N be, and E. At the summit are seen the pillars on which, according to broth a plan, it was proposed to raise a spire of 100 ft, but the project was a and ned by Gaddi.

Opposite the S. side of the Campanile is the Church of the Misericordia (Pl. 27; D. 4), founded in 1244, belonging to the long established order of brothers of charity, who are frequently seen in the streets garbed in their black robes, with cowis covering the head and leaving apertures for the eyes only, while engage i in their missions of mercy. It contains a Madonna and St Sebastian by Benedetto da Majano, the Plague of 1348 by Lodovico da Cigoti, and other pictures

Adjacent to the E is the Canoney (Casa del Canonici), erected it 1827 by Gaetano Baccani; at the portal are the statues of Arnolfo del Cambio and Filippo Brunelleschi, both by Luigi Pampaloni (1830). — Into the wall of one of the following houses (No. 29) is built the Sasso di Danie, a stone on which the great poet is said to have been wont to sit on summer evenings.

The Via Proconsolo then leads to the S to the Piazza S. Firenze (Museo Nazionale; see p 376). In the piazza of the Cathedral, farther on, at the corner of the Via dell'Orivolo, is the Palasso Riccardi, formerly Gundagni. [In the Via Orivolo, immediately to the right, is the handsome new National Bank by Cipolla.]

Michelozzo. Here, too, are kept the silver cross, mentioned at p. 371, the lower part of which is by A. Pollaguolo, and two tablets with Byzantine representations in chamel.

The house at the corner of the Via Bufalini (S. Egidio) and the Via della Pergola, opposite the hospital, was once inhabited by Galileo. Adjoining it, in the Via della Pergola, is the house of Bennenuto Cettini.

To the S.E. of the Via delia Pergola, and parallel to it, runs the Via di Piuti (Pl. F. 4), in which is situated the church of 8. Maria Maddalena de' Pazzi (P) 23) The clossters in front of the church were designed by Gadiano do Sangallo. In the 2nd chapel, on the left, is a Coronation of the Madonna by Cosimo Rosselli, in the 4th chapel, two saints, by Raffaellino del Garbo -In the adjacent Via della Colonna, No. 1, is the entrance to the chapter-house of the monastery belonging to the church, which contains a large "Fresco by Perugmo (Christ on the Cross, date about 1500, the most worthy representation of the Saviour by this master), and is open on Mon and Thurs, 12-4. - In the same street, No. 31, is the exhibition of the Società d'Incoraggiumento delle Belle Arti (open daily, 10-4, admission 60 c.) - In the Via di Pinti, No. 62, farther N., is the Polazzo Pancialichi-Aimenes, eracted by Crullano da Sangal o in 1490, and restored in the 17th cent. by Silvani, It contains a valuable picture gallery.

The Via delia Colonna connects the Piazza dell' Annunziata (p. 384) and the new Piassa d'Aseglio (Pl. F. 4), which is laid out in promenades. — To the S. of the latter are a handsome were Synagogue, and, farther on, the church of S. Ambrogue (Pl. 1, Y. 5).

The Galleria Buonarroti, see p. 383; S. Croce, see p. 380.

Quitting the Pizzza della Signoria (p. 351), we follow the Via de' Gondi to the right, which leads us to the Pizzza S. Firenza (Pl. D. 5), with the church of that name. No I in this Pizzza is the Palazzo Gondi, began in 1490 by Giuliano da Sangallo, and completed in 1874 by Poggi, containing a handsome court. From this point the Via Del Proconsolo (Pl. D. E. 4) diverges to the Pizzza del Duomo.

Immediately on the right in the Via Proconsolo rises the Patasso del Podestà, commonly known as "Il Bargello (Pl. 39, D, 4, 5), the oldest palace in the city, begun in 1200, and from 1290 the residence of the Podestin, or chief magistrate of Florence. The building was repeatedly damaged by fire and water during the riots of the 14th cent, but was afterwards restored and strengthened. From the end of the 10th cent, down to 1809 it served as a prison. On the occasion of the Dante Exhibition in 1865, the imposing structure was judiciously restored and atted up for the new "National Museum, illustrative of the medieval and modern history of Italian culture and art. Part of the collection, which is still in course of formation, belongs to the state, and part to private individuals, and at is therefore by no means uniformly valuable. It contains several admirable works, such as the Renaissance bronzes formerly in the Uffizi and the Palazzo Vecchio (comp p. xlv1). Entrance in the Via Ghibelina, daily 10-4, 1 fr.; on Sundays, 11-212, gratis. No. catalogue has yet been published. The most important work- are labelica with the masters' names

This codection centains lew pictures to strike the eye or imagination of the amateur, but it is a most important collection for students of the development of Italian art during the 14th-16th entrance. We have the advantage here of being able to concentrate our attention on the characteristic features of the Tuscan and I mbrian schools, to the productions of which this collection is restricted. ment of freeco painting. The Last Judgment (small pictures, N 41 k and the Descent from the Cross (large pictures, 34), afford good idea of Fra Angelico's works. This collection also possess one of the chief works of Gentule do Fabriano, an Umbrian master closely allied to Fra Angelice (Aderation of the Magi, large pict itel 32). This work affords distinct evidence of the unity of sentiment which existed between the Schools of the North and South in the 15th cent., notwithstanding their external independence. The colection is chiefly important for the study of the Florentine art a the 15th century. We may mention as one of Filippe Lippo's carlies works the Nativity of Christ (small pictures, 26), whereas the Co. unation of the Virgin (large pictures, 41), with a portrait of him self, belongs to his latest period. In these works the master of viously aims at sensuous beauty in his female forms he depart from the strictly corlesisstical style, and horrows various effects from the province of sculpture. The want of repose caused by 💕 desire to introduce technical novelties is very apparent in Sand Botticelli's Coronation of Mary (large pictures, 47), and Verrocchic Raptism (large pictures, 43) shows the same tendency in a highdegree, distantly recalling Leonardo's technical skill and sense (Domenico Ghirlanda,o, another master of this school, we thoroughly conversant with traditional forms, and with their he has been enabled to produce majestic and spirited figures, at to unite in them the result of the labour of two generations. In Madonna and angels (old pictures, 17) is better preserved than a Nativity of Christ (large pictures, 50). A comparison of Ghirland dajo's simplicity of style, the outcome of a mature imagination with the elaborate and exaggerated manner of the old masters. most instructive Lorenzo di Credi's Nativity (large pictures, 53) is not only a carefully executed, but also an impressive picture on account of its beauty of expression and symmetry of composition Among Fea Ractelommeo's pictures, Mary appearing to St. Bernal is particularly worthy of notice (large pictures, G6) as it affords 🐀 insight into the master's method of painting, his St Vincon (large pletures, 69) is also a fine work. Marrette Athertmetti, will is closely allied to Fra Bartolommeo, is well represented by Madonna (large pictures, 72) and a Trimity (large pictures 70); 1 Annunciation (No. 73) is no longer in its original condition. Per umo's pictures are greatly above the average ment of his works in his Pietà (large pictures, 58) an admirable individe ality 4 character is exhibited; his skill as a colourist is shown in 🔝 Mount of Olives (53), and his Assumption (55), admirable boin composition and execution, shows him at the zenith of his power

Adjacent is the Casino Mediceo (No 63, Pl 51), erected in 1576 by Buontalents, on the site of the famous Metici gardens, where Lorenzo it Magnifico preserved a number of treasures of art for which no place could be found in the neighbouring palace of the Medici (see below). Bertotao, the heir and pupil of Donatello, was appointed keeper, and round him constered a troop of eager students. No other selool ever attained so great cerebrity. Leonardo da Vinci, Lorenzo di Credi, Giovanni Francesco Rustici, Francesco Granacci, Giuliano Bugiardini, A. Sansovino, P. Torregiani, and, last but not least Michael Argelo, all owe their artistic education to the garden of the Medici. Duke Cosinio I, afterwards transferred the collection to the gallory of the Ufizi. Proceeding farther to the N., we traverse the Via Salvestrina to the left, and enter the Via S. At the beginning of the VIA CAVOUR, formerly named the Fra-Lurga, is the *Palazzo Riccardi (Pr SJ, D, 3), formerly Medici, which has been in possession of the government since 1814. It was erested about 1440 under Cosmo Pater Patrix by Michelosao, who here introduced the practice of tapering the rustica in the different stories. The unsymmetrical façade is surmounted by a rich and heavy cornice. Here Cosmo's grandson Lorenzo il Magn heo was born on 1. Jan., 1449, and here he maintained his brilliant establishment. Lorenzo's sons Piero, Giovanni, and Guiliano also first saw the light within its walls. Ciulio, Ippolito, and Alessandro de Medici (comp. p. 349) subsequently resided here, and the lamily continue to a possession of the palace until it was soil in 1659 by the grand-duke Ferminano II, to the Marchese Riccarli, who extended it presiderably, enclosing within its precincts the Strada del Traditore, where on 7th Jan , 1537, Duke Alexander was assessmated by Lorenzmo de Medici. The original structure, however, is still in great part recognisable, particularly its beautiful court and the staircases.

Anonanata, completed in abbl by Attense Parigo, and in the possession of the Jesuita from 1557 to 1775. The scientific institutions of the city, comprising a library, observatory, etc., are established here. The church contains frescors and pictures by Allon, Bronzino Santi di Tito, etc.

In the PIAZZA S. LOBENZO (Pl. D. 3), with the church of that name, is the Base di S. Lorenzo, adorned with reliefs by Baccio Bandmelli, representing the victories of Glovanni delle Bande Nere (d. 1526), father of Duke Cosmo I.). In 1850 the movement was restored and furnished with the unpleasing and unknowned statue of Giovanni, executed by the same master.

*S. Lorenzo (Pl 17, D. 3), founded in 390, consecrated by St. Ambrose in 391, is one of the most ancient churches in Italy, In 1123 it was burned down, and in 1425 re-erected by the Medict and seven other families from the designs of Filippe Brunelleschi. who restored the form of the early Christian basiling consisting of a nay and areles terms rated by a transept, the have being covered with a flat ceiling, and the aisles with ground vaniting. He then ad led chapets resembling niches on each side. Over the columns (14 to bumber, and two pillars) he replaced the ancient beams which had been removed to the middle ages, and which now support the projecting arches. The supola, which rests upon the cross without the interposition of a drum, is not part of Brunelleschi's work The high after was consecrated in 1461. The inner wall of the façade is by Michael Ingelo, who also added the new sacristy (see below) and the Lagrentian Library. His design for the outside of the facade (1516) was unfortunately never executed but is preserved in the Galleria Bundarreti (p. 384). The church has been hand-omely restored within the last few years.

Gualiano de' Medici, created Due de Nemours by the king of Franci (d. 1516), and Lorenzo de' Medici, who became Duke of Urbino under Leo X (d. 1519). The great master worked at his task full of hitter feelings at the abolition of the republic by Alessandro de Medici, and in 1534 left it unfinished, as he feared the tyrant's hate after the death of the Pope. In spite of these unfavourable circumstances Michael Angelo has here produced a congruous whole of the greatest beauty. Architecture and sculpture are as harmomous as if the master had modelled sarcophag, and statues cornices and niches, doors and windows out of the and the same clay.

In the Clousters, which are attributed to Bruncheschs, immediately adjoint g the church, is the entrance to the Biblioteca Laurenziana (Pt 41, D. 3; adm. see p. 345, custodian 12-1 fr.), a library founded by Cosmo in 1444, and gradually enlarged by the Medi i. Its chief treasure consists of about 8500 MSS of Greek and Latin classical authors. The building was begun in 1524 from the tesign of Wichael Angelo, the partico was built by him, and the staircase (which was also designed by Michael Angelo) was completed in 1571 by Vosari, the rotanda containing the Bibl. Debruara, was erected in 1841, from Pasq. Paccientis design.

The winder certain of the Library was executed by Tasso and Carota, from Method Angelo's designs (soon after 1990). The latter also formshed the design for the 35 'points' to which the MSS are attached. Among this is a number of concess of rare value. We now proceed by the Via del Gigito to the Piazza S. Maria Novella (Pl. C. 3), where festivals and games were frequently rele-brated in former times. The principal of these, instituted in the reign of Cos mo I. in 1563, took place on the eve of the festival of St. John, and consisted of a race of four four-horse chariets, called Prasmer (green), Russola (red), deneta (blue), and Alla (white), resembling these of the ancients. Two obelisks of a arble of 1608, standing on brazen tortoises, perhaps by Giov. da Bolognal, served as goals.— The Loggith & Pholos, an areade opposite the church, erected in 1451 from brunenes this design, is anothed with terracuttas by Andrea della Robbia.— The canopy at the corner of the Via della Scala is by Francesco Fiorential, a pupil of Don Lorenzo Monaco (14th cent.).

From the Prazza del Carmine the Via des Orto (Pl. A. 4) leads to the Porta S. Frediano (see p. 419).

The Ponte Vecchio (P. C. 5., p. 351), over which the covered passage mentioned at p. 365 is carried, forms the most direct communication between the Piazza deha Signoria and the I fflzi, and the Paiazzo Pitti. The bridge is flanked with shops, which have belonged to the goldsmiths since 1593. It terminates in the Via Celectakolni (Pl. C. 5), at the end of which, to the left (No. 17), is situated the Palaszo Guicciardini (Pl. 72), where the historian Francesco Guicciardini lived from 1482 to 1541, opposite to it, on the right (No. 16), is the house of Macchiaectli (Pl. 48)

The *Palareo Pitti (P) 80; B, C, 5), conspicuously situated on an eminence, was designed and begin by Brunchecks in 1440, by order of Luca Pitti, the powerful opponent of the Medici, whom he hoped to excel in external grandeur by the exection of the most imposing palace yet built by a private citizen. The failure of the conspiracy against Piero de Medici in 1460 cost lines the loss of his power and influence, and the building remained unitariated the middle of the following cent., when it had come, through a great-grandson of Luca, into the possession of Elempora, wife of Duke Cosimo 1, (1049). The palace, which somewhat resembles a eastle or a prison, is remarkable for its bold simplicity, and the unadorned blocks of stone are hown smooth at the joints only. The control part has a third story. The effectiveness of the building is entirely produced by its fine proportious (comp. p xl). The length of the central part is 118 yds., its height 121 ft.; the whole facade is 220 yds long. About the y as 1968 Bartolommes Ammanuti introduced round-arched windows on the groun I floor, where the two portals, and the small rectangular windows, at a considerable beight from the ground, were originally the only openings. At the same time he began to construct the large court, which is adjoined by a grotto with niches and fountains, and the Boboli (rarden beyond them. The wings of the palace were completed in Since the 16th cent, the Pitti Palace has been the 1620-31 residence of the reigning sovereign, and is now that of king Humbert when at Florence The upper floor of the left wing contains the far-famed Picture Gallery, which was formerly the property of Cardinal Leopold and Carlo de' Medici, and of the Grand duke kerdinand II

The Pitti Gallery, which contains about 500 works, may be regarded as an extension of the Tribuna (p. 358) in the Pfdzi gallery. No collection in Italy can boast of such an array of master-pieces, interspersed with so few works of subordinate merit. The most conspicuous work of the earlier Florentine period is the round Madonna by Felippo Lippi (No. 338). The Adorat in of the Magi, by Dom. Gherlandago (358), is a replica of the picture No. 1295. in the Uffly). Filippino Lippi's Holy Family (347) is of somewhat doubtful authenticity. Perugeno's Pieta (164), in which the treatment of the landscape deserves notice, is one of his principal works. To Fra Bartelommeo's later period belong the Resurrection (159), the Holy Family (256), St. Mark (125), and the Picta (64). the master's last work, a model of composition, ennobled by depth of santiment and purity of forms, and certainly one of the most beautiful products of Italian art Andrea del Narto is admirably represented by an Annuneastion (124), by the so-called Disputa (172), a picture without action, but of an imposing and dign fied character. John the Bapt.st (265); a Pieth (58; more dramatically treated than is the master's wont, and the Madonna in clouds with saints (307), all of which show his different excellencies, and particularly the soft blending of his colours. The treasures of the gallery columnate in no fewer than a dozen of Raphakl a works, The exquisite 'Madouna del Granduca (266), in which a pure type of simple female beauty is but slightly veiled by the religious character of the work, and the Madouna della Sedla (79), a most cautiful work of purely human character, in which takense mo-

ternal happiness is expressed by the attitude of the group, both captivate every beholder. The Madonna del Baldacchino (166), on the other hand, painted at different times and certainly not entirely by Raphael's own hand, and the "Madonna dell Impannata (No. 94, being an extension of an originally simpler composition) are of inferior interest. The fluest of the portraits is that of Leo A, with the two cardinals (63), in which the delicate and harmonious blending of the four shades of red should be noticed. Whether the portrait of Julius II, (151) exhibited here, or that in the Tribuna is the original, has long been a matter of controversy, but if the two pictures were placed in juxtaposition, the question might perhaps be settled. The portraits of the 'Velata' (245) and the Gravida' (229) are now generally admitted to be genuine works of Raphael. The portraits of Angiolo and Maddalena Doni (61, 69), of the master's Florentine period, are of unjuestioned authenticity, but those of Inghirami (171) and of Cardinal Bibbiena (198) are not free from doubt. The Vis.on of Ezekiel (174). which transports us into an entirely different sphere, is a mediæval symbolical subject, treated by Raphael in his own manner. -The Goldsmith (207), once attributed to Leonardo, has long since been allotted to Lorenzo de (veds. The Three Fates (113) can hardly claim, even in its composition, to be a work of Michael Angelo. The Venctian School also occupies an important place in the Pitt, Gallery. Thus Georgione's Concert (185), and Lor. Latte's Three Ages (157), a work hardly inferior in conception to that of Giorgione Then Schastian del Prombo a St. Agatha (179); Tition's pertraits of Cardinal Ippolite de Medie. (201) and Arctino (54), his Bella (18), and his Mary Magdalene (67), Bonifacio's Repose in Egypt (89, erroneously attributed to Paris Bornove), and his Schyl (257); Tintoretto's Portrait (65), and his Vulcan with Venus and Cupid (3) An excellent work of a later period is Create fore Alleri's Judith (96). - Among the non-Italian pictures we must mention two landscapes (9, 14), four portraits (85), and the Allegory of War (86), by Rubens Card nal Bentivoglio (82) and the Repose in Egypt, by lan Duck, two portraits [1660] by Rembrandt, and lastly the equestrian portrait of Philip IV. (243), by Velasques.

(Or we may approach the gallery by the connecting passage from the Uffizi, in which case sticks and umbrelias must be left at the entrance to that builting, see p. 365.) Outside the gate rises a handsome new columnate - We follow the Viale Militare Pl. G, 21, cross the Plazza delle Cure, and then ascend the acft bank of the Vugnone (Via Borcaccio), an insignificant stream, which however in raing weather sometimes causes great devastation, to the (1 M) Villa Palmiers, the property of the ex-duca, family, which remains of the right. By race to makes this the residence of the narrators in his Decamerone during the plague in 1848. The road then ascendarapidly between garden-walls, and reaches (1 M) the church of S. Domenico di Fireder, in the former monestery of which plous Fra Giovanni Angelica lived before his removal to S & at Florence; the choir of the church contains a Madeuna with saints, painted by him (Opposite the church the 'Via della Badia' diverges to the left, see p. 422.) The road divides here: the old road to the left leads past the Villa Mossi, once a favourite residence of Lorenze il Magnifico, reaching the height in 20 min; the new road to the right winds gradually upwards, passing several pretty villas, and finally skirting the S side of the ancient Etruscan wall of Fiesole. Fine, open views. This excellent road is principally indebted for its construction to the Golden Book of Fiesole. This venerable volume enjoys the privilege of ennobling those whose names are inscribed on its pages, and, when the Fiesolans were desirous of constructing the road, their 'golden book' distributed its favours extensively among the Florentines and others in return for a substantial equivalent.

Fiesole: Trattorm l'Aurora, fine view; Locanda Firense), Lat Fiesulae, is an ancient Etruscan town, the Cyclopean walls of which are still partially preserved. It was for a long period more powerful than its rival Florence, to the jealeusy of which it at last fell a victim in 1010 (p. 347). The town, the seat of a bishop, but now of no importance, contains 2800 inhab, who like most of the natives of this district are engaged in straw-plaiting (purchasers of their wares should as a rule give only half the price demanded).

On the height we enter the spacious Plazza of Fissols, and perceive immediately apposite us the Cathedral, one of the carliest and simplest examples of the Tuscan style, begun in 1028 by Bishop Jacopo Bavaro, shortly after the destruction of the ancient Fasular by the Florentines, but not completed till much later. It is a basilina of poor exterior, consisting of nave and aisles with a transept, and a spacious crypt beneath the lefty choir.

Over the altae matter by Andrea Persucc: The chapel to the right of the choir contains the Monument of Bishop Salutati (d. 1465), by Mino do Fiesote, opposite which is a Barrelief by the same master, representing the Madinga with 5t. Remigius and 8t. It mhare, in the foreground the laint Cheist, and John the Baptist with a beggar. On the cultance wall, over the dear 'St. Romolus, with rich frame by Luca della hobbia.

Opposite the cathedral, on the W side of the piazza are the Episcopal Palace and the Seminary — On the E side of the piazza is the Palazza Pretorio, of the 13th cent. bearing the arms of the magistrates (podesta), on the ground-floor is the Museo Fiesolano, founted in 1874 and containing the yield of the excavations mentioned below. Adjacent to it is the venerable church of S. Marin Primer in a, dating from the 10th cent, containing a tabernacle in terracotta of the school of the delta Robbia, on the right a partial head of Giuliono da San Gallo by himself.

Reyond the cathe Iral, and descending the first side street to the right, we come to a well preserved fragment of an Ancient Excuses Wall, situated among modern terrace walls. — Passing slong to and at the top returning towards the town—we soon reach (on the right) the cutrance to an Ancient Theatre—brought to light since the resumption of the excavations in 1873 (adm. 50 c., and a triffing fee). Sixtien tiers of stats, in a semicircle (37 yds. in demeter), are now visible, the stage was open towards the S.

The site of the old Acropolis of Fesule is occupied by a Franciscan Monastery, to which the street ascending to the Woopposite the cathedral leads. On the right, a little below the monastery, rises the venerable church of S. Alexandra, with 15 antique clumes of cipellina, probably occupying the site for heathen temple. The plateau in front of it commands a beautiful and extensive "Virw of the valley of Florence, bounded on the S. by several ranges of hills, on the E. by the monatain-chain of the Casentino, and on the W. by the heights of Monte Albano, beyond which the mountains of Carrara stand prominently forth

Those who have time should ascend the emin, nee a little to the E of Fiesole, which is higher than the Franciscan monaster, and commands an uninterrupted panorams.

On the way back we may visit the Badia di Fiesole, 1 M. to the W of S Demenico (p. 420), a monastery founded in 1028, occupied first by Benedictine, afterwards by Augustinian monks. It was re-erected by Brunelleschi in 1462, by order of Cosimo the Eider, and forms a remarkably attractive p.ic of buildings

The Clit will, with a transcript but destitute of aisless is covered with circular validing, and is of noble properties throughout. The part of the tacade which is decorated with tlack and white marble belongs to the older structure, and is excess with 8 Miniaio (147). In the interior are several lumbst in a fithe celebrates families of the Salvint, Marucelli Mani, etc. The Refectory is adorned with a quaint fresto by Georgians do San Giognome (d. 1630), representing angels ministering to thrist in the wild rucss, the reading desk is by Branel socks.

Christ in the wild ruess, the reading desk is by Brunel each;
The monast ry which was highly favoured by the Medica was inquently the residence of manthers of the Platonic leadenny? Picos of Marandola here worked at his exposition of Ganesia. After the suppression of the monastery (1778), the printing-office of the learned from coseo Inghirams, where a number of important works were published was established here. It is now occupied by a farm.

(1) About 3 4 M from the Porta alta Croce (PI G. 5) on the left of the railway to Arezzo, are situated the remains of the monastery of 8. Balvi, of the order of Vallombrosa, and mentioned at early as 1084, where in 1312 Emp Henry VII established his head-quarters during the siege of Florence. The former refector contains a well-preserved and finely coloured *Fresco by Andrew det Surta (1526-27), representing the Last Supper (Christ is about to take a piece of bread to dip in the dish; Judas already has the sop in his band).

The painting his calculated to be seen at a burst on entering the door. It is marve loss how the shadows east by the figures, and the part in them formed away from the light, keep their value; how the varie

At (3 M) the point where the road divides for the thirl time, we descend to the right, and proceed to (2 M) the village of Pelägo (Locanda at Buon Cuore, previous agreement necessary, mule to Vallembrosa 5 fr.). The road next leads by Paterno (3 M) from Pelazo, one-horse carr. 5 fr.) formerly the monastery farm, now a royal agricultura, institution, to the village of Tosi, 1 M farther. Those who make the excursion in one day need not go by Pelago, but may proceed direct from Pontassieve to Paterno and Tosi. The road ascends hence to the left, traverses incadows, underwood, and pine forest, and about halfway up the Pratomagno mountain reaches—

Vallombrosa (2980 ft), situated in a shaded and sequestered spot. The monastery was founded about 1050, and the present buildings date from 1637. It was suppressed in 1869, and has since been occupied by the R. Instituto Forestate, or forest school Outside the walls is a small inn, the old Foresteria (unpretending but comfortable quarters)

The monastery of Vallembrosa was founded by 8 Coverno Gaulberto, the scient of a wealthy and powerful family of Florence who after a care, r of youthful protigacy resolved to devite the remainder of his life to the most a setere acts of ponance. To the right, at the point where the Boulevart Ros Jérôme diverges, is situated the Hôtel de Ville. On the first floor is the *Reception Hall, adorned with busts and pictures illustrative of the history of the family of Napoleon

The Rue Fesch leads to the Collège Fesch, which contains a large collection of pictures (600, most of them copies), casts, a library, and a collection of Corsican minerals. The court contains a bronze statue of Cardinal Fesch, half-brother of Napeleon's mother, by whom the collection was bequeathed to the town. Adjoing the College is the Chapelle Fesch, built in 1855, containing the tombs of Letitia Ramolino, mother of Napoleon ('materitegum; d. at Rome in 1836), and of Cardinal Fesch (d. at Rome in 1839).

By the street to the left opposite the fountain, and then by the third transverse street to the right, we reach the small Place Letizia, containing the house in which Napoleon was born, with the inscription 'N spoléon est né dans cette maison le 15 Août 1769' (the concierge lives opposite, fee 1 fr.) It contains a few remainiscences of the great warrior.
